DESERET EVENING NEWS.

[illegible] FRIDAY, JANUARY 11, 1895.

THE CITY WINS THE FIGHT.

The Famous Lindt Land Jumping Suit Dismissed From the Docket of the U. S. Supreme Court.

The famous J. H. Lindt Capital Hill land jump case which a few years ago caused such universal interest in this city and Territory has been dismissed from the docket of the Supreme Court of the United States, City Attorney Rigs having been notified to that effect by Delegate Hasslam.

The result was precisely what the writer confidently expected and he announced it to his readers as intimating and for a time causing speak in the history of Mayor Armstrong's administration. Lindt having as he supposed entered an unpaying minority on roots lightly because the present of a great portion of the valuable land within the city, surrounded himself by a horde of real estate sharks and squatted thereupon with a good deal of assurance that they regarded upon it and declared themselves the rightful owners.

But their possession was very brief. Mayor Armstrong learned of Lindt's work. His prompt action proved to the people of this city that he was a courageous and able executive who could be depended upon—no matter what the emergency, to protect their interests. Just as the squatters were on the heights of exclusive over their unlawful, dishonest, prospective acquisition of wealth, a squad of well armed police descended upon them and rated their hopes into the ground. There was lack of Winchester sentence, for that was all. There was no resistance of the "jumping" outlaws but the case went into the Third district court where it was hotly contested. The finding was against Lindt and he appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States and now that that august tribunal has also decided against him by dismissing the case his every hope is gone and the city declared to be the only legal and rightful owner of the property.

SCHOOL BOARD MATTERS.

Treasurer Whitney and Clerk Morrion File Their Bonds—Financial Statement.

The board of education met last night, all of the members present, and transacted business as follows:

Bids for carpeting the meeting chamber were received as follows: F. W. Mattes, $1.35 per yard; Freed Furniture company, $1.75; H. Dinwoodey, $1.14. The contract was awarded to the last named firm, as was also the putting in of extra window shades in the Grant school building for the sum of $42.

The following recommendations from the committee on teachers and school work were adopted and authority given the committee to purchase necessary books: That in view of the fact that the law provides for the enforcement of attendance and provides for truancy and incorrigibility, that the president make investigations of such cases and notify correspondents of intention to prosecute those who continue to disregard the requirements of the statute. That as the expiration of the half year, Feb. 15, there is a class in the Lowell school which will have completed the eighth grade and is entitled to attendance in the High school; that it is impracticable to make this change at present; therefore, they be allowed to remain at the Lowell with juvenile seven and eight at Prince's arithmetic supplemented to present studies.

The application of Walter Reynolds for position of janitor was referred to the committee on buildings and grounds.

H. G. Whitney, the newly elected treasurer of the board, filed his bonds in the sum of $200,000, with the following sureties: A. W. Richards, $25,000; Heber J. Grant, $50,000; W. B. Preston, $5,000; Charles Barton, $50,000; F. Y. Farnsworth, $100,000; Spencer Clawson, $50,000; Adopted.

The committee on finance recommended that the salary of the clerk be fixed at $125 per month and that the treasurer receive no compensation.

Haines directed from the recommendation for the reason that in his opinion the secondary system in such cases was permicious and an open encouragement and not for suppression. He only and absolute enforcement should be brought about. The report was adopted.

On motion of Hansen, the president and clerk were authorized to draw a warrant on the outgoing treasurer, Mr. Duke, in favor of H. G. Whitney, the successor, for the account of funds now in possession of the board.

Mr. Duke submitted the following report (in thousands up to date):

Balance on hand January [illegible]	$[illegible]
Received from J. T. Caldwell	[illegible]
Total	$[illegible]

Street Lighting Question.

For a protracted period one night the members of the City Council discussed the question of street lighting and in their wisdom was added the interesting series and suggestions of Mayor Baskin, City Engineer Young and Chairman Dickenson of the board of public works.

Councilman Clawson accepted the chair and the discussion was started by Cohn moving that the member be allowed to publish a notice of intention to light the streets in lamp district No. 1.

