REACH UTAH ON FRIDAY

Will be Late in the Afternoon of That Day When the Twenty-Fourth Arrives.

LEFT COUNCIL BLUFFS THIS AFTERNOON.

Red Cross Workers Will Meet at Mrs. Hiles's Tomorrow to Prepare for Their Return Home.

The Twenty-fourth United States Infantry, according to telegraphic advices received by the Oregon Short Line, left Council Bluffs at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The regiment is traveling in two sections and will be about forty-eight hours en route from the Missouri River to Salt Lake. The railroad people here are of the opinion that the troops will arrive here at from three to five a.m. on Friday. There are others, however, who think they will not get here before Saturday morning. This latter time would be more satisfactory to the people of Salt Lake, who are preparing to give the boys a rousing welcome.

Mrs. Priscilla J. Hiles, president of the Red Cross society, has called a meeting of the members of that society and all interested in the work, to assemble at her residence at 10 a.m. tomorrow to make final and definite preparations for the feeding of the soldiers on their arrival. All committees are expected to make complete reports of their labors at that time.

LADIES' FURNISHING HOUSE.

Fine Millinery and Dress Goods Display at the Women's Co-op.

Fine feathers make fine birds, is an old and commonly accepted aphorism. But it is no more true than that pretty goods make a pretty store or there that handsome, neat-fitting gowns and natty millinery effects enhance the beauty and personal appearance of woman. Everyone admires a well dressed woman, and in this practical age hard working women generally, she is all the more admired if her garments are the product of home industry. That they can and should be in a principle that has long been taught in Utah. What can be accomplished in this direction is really wonderful when all the conditions are considered.

Just now the ladies of Salt Lake may see an evidence of this truth at the Women's Co-op. on First South street between East and West Temple streets. This store, as the name implies, is owned and managed exclusively by members of the gentler sex. Its increasing popularity and constantly growing business testifies to its success both from a financial and artistic point of view. This week the institution has its annual fall opening, and the great number of ladies who have visited it show that a large business has been done. The store is crowded daily by purchasers whose eyes have sparkled at the picturesqueness of the gowns presented, while their ears have listened to sweet strains of music discoursed from a rear room. The place is prettily decorated, being brought prominently into view by columns. Feathers and innumerable fancy furnishings artistically arranged in the show window. This work has been done with a view to patriotic feeling, as red, white and blue are the chief characteristics of the design. But the whole store bespeaks the taste and intelligent effort of the management, and both the millinery and dress making departments should be visited to be appreciated.

Idaho Weather and Crops.

The weather of the week ending Monday, September 26, 1898, was generally clear and warm, though a few of the nights were frosty. Light showers were reported in a few places but these did not affect vegetation materially. All crops are practically matured, with almost invariably good yields. The grain harvest is over and threshers are busily engaged in disposing of the crop. Farmers are turning their attention to fall plowing. The ranges are dry but still in fairly good condition for stock.

Ready for the Duck Season.

The festive duck hunter is getting his gun well oiled and his ammunition in shape for the opening of shooting season, which occurs Oct. 1st. The birds are quite plentiful this year, Bear's Lake, West Lake and Williams' being the home of the larger varieties, while the mouth of the Jordan seems to be the feeding grounds for the minutiae "teal." The mouth of the river has been "corraled" by the New State gun club, who will charge each members it

SCROFULA

It is Foul Blood's Advertisement

But It is Soon Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Yes, Scrofula, if anything, may be called the advertisement of foul blood. It is the scourge of the world—offensive, painful, debilitating, stubborn and well nigh unendurable.

Outward applications do not cure, they only drive the difficulty to new quarters. Emollients may palliate, they cannot abolish the evil. There is but one sure way out, and that is to eliminate the taint from the blood.

There is one remedy that can effect this, and it is the only one that, so far as we know, has almost invariably succeeded—even where the system has been poisoned by long years of taint, and the ravages to be repaired are tremendous. That remedy is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Read this:

"My daughter was afflicted with impure blood. There were running sores all over her body and they caused her much suffering. We tried medicines that were recommended as blood purifiers, but could not see that they did any good. A friend told me about Hood's Sarsaparilla and I began giving the girl three bottles. The result was that she was perfectly cured after taking a few bottles. She has had no symptoms of scrofula sores since that time." MARIETTA M. SMITH, South Middleboro, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the best—in fact the One True Blood Purifier. Insist upon Hood's; take no substitute.

Hood's Pills act harmoniously with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

AMUSEMENTS.

