REPORT ON SCHOOL BOOKS.

List of Books Recommended for Adoption.—Plumbers' Protest Tabled.

The city School Board met in regular session last night, Vice-President Nelson in the chair. Trustees Alf. Young, Newman, Daly, Pike, Rayniond, Duke and Baldwin were present.

PLUMBERS' REPORT.

The following protest from the plumbers was tabled:

Board of Education:

Gentlemen—We, the undersigned, members of the Plumbers, Steam and Gasfitters' Union, Local No. 16, United Association, do hereby respectfully but earnestly protest against the letting of the contracts for the steam-heating and plumbing of the new schoolhouses in this Lake City, to any person or persons antagonistic to union labor and union prices.

We believe that Utah work should be performed by Utah workmen if possible, and that no contract should be let to the lowest by parties who will import men who do not belong to our association, whose interests are not in Utah and who in spending with us are injuring men who reside here as well as the Territory by unnecessarily tending to reduce the price of labor in this and by taking from the Territory the wages that should remain here with our people.

Dated July 14, 1892.

The committee on school work submitted the following report on school books to be adopted by the schools for the next five years, as follows:

Honorable Board of Education:

Gentlemen.—Your committee on school work have to report:

That in connection with the city superintendent of schools they have examined the work prepared by the different publishing houses, for adoption by this board, with much care and labor, and we recommend that the board adopt for use in the Salt Lake City schools for the five years commencing July 1, 1892, the books marked Exhibit "A," which is appended to this sheet.

The committee, by a vote of three to two, recommend that the board purchase and use all books used in the schools now from funds in the purse for use.

The recommendations of books named in exhibit "A" is based on the size of the board's purchasing books as above recommended, and if it is decided not to do, this committee ask for one day's more time in order to revise their work with reference to certain books for supplemental work.

Attached to this report and made a part of it is an estimate by the superintendent of schools of the cost to the district for the first year of furnishing books free to the schools.

We further recommend that the president and clerk of the board be authorized to contract with the publishers, giving satisfactory bonds, in sum fourth of the estimate cost of all the books to be furnished by them respectively, for the initial requirements of their contracts.

Weber Co. Summer Institute.

The Weber County Summer Institute began its session in the City Hall on Tuesday the 12th inst. and will close tomorrow (Saturday.)

Joseph S. Peery, county superintendent of public schools, had previously arranged with Superintendent Kinch of Leavenworth, Kansas, to assume the conductorship of the institute. He is a gentleman recognized in the East as a thoroughly practical teacher. His main principle in teaching is "the development of thought in every branch." He delivers lectures to the teachers during morning hours and questions them in the afternoon on details of the lecture. He has also a "model class" of children to whom he gives instruction, and then calls upon one of the teachers to teach the same class in the same manner. On Monday he will instruct the teachers upon their duties, etc., and Mr. O. O. Bates, an authority on county schools, will lecture on "Weber's needs." Lectures also will vary teachers in attendance.

Weber County is paying especial attention to proficiency in her school teachers. Appointments of graduates have been instituted by Superintendent Peery which leads up to the final completion of the school course. Graduating exercises have also been adopted. At the last commencement exercises, held in the Opera House, there were thirty graduates. Quite a few other third grades were present, and several informed were unable to gain admission, owing to the interest which is taken in educational improvement. The grading system promotes greater interest in pupils and teachers as well as pupils. It has a tendency to give long school life, increase attendance and encourage higher instruction. Weber County has taken the leading steps in this direction and others will soon follow.

Horace E. Peery, a promising youth of eighteen, has just returned home with a diploma and letters of recommendation from the school he completed an educational course in Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

OGDEN, July 14, 1892.

Amusements.

The much advertised and loudly heralded combination of farce comedy and negro minstrelsy at Lyceum Hall last evening. The house was the best part of the performance. The bright humor of the piece are chiefly in the printing, and if "Tuxedo" is the text Mr. Thatcher can do in the wedding line, he should plead a prohibitive tariff and go out of business. The jokes we have laughed over and had a chance to digest since Haverly's minstrels were here nearly a month ago. The situations would be growingly funny to a young juvenile audience, and Mr. Thatcher should always keep his lustrily earbody embellished under burnt cork and black gloves. As a collection of trashy trivialities "Tuxedo" should be awarded the grand pad master diplomas. There were some redeeming features however, notably the singing of Mr. Raymond Morse and the dancing of the imported artist, Mr. Coleman. Mr. Morse's "Twenty Years Ago" was one of the most tastefully sung sentiments heard here in a long time, and Mr. Coleman, as a dancer, is a marvel. The star of the combination has for years enjoyed a reputation second to none in negro minstrelsy, but a prolongation of "Tuxedo" in its present form will hurt it deeper than the stratum of natural gas. The show goes again tonight.

CARVER'S WILD AMERICA.

Dr. Frank Carver, or as he is known, "The Evil Spirit of the Plains," with his Wild America company will arrive in Salt Lake by special train over the Union Pacific tonight. The programme to be presented here is exactly the same as was given at Central Park, San Francisco. There will be a street parade tomorrow morning commencing at 10 o'clock. The Rapid Transit line have arranged for fourteen extra cars to run on the Race Track gate for the accommodation of those who wish to witness the sightsling. The performance commences at 2 o'clock p. m.