Councilman Young said there were two questions to be considered. Whether the assessment should be upon foot frontage or upon the basis of land and improvements and the benefits of the light thereupon.

The Mayor was present and by invitation spoke to the question. He recounted his reasons for vetoing the light ordinance and added that he believed it wise and safe to proceed under the law of 1893.

O'Meda declared himself in favor of a valuation levy on the mill and Cohn agreed with the idea but said it would be ineffective and inoperative for one year. A tax of 6 cents a front foot he believed would be the proper thing.

Councilman Young spoke strongly against lighting the city by general assessment. If the people were and willing to pay for light by local assessment then they should have darkness.

Mr. Dickenson expressed himself as believing that the inequalities arising from the foot frontage would be overcome by the board of equalization.

Engineer Young said the method commonly adopted in other cities under similar circumstances was to pay one-half the cost of lighting out of the general funds, the remainder to be collected according to the benefits derived by the property holder. The wisest course, however, he believed would be to submit the matter to the people to vote upon.

No definite decision was reached and an adjournment was taken until Monday night.

A TOUGH HORSE.

One Lesson Not Enough to Educate the Backskin.

Mr. Gleason got hold of some interesting horses last night, one of which was by no means conspicuous at the end of the exhibition. The hall was crowded and the spectators appeared to enjoy the performance very much.

Mr. McIntyre's bay horse was the first to appear. This was a very nervous, stubborn animal, and it took the trainer some time to learn him to turn properly without the guide rein. Mr. Hogan's bay was then given a little exercise, after which the two were driven together.

Next was a small pony, the owner of which could not drive over five minutes, etc., to make him perfectly safe for children to drive. He was soon given the necessary schooling.

When the trainer's horse belonging to Mr. Richmond was brought forward it was plain that he was going to make a hard fight, which he did. The professor had thought he had a bad sheep on Wednesday night, but he did not compare with the backskin. A number of times he evaded somewhat attempted to trip the operator of a received seat. He also caused a sensation by upsetting his hind feet over the heads of some of the people on the other side of the arena. He was generally considered the thing for some time and appeared to be pretty broken of his bad habits, but on suddenly, for unknowing, this he used his feet very freely, causing almost a stampede among those who had gathered around him. This horse will be the fun on the program tonight, and those who know him say he will be just as bad as he was last night.

The announcement was also made that Mr. Empey's horse would be made to perform this day by the word of command at this evening's exhibition.

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

Ten Men Blown Up in a Mine in the Blue Mountains.

The news has reached this city by wire from Thompson's Springs in Moab, Grand county, of a terrible explosion in the Gold Queen mine in the Blue mountains.

Lou Shelton and Joseph Mutsellard were engaged in developing the mine and had fired a shot in a shaft below them. Unfortunately without allowing their companion only a part of the charge exploded as desired and ignited. They descended upon the shaft just as the remaining half of the fuse "went off." Mutsellard's head and face were lacerated and mashed and one of his legs frightfully torn. Mutsellard died soon after, sustaining a loss of both hands, both eyes and other serious injuries.

This was nearly two miles from Moabtown and several miles from any human help. But Wade and bleeding from his wounds Mutsellard managed to crawl in getting his carcass down to a saw mill, a distance of three miles where he converted a cracker into a sheet of flames to attract the attention of the citizens of Verdure who responded to the fiery signal for assistance. The doctor who was summoned would be compelled to ride horseback over a rough country for nearly 100 miles and he is at probability did not reach the injured men until today. The chances for the recovery of Mutsellard seems slight. He was one of the original owners of the mine and Messrs. J. R. Hinman and Frank D. Kimball, of this city, were his partners and owners. They are greatly grieved at the misfortune sustained and have ordered a physician and surgeon by wire from Grand Junction to wait upon the unfortunate men.

The Geyser-Marion Litigation.