The attendance at the Theater last night on the presentation of The Master gave evidence of the fact that it is not a question of the versatility of Henry Miller, that the public wishes to Southerners, for that will be taken for granted, but the fact that this talented actor's field is the romantic and sentimental drama and any divergence from it does not meet with approval, from the standpoint of box office receipts. Though last night's performance was an artistic success, such as a rarely seen; The Master fell on old ties, one that has been oft repeated. A father who gives honor on the altar of ambition at the moment, who throws his children nothing but scheming of his will, whose actions should, without speaking, be at his command. The result is not hard to guess. The children are banished from the home because they dared to have independence or partners for life, against the fathers' wishes. The maternal sympathy turns to the children, with the result that the father is left a wreck. Driven from the home that had sheltered him in happiness a quarter of a century or more, Business reverses come to the old man in his loneliness. Then follows sickness and the old man's pride is humbled, his family returns and there you are. Mr. Miller's old man is a study, in many respects he resembles those who profit themselves upon elderly sires and whose reputations have been made in them. The Master, under his hands, revives a very clever and artistic presentation. It makes of him the pivot upon which the scenes and incidents of the play revolve, but after all he is not in his element. Henry Miller's sense is synonymous with youth and sentimentalism and he has not reached the age when it is necessary for him to sketch elderly roles, though in them he may excel. Salt Lake audiences are not alone in this opinion for The Master, in Miller's repertoire, is now receiving high for heavy attendance, when presented anywhere though much appreciated by the class to which it appeals. This afternoon Hearthstone was given for a matinee and tonight a return to romance from Mr. Miller's part, will be made in the production of A Marriage of Convenience, which will close the engagement.

Hoyt's A Milk White Flag puts in Thursday night next at the Theater and a rather heavy advance sale was made yesterday, which is evidence of the fact that this musical comedy will have very well entertaining the drain on the public purse for the Miller engagement.

Two Married Men, which will be Manager Shubert's opening attraction, Oct. 3rd, is a splendid farce comedy in three acts, by Geo. H. Ellison, formerly of the Grand Stock company here, and is one of the best of the kind of the year. The lines of the play are bright and witty, the characters well drawn, and the act abounds in the boisterous and ludicrous situation that keep an audience in a continuous roar of laughter from the rise of the curtain to the end of the play.

THE STOCK YARD CASE.

Suit for Return of Fifteen Thousand Dollars Invested Up Again.

POSTPONED TILL NEXT SETTING.

Mining Company Minority Stockholders Ask Redress of Their Grievances—Other Court Matters.

In the case of E. M. Cannon vs Fred Simon et al, which came up before Judge Cherry this morning, the attorneys for the defendants argued for a continuance on the grounds that A. H. de Hinjosa was unable, on account of sickness, to be present at the trial. Judge Cherry granted the continuance till next setting of cases, to be tried without a jury, and at defendants' cost.

This case has been dragging along for more than a year, and the end is not yet by a long ways, according to all appearances. The suit was begun for the recovery of $15,000 and interest, this amount having been invested by T. H. Camp and G. W. Wiggins of Watertown, N. J., in the stock of the Union Stock Yards company, a contract being entered into by plaintiff and defendants which provided that in consideration of the investment of $15,000 in treasury stock the company would guarantee the investors for a period of five years a yearly dividend of 8 per cent together with interest on the investment added. Shortly afterwards Mr. Wiggins disposed of his half interest in the stock for $7,500 to Mr. Camp, and said Camp took the entire stake. The complaint, which is filed by the executrix of Mr. Camp, in having died prior to the suit, sets forth that neither Camp nor his executors have ever received a dollar in dividends, and that in the first place the stock had no value whatever. The contract dates from March 21, 1891, and the foundation on the contract are asked to refund the money. The bond, which was approved by Farley L. Wilcox, was signed by the following well known gentlemen, all of whom are made parties to the suit: Fred Simon, James F. Woolman, John A. Groesbeck, C. E. Wantland, W. H. Hoxie, A. L. Norton, Samuel McCurdy, M. P. Mason, John M. Thurston, Thomas L. Kimball, Thomas Sevile, S. C. Chambers, Joseph M. Rosser, F. L. Williams, A. H. De Hinjosa and John White.

Brown, Henderson and W. C. Hall are the attorneys for the defendants.

HEARD AT THE POLICE STATION

Sufferers from melancholia or a bad case of the blues, would do well to take a stroll into the police station some winter morning (when warm comes) and sit around with the boys for an hour or so. If they don't leave the building feeling that life hath its joys, to be renewed than ever, then the writer will do what's right by them—either give them a million or guarantee the payment of it whenever wanted.

