TOOELE COUNTY STEALING.

A Bold Hold-Up at Richville and Doors Carried Off at Garfield—Fenstermakers Suspected.

After a long and tedious search Sheriff John McKellar of Tooele county has succeeded in unearthing evidence which will no doubt open up some of the mysteries that have long remained unsolved in regard to wholesale stealing which has been going on in his and surrounding counties.

About a week ago Mr. C. S. Wilkes, part owner of cottages in the vicinity of Garfield Beach, discovered that three or four cottage doors had been wrenched from their hinges and carried off to parts unknown. He accordingly reported his loss to the officers and they immediately started in pursuit. In the meantime a hold-up was reported at the Richville grist mill, in which night miller Herbert Vowels had a rather rough experience. It appears that just as Mr. Vowels was preparing to shut down the mill, two men drove up in a light rig, and one of them stepped into the mill and ordered four hundred of flour. After getting the flour they proceeded to drive off without paying for it, when Mr. Vowels told them that if they didn't pay the $7 due for the flour he would bring his Winchester into play.

The men, seeing that Vowels intended to put his threat into execution, rushed at him, knocking him down and choking him so that he could not summon assistance by his cries. Then they secured a rope and bound him hand and foot, and, after beating him unmercifully, fled.

Mr. Vowels was in this position for about three hours, when the day miller appeared and severed the cords with which he was bound.

After telling his story to the day miller, word was sent to Tooele and the deputy and his sheriff were soon on the track. They at once came to the conclusion that the doors and the flour had been stolen by the same parties and therefore were on the lookout for both.

From the description given of the men, and the direction traveled, it was thought they might find what they wanted at Fenstermaker's ranch, and accordingly they set out in that direction, reaching the place very early in the morning. On knocking at the door, Amos appeared and recognizing the sheriff, asked him what he wanted at that very early hour. The sheriff read the warrant to him, after which Amos invited he and his deputy inside giving them perfect liberty to ransack the house and at the same time assuring that there was no flour there.

After a thorough search of the house, the officers turned their attention to the yard, and looking into a wagon box, the stolen doors were found nailed together and imbedded in hay.

When asked where they came from the old man Fenstermaker said that his son Perry had bought them from a stranger in Salt Lake. Perry was looked for but could not be found and it is supposed that he smelled a rat and skipped.

The officers think that Perry has gone to his ranch in Grouse creek and that in all probability the flour will be found there. Further developments will be awaited with interest.

Home From the South.

The News had a pleasant call today from Elder Archibald Bevan, of Levan, Juab Co., who has just returned from the Southern States mission. He left this city on July 20, 1893, and after arriving in Chattanooga was assigned to labor in the Kentucky conference, where he has labored for the past two years, the last four months of his time being spent in presiding over the conference. Elder Bevan reports the mission in a thriving condition, and says that the Elders are enjoying the best of health. He was released on the 20th inst., and returns to his home after visiting friends in Tooele county, where he formerly resided.

What Will the Sheriff Get?

The county selectmen and attorney will meet next Saturday at 11 o'clock to consider the subject of paying the sheriff for his services, and they will probably examine his books. This subject came up before the county court at a session held recently, but was not settled at that time.

GAY DAY AT GUNNISON.

How the Memory of the Pioneers Was Observed in the South of Sevier County.

The people of Gunnison in all loyalty to Pioneer Day, held a celebration which will long be remembered by all who participated. At 9 a.m. the procession, consisting of representatives of the ward organizations, wagons showing the products of 1847 and 1895, twenty-seven little girls representing the counties of Utah, together with the brass band, paraded the principal streets and then assembled at the Relief Society hall, where a program of orations, songs, recitations and musical selections was rendered. In the afternoon there was a children's dance in Johnson's hall, after which outdoor sports were indulged in, such as foot and bicycle racing, tug-of-war, orange fishing, etc., the successful contestants being handsomely rewarded for their efforts in that direction. James Fjelsted acted as marshal of the day with A. B. Christensen and Brigham Jensen as assistants. The affair was a success in every respect and reflects great credit on those who constituted the different committees.

PROVO.

PROVO, UTAH, - JULY 25, 1895.

Death of Mrs. Arrowsmith.

A sad death occurred yesterday at Castella. Mrs. Albert Arrowsmith, of Payson, with a number of other Payson people was spending Pioneer Day at the Springs. While Mrs. Arrowsmith was bathing in the pool she was seized with an attack of hemorrhage of the lungs and had to be assisted from the water by friends. She was placed on a lounge and given such attention as the circumstances admitted, but expired in a short time. Mrs. Arrowsmith was a young woman about 30 years of age, and leaves a husband and a little girl about nine years of age. She had suffered from lung trouble. Her husband, Elder Arrowsmith, is on a mission in England, which increases the sadness connected with the death.

Accident to Mrs. Philander Brown.