Matthew T. Gibbons et al, began legal proceedings in the Third district court late yesterday afternoon against the Marion Gold Mining company, seeking thereby to collect $10,000 for certain ore extracted from property which the plaintiffs claim belongs to them. It is set forth that plaintiffs are the owners of the West Grand mining claim in the Camp Floyd mining district, and that as a result between planes drawn northward vertically on the exterior boundary lines, there are large quantities of gold bearing ore. They allege that the defendants between September 1, 1894, and January 1, 1895, continuously and wrongfully, and by force of arms trespassed upon the said property and extracted ore to the value of $10,000, and that they are liable for trespassing. Hence plaintiffs sue for judgment in the sum of $10,000, and order that they be perpetually enjoined from further entering on the said property.

Judge Merritt issued a temporary restraining order and the defendants will show cause on January 26th.

For Boarding Sewer Bands.

David W. Wiggins and Joseph M. Wiggins are suing Wm. Hawkins and Hanson, Wilkerson & Martin, alleging that in June, 1894, the plaintiffs entered into partnership with the second and Hawkins under the firm name of D. W. Wiggins & Co. to run a boarding house of the gravity sewer boats. The collection of boarding the crews thereon was made, it is alleged by Hawkins from the sewer commission, Hanson, Wilkerson & Martin, to whom firm Hawkins was a partner, for supplying the crews with food wages. It also alleges that board was supplied the crew working for Fox, Walsh & Co., Walker Bros. & Co., and Hawkins & Co., and that amounts were supplied to others, all of which had been paid for by the men and the money is held by the above defendants in this suit. It is alleged that the plaintiffs were to have three-quarters of the profits and Hawkins the other fourth and that the amount due the plaintiffs is about $1,000, wherefore plaintiffs prayed for judgment that the partnership be dissolved, that a receiver be appointed and that an accounting be had.

Another Probate Court Appeal.

The petition from the probate court in the matter of the estate of Walter O. Sawyer, deceased, was heard before Chief Justice Merritt yesterday afternoon and the case submitted.

Walter O. Sawyer died August 11, 1889, in Salt Lake City, and by will left his estate to Franklyn O. Sawyer, Joseph N. Sawyer, William L. Sawyer and Mary G. Sawyer. Walter O. Sawyer appointed Archibald Snow executor, but he died before the will was admitted to probate and one of the legatees, Joseph N. Sawyer, predeceased Walter O. Sawyer, leaving Franklyn O. Sawyer, now Mary G. Wade, the only surviving heir. Isaac M. Wardell was appointed administrator and filed the inventory of the estate on June 13, 1889, in which the value of the estate was appraised at $1,695.50. An order of the court was made on July 31, 1891, authorizing the administrator to sell all the personal property, at private sale, according to the said estate, to the highest bidder for cash, without giving any notice of sale.

The petitioners in the case, William L. Sawyer and Mary G. Wade, now represented that a long time has elapsed since said order was made and that the administrator has never reported to said sale to the court, nor has all said have conformed, that the said administrator has neglected and refused to file his proper accounts as required by law and has taken no further steps to convert said estate and that there is no reason why said estate should not have been settled long ago, wherefore the petitioners pray that a citation issue requiring the administrator to render a full account of his administration. The appeal of the administrator was argued by the proponents and the petitioners took an appeal from that decision.

Mr. Walsh, the administrator, gave testimony to the effect that he had been responsible in advance of the personal property and that some of the horses, cows, sheep, etc., had died. The accounts of the administrator were also in dispute.

BEAVER WOOLEN MILLS.

Report of the Superintendent for the Year 1894.

The Beaver woolen mills appear to be in a flourishing condition, according to the following report, which is taken from the Chronicle:

AN OPINION OFFER.

Recently Mr. J. D. Thomas, of North Dakota, visited the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, and after carefully examining the country located in Winchester, he writes to Mr. V. Hawkins, Land and Immigration Agent, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Baltimore, Maryland, as follows: "I have been in nearly every state and territory of the United States, and am frank to say opinion that this valley surpasses all other sections in the Union. The lands are low in price, and produce profitable crops. I thank you for directing me here, and submit these seeming pleasant and profitable homes to locate in this country."

Eczema Never

Should be used in attempting to cure that very disagreeable disease, eczema. As eczema originates in impurities in the blood, local application can do no permanent good.