It was quite chilly this morning, and for the first time in several months a number of the boys had gathered around the stove, for or no for, for a discussion of war, politics and kindred subjects. George Steele was there and led in the discussion. He had just company from Gillespie, Ed Davis, Patrol Driver Cannon, Desk Sergeant Smith and Sol Kimball. No, Abe Randolph wasn't there. These gentlemen formed a merry party, and if there was any subject they couldn't discuss, why it wasn't worth discussing. Some how or other, war was not mentioned, neither politics, but the west was ever more enrolling than either—that of the sale of alcoholic liquor, sandbagging and otherwise.

Of course, we didn't hear all of the discussion. Why shouldn't he, when he is the only man about the institution that knows anything about such things? And the manner in which he handled his subject was indeed a caution. No, he didn't do a thing those who opposed him. He simply sat in chair with both feet and were crossed each and every man, that he knew anything—that is, of the subject at that time. Mr. Sand (George Steele for a nickname) seemed to have more than the whole lot of them, but it was only "for a time," as Mr. Kimball handed him in even better shape than it was with the Williams can baby Willard Sam.

Mr. Kimball was telling of the authority he had gained the last few weeks for a morphine chest operation. "Why," said he, "it has even gone so far as to cause doctors and leading physicians to come to me and ask how I effect a cure, what sort of medicine I use, what proportion of the drug I give them, how often, how the patients take it, the most effect it has while being administered, how much the treatment costs, and a thousand and one other questions that none, of course, but the skilled in the matter know about."

"Aw, some off," broke in Steele, with a disgusted look. "You don't know no more about morphine fiends and their cures than I do. Why, I'll bet you don't even tell the name of the medicine you give them. It might be side-genuine for all you know. One dose might kill them, and the doctor go to jail for manslaughter. I've used more morphine fiends in my time, than you could count in a week, and I'll bet I can cure them quicker and with greater effect than you ever dared to."

"Then it was Hiram Gillespie's chance. "Sol," said he, "that medicine you give those people, is nothing more nor less than a decoction of soap tea with a little cayenne pepper mixed in. I believe your soap has more to do with the cures than the medicine, and I bet you can put it down that it is not alone your recognized skill as a physician that has to do with the cure of those people, but you go and tell the whole story to your patrons. Give them a chance of the first thing you know they'd have you boycotted, and put a stop to the practice of your profession."

Smith, Davis, Cannon and the rest said nothing. Sam had the floor and his right to speak was recognized. He was exhausted, however, so the morphine business, and struck another chord. "Why," said he, "do you know that I have a cure for drunkenness? Yes, I have, and I'll give it away free, if comes from the south, but I have the agency for this state. It is simply this: Take a confirmed drunkard and when he is drunk give him a good drink, say five a 25-gallon tank of good whisky. Give him a big tin cup, or apply a funnel for that matter, and every time he wants to take a drink it is absolutely necessary if he would be cured, that he apply its equivalent in water, keeping the barrel all the time full. If he drinks enough water, the man will quit drinking in a month and never more return to the cup that cheers." And all hands laughed.

TRENTON DEMOCRATS.

The State Convention Called to Order by Chairman G. O. Pratt.

PRINCIPAL FEATURES OF PLATFORM.

Concludes with Declaring that an Expression of New Jersey Endorsements to Defend "Algerism."

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 28.—The Democratic state convention to nominate a candidate for governor was called to order in Taylor Opera House at noon today by Chairman R. O. Pratt of the state committee. The delegates numbered nearly 1,100. Chairman Pratt recommended William Dorsey of Paterson as chairman of the convention. This choice was ratified by the convention. In the course of his address Mr. Dorsey said: "I only has the state been in all its history high auspicious domination of Republican rule. It has witnessed during the last three years by the Republican state committee? It would seem as if the legislature were created to record their desires. Congress power has focused itself upon the state. With the state committee it dominates the legislature. Its shadow has fallen across the judicial tribunals. Its influence has been felt under the fostering care of Republican officials has grown to be a menace. It has set aside every adage made the foundation of equal taxation. We permit our rights for equal taxation. This has ever been the policy of the Democratic party."

The platform agreed upon by the state committee for submission to the convention's committee on resolutions makes state issues the principle features, but contains an endorsement of the national principles of the party. The first paragraph is as follows:

"We, the representatives of the Democratic party in state convention assembled, reaffirm our devotion to the great and vital principles of the Democratic party as national issues interesting, however, that the coming state campaign should be fought out on state issues and for the redemption of the state from Republican extravagance, corruption and misrule."

A paragraph is devoted to thanking the soldiers of New Jersey who volunteered for the Spanish-American war. The present federal administration is charged with being responsible for the horrible results of mismanagement of government officials in the management of the war after these appalling results had been brought to President McKinley's notice. Attention is called to the fact that not a single example has been made of anyone guilty of this incompetency.

The platform concludes with declaring that an ex-governor of New Jersey and a member of President McKinley's cabinet presided at a Republican state convention and undertook to defend "Algerism."