This morning about half past 10 o'clock a number of runaways happened in front of the postoffice. A horse and buggy belonging to Mr. James Currie, of Salt Lake City, was hitched in front of the office. Mr. Currie's horse broke away and started two other horses hitched to buggies. Mr. Currie's horse was caught almost immediately and again tied. One of the others was also caught a short distance away, but a horse belonging to Mrs. P. Bauder Brown of the Second ward ran about a block north when it turned and came back at a rapid rate, running between the Currie horse and the hitching post. The post was broken short off near the earth, and Mrs. Brown, who was standing near it, was thrown to the ground. Several people called to her to get out of the way before the horse came up but it seemed that she was too frightened or excited to be able to do so. She was carried into the Provo Book and Stationery Co.'s store and Dr. Simmons was summoned. He found that she had sustained a fracture of the right leg. Mr. Currie's hand was cut, but not severely, and a little boy was thrown to the ground by one of the runaways, but he escaped with a bruised face. The brown horse was caught about a block away and the only other damage done was some injury to Mr. Currie's harness and buggy in the last collision with the brown horse.

Notes.

A number of Indians came down from Salt Lake to spend the Twenty-fourth. They camped near the depot and one of them became jealous of his squaw, whom he claimed was receiving undue attention from another Indian. He was under the influence of liquor and chased the offending woman around Major Berry's barn and threatening to take her life. Marshall Knight arrested the dusky American and placed him in jail. This morning he was released as he was in a more peaceful frame of mind. He told the marshal that "white men in Salt Lake heap good, give Indian lots of beer."

Examination of the books of the First district court discloses that the retired clerk, Mr. John W. Beasley, has sufficient due him, in fact three or four times more than is needed, to pay the amount he owes the Territory, as clerk. This consists of fees uncollected and his compensation for services as clerk from the government, which has not paid him anything since he assumed the duties of clerk. The many friends of Mr. Beasley will be pleased to learn of this favorable condition of the affairs of the office.

A petition is being signed for the pardon of Jasper Davis, a young Provo man who was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary this spring, for forging his deceased wife's name to a deed for some land. Mr. Davis was married a second time shortly before he was tried for the offense above mentioned. Many good citizens are aiding in securing his liberty, believing the experience he has had will be sufficient to cause him to act as a law abiding citizen in future.

The Jordan dam board of referees convened again this morning to hear further evidence in the case, after a week's recess. A continuance was taken till next Monday, and in the meantime attorneys and litigants are endeavoring to effect a compromise which will close the long drawn litigation.

Judge King went to Salt Lake City this morning to render decisions in some cases that came up before him there.

Ezekiel Dean and Lillie Seiman, both of Payson, were married this morning by Judge Dusenberry.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, - JULY 24, 1895.

That Fatal Accident.

Coroner Joseph Baker, assisted by W. N. Thomas, David Reese and W. H. Thatcher as a jury, held an inquest on the body of James W. Butler, killed in a railway accident as already reported in the News's telegraphic columns. The engineer J. A. Wellington, the fireman, section foreman and two section hands testified that the deceased came to his death by being struck in the side by a piece of the handcar, as it flew in splinters after being struck by the locomotive, between Downey and Swan Lake on the Utah & Northern Railway. The evidence was to the effect that the whistle was frequently blown, the road at that point being full of short curves. In turning one of these the handcar was observed a few rods distant, but too late to avoid a collision. Every man jumped from the handcar, but for some reason Butler did not get off the track until knocked off by a flying piece of the car. The train men were released from all responsibility by a verdict of accidentally killed.

Notes.

One of the circus employes lies in jail, charged with fornication, having been caught in the commission of the offense by the police. His partner in crime is a rather simple-minded girl, who admitted having been guilty with another employe of the circus, who gave her a counterfeit $10 bill. The trial will be held tomorrow.

A bad washout occurred in Logan canyon last night, just below the Hercules Power Company's plant. It washed out the road so badly that several canyon excursions planned for the 24th had to be postponed. The Logan and Richmond canal burst its banks and carried so much dirt into the river, that it was dammed for a time, overflowed its banks and washed out a considerable piece of the road.

Two stacks of hay and several sheds, belonging to Willard Cranney, of Petersboro, were destroyed by fire on Monday afternoon, and it required great exertion on the part of a bucket brigade to save the large barn. The fire is supposed to have been smoldering since Saturday, when some old straw was burned near the stacks.

Several quiet celebrations of Pioneer Day are being held. The Second, Sixth and Seventh wards made elaborate preparations and are thoroughly celebrating the advent of the Pioneers. The stores and banks are closed, and the town presents a holiday appearance.

The Rock Springs band, which was engaged to play on the 24th at Wellsville, serenaded Logan yesterday. Its members are Wellsville boys who are at present engaged at Rock Springs, but who came home to celebrate.

The members of the U. N. G. speak highly of the hospitality of Hyrum people during their recent encampment there. A fancy drill and sham battle was given by the boys on Saturday.

Wallace's circus gave two fine performances here yesterday. The menagerie is the best that has been seen here for many years.

The primary conference held here on Saturday brought many little people from outlying settlements.

Fred Turner is recovering from the effects of the fearful kick received by him last Friday evening.
