Fred Gaylor, the shooting bitcher, of S. A. Gaylor, were held up at the Lowerre and Lagoon, Thursday night by three masked men, who relieved them of $17 and $24, respectively. The men were fairly outfitted and the middle was masked, the middle man being the leader. The robbers ordered their victims to ground. The officers of Lowerre are confident they know the men, and are on the ground in short time to look. The robbers have been traced to Lagoon and therefore will be arrested. Mr. Gaylor is a business stockman. He was taking the cash of which he was relieved to the cow ranch in the mountains from the Indians.

Jacob Aron, the wood handwriting expert of New York, has arrived in San Francisco to be a witness in the Botkin case, in the Pickle case. He is to have analyzed that Mrs. Botkin was the author of the anonymous letters to the Pickle family, and that she was also the author of the anonymous letters to Dr. J. P. Gardner. Mr. Aron's opinion is based on comparison the evidence given in Santa Ursula before the coroner in Mr. Gardner's case, and the genuine letters in the Pickle case. Mr. Aron's opinion is based on