SINGING TO CONVICTS.

YOUNG WOMEN WHO DEVOTE THEIR TALENTS TO CHARITY.

Mary and Lizzie Bowman's Helpful Work in Southern Prisons—Interesting Details of Their Experience Among the Convicts of Society.

There are two young women in Brooklyn who have lost not for themselves a most unusual line of duty, and who have so unusually and quietly pursued it that this is probably the first time their names have ever reached the public. These noble young women are the Misses Mary and Lizzie Bowman, who have concentrated their lives to work among prisoners and the unfortunate of the city. They were born in the old part of the city from beyond Willoughby street and Adams, and in that vicinity their lives have been spent. For the last five years they have lived with their parents and sisters in the Lee street, and are very domestic industrious girls, caring for their younger sisters and aiding their mother in a most old fashioned way as children in years past.

Of late years their voices alone are endowed with the gift of song. Mary having a strong, clear organ and Lizzie a contralto of wonderful strength and beauty. To them the gift seemed to be divinely given, and they decided even while children to devote the best for some good and noble purpose.

For a time they sang in churches, receiving large salaries for their services, but this seemed a selfish use of their beautiful talents. Later they visited the women of their parents' church on Easter Sunday, ten years ago, to sing in Raymond street jail at Clarion Hall morning services, and from that time their talents have been devoted entirely to this work. Every Sunday morning at 9 o'clock they are admitted to the corridor of the jail, and every Tuesday evening, and no prisoner who has been locked within these walls during the past ten years but has been comforted by the sound of their tones. Once in the month always, sometimes twice, they sing in the Kings County penitentiary in the afternoon, and since the Industrial home has been started they also visit there and sing to the inmates. Aside from these services they sing often in concerts given for charitable purposes.

Not are their duties entirely confined to singing. Often they are sent for by some poor prisoner, and leave a call comes to them. At any time they are ready to go with words of comfort or little gifts of some kind to the darkest cell, to the most desperate prisoner. Next to God, Mr. Barr himself, these two young women are best known and best beloved of any persons in Brooklyn by the outcasts of society.

"Not a few times," said Miss Lizzie to a reporter, "have we acted as bridesmaids in the jail and penitentiary, and have signed our names as witnesses to the marriage contracts. Quite as often, too, have we stood as godmothers to poor little prisoner babes before. We are known and loved by all battle the sick prisoners, and have seen deaths, too, within the prison walls."

"Have you ever known many of the famous criminals here?"

"Yes, many. The saddest duty we ever had to perform is our love has been to visit some of the condemned men in Raymond Street jail. I shall never forget the morning Hills was hanged. He was convicted of wife murder, and before his death was converted to Christianity through Mr. Barr's efforts. He often wanted us to sing for him, and to the last we went. The little organ was placed just outside his cell door, and those we would sing and Mr. Bowman talk to him. It seemed always to cheer him even the day before the execution, when, while we were there, the clothes he was to wear, even to the slippers and hose, were brought to him, and then he seemed entirely happy. Of all the men we met in prison, the second then to fully realize his position, and from that moment lost all of his cheerfulness. It was his wish that we come again in the morning, and of course we did, and sang as long as we were permitted so to sing."

"Were you with any others at such a time?"

"Yes, we were with Jefferson before that.

"We were afraid to mention McGlaine's cell. He was so concerned and broad that his language was not fit for us to hear. He is the only prisoner we have met who has not believed life a preliminary boarding house. When we were visiting Hills, every day Kearney, the keeper, would put an adjoining cell and need to hand a blanket up to us lest that he might not see us, and we were very careful never to look toward his cell. One day, however, Mr. Hill told us that Kearney wanted to speak to us, and we noticed then that there was nonsense at the bars of his cell. He asked us to sing some favorite hymn of his, and from that time we sang very hymns. He also asked we sang to twenty-five and a half to the penitentiary, and while there sent for us to come to see him. He was a desperate man, and had broken out of every prison in which he had ever been confined and had killed a keeper of the subsequent of Ellis and Rice."

Few young women truly have witnessed such scenes as have these young singing missionaries, and their home is filled with little gifts, tokens and gratitude from prisoners in New York World.

To Have Clean Streets.

It is a very simple problem, whether you live in a village of a city of 2,000, or a million. Look at the logic. First, streets are made filthy by what falls or is thrown into them, whether the same is old shoes, tomato cans, newspapers or papers. Do not throw anything into the streets and they will never become filthy. Not.

The sinking of streets from the necessary wear and tear of trade and hauling is comparatively small. The city authorities could take care of that without great trouble and expense. But it is the things that are thrown into the streets by private citizens that are the bugbear of sewerage, cigar, newspapers, orange and banana peels and papers.

But most of all, papers. Whenever one sees the sinking air currents on a windy day and gets his eyes full of dust for his pains will see that half the nuisance of the public highways is caused by flying and dirty papers, brown grocery papers, tobacco papers, old newspapers, envelopes, etc. If everybody will at once and forever stop throwing paper, even a scrap of it, into the streets, they will at least be two-thirds cleaner than they are now. Follow the same line with every other kind of unsightly trash and see how decent your highways will be.