Death of Mrs. A. Belmont.

New York, Sept. 27.—A private dispatch from Paris announces the death there last night of Mrs. August Belmont, who went abroad in poor health accompanied by her husband and son about two months ago and was unable to leave with them when they returned several weeks ago.

German Baptists' Convention.

St. Louis, Sept. 28.—The triennial conference of the German Baptists of the United States and Canada has been concluded after a session extending over a week. It has been decided to meet in 1901 at Berlin, Ontario, Canada.

The much debated question of the German Baptist Orphanage in Louisville, which has been practically owned by one individual, was settled. The association gave up the institution to individual control and appointed a new orphanage committee of one from each of the seven conferences. This committee will see that the interests of the orphans are taken care of in private families.

Reports were heard from the homes for old people at Chicago and Philadelphia and the philanthropy was discussed. The young people's society of the denomination reported greatly improved. In place of President, Dr. D. B. Shungt of Buffalo, N. Y., was president, M. Henry Donner of Pittsburg, and Rev. H. Wagner of New York city, corresponding secretary, Rev. Henry Globe of Pittsburg.

Butterfly Carnival.

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Sept. 28.—Governor Smith was in charge of the annual home at Leavenworth for many years. Early of the morning of June 14th, 1897, the governor's residence on the home grounds at Leavenworth was wrecked by dynamite. The governor, his wife and daughter, were in the house but escaped with minor injuries. The crime was traced to a veteran, Joseph W. Oliver, a member of the home, and he was convicted.

Governor Smith's administration at the Leavenworth home was marked by many troubles. Through the efforts of Richard W. Ryan, then a member of Congress from Kansas, the management of the home was investigated by a committee from the House of Representatives. Many charges were preferred against Governor Smith but the investigation resulted in nothing more than the transfer to the governorship of the Pacific branch, where he was accepted today.

THE GENTLE ART.

Corbett and McCoy Get Together in a Hotel and Then They Call a Doctor.

New York, Sept. 28.—The pugilists, Kid McCoy and James J. Corbett, whose match has been broken off, met in the lobby of the Gilsey House today. McCoy knocked Corbett's hat off and dove, while Corbett was held by his friends, kicked Corbett in the groin. He then ran out of a side door down from the crowd. Corbett was taken to his room and a doctor summoned.

In one end of the entrance were McCoy's friends, among the Hoffmeister club and his other men. They were talking excitedly. Corbett's second, Gray, and Corbett walked up to do likewise. Gray, after acknowledging the salute, said to Corbett:

"I don't think you want to fight."

"What's that?" demanded Corbett.

Gray repeated the remark and Corbett loudly said that he was ready to fight McCoy anywhere and at any time.

"I'll fight him now and right here on the street," said Corbett.

McCoy, who had been listening, stepped up to Corbett as the latter spoke and knocked off his hat. Several of Corbett's friends, wishing to disturb, held him, and as they did so, Corbett rushed for the man and shoulders McCoy landed a kick at Corbett, which struck him in the groin. Corbett bounced over in pain, unable to try to get at McCoy, who, as soon as he had kicked Corbett, ran back to the side entrance of the hotel. Corbett tried to follow but he could not do so and he was persuaded to go to his room.

INTENSE SUFFERING

From Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.

Instantly Relieved and Permanently Cured by Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A New Discovery, but Not a Patent Medicine.

Dr. Bidwell relates an interesting account of what he considers a remarkable cure of acute stomach trouble.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The use of the new discovery, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

He says: The patient who a man who had one hundred and twenty years with dyspepsia. Everything he ate seemed to sour and create acid and gases in the stomach; he had pains like stomach ache in the back, shoulders and limbs, fulness and distress after eating, poor appetite and loss of flesh; the brain became affected, causing palpitation and sleeplessness at night.

I gave him powerful nerve tonics and blood tonics, but to no purpose. An experiment finally brought a fifty cent package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at a drug store and gave them to him. Almost immediate relief was given and after he had used four boxes he was to all appearances fully cured.

He was not given any medicine or any watery things, so bloating after meals, the appetite was vigorous and he has gained between 18 and 12 pounds in weight and looks healthy flesh.

Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are advertised and sold in drug stores yet I consider them a most valuable addition to any physician's list of medicines, as they are perfectly harmless and can be given to children or invalids or in any condition of the stomach with perfect safety, being harmless and containing nothing but vegetable and fruit essences, pure pepsin and golden seal.

Without question they are the best, most effective cure for indigestion, biliousness, constipation and all derangements of the stomach however slight or severe.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are made by the Stuart Co. of Marshall, Mich., and sold by druggists everywhere at fifty cents per package.
