NEWS OF THE WEST.

A Skeleton in a Tree Sixty Feet Above Ground.

BOY DROWNED WHILE BOATING.

Killed in a Wyoming Mine—Boy Accidentally Shot—Stopped by Storms.

Sacramento, Cal., has an ordinance forbidding spitting on the sidewalk.

The registration list of Alameda county, Cal., shows 38 voters there who are natives of Utah.

C. H. Wheeler, a book agent who lived at 457 McAllister street, San Francisco, dropped dead on Monday morning just in front of the Hearst building. It is supposed that his demise was due to some affection of the heart.

The steamer Howick Hall sailed on Monday from Tacoma, Wash., with the largest cargo sent from the sound this season. She is the first steamer to carry a cargo of grain to the United Kingdom. Her cargo amounts to 3,600 tons.

Guy Stowell, aged 20, with three other boys was boating on a pond on the Suey ranch, near Santa Maria, Cal., on Monday, when the boat was capsized. Three of the boys reached shore with difficulty, but Stowell sank immediately.

Helena, Montana, Herald: Perry Holter, the thirteen-year-old son of A. M. Holter, was the victim Saturday of another's carelessness in handling a loaded weapon which may result in the loss of one of his hands. With other Helena boys he was hunting in the Prickley Pear valley.

Wm. Beckford, in the employ of Captain Marcus Harlos on the wharf at Lomo, Cal., went out on Monday in a small skiff from the wharf to unfasten a schooner from a buoy. Beckford released the schooner and started to return. The sea was rough and a big wave overturned Beckford's boat. He floundered around for some time and then sank. The body has not been recovered.

Brief details have been received of a coal mine accident near Buffalo, Wyoming, in which Martin K. Hart and Mr. Bullock of Buffalo were killed. The accident was caused by the roof of the mine caving upon the men. Hart was the son of the late Col. Hart, United States army, and Mr. Bullock was a Johnson county stockman.

Boise, Idaho, Statesman: Traffic on the Short Line was stopped Saturday due to the bridges over the Payette and Weiser rivers. Temporary structures have been in use pending the building of the steel bridges, material for which has been delayed in delivery. The sudden thaw sent the ice floe down the streams with the result that the undermining of both bridges was weakened and trains could not run for twenty-four hours. It was necessary to drive a lot of new piling before it was safe to cross.

Mrs. Joseph Grismer (Phoebe Davies) had a narrow escape from death on Sunday night at the Columbia theater, Sacramento. In the play the villain, Richard Stockley, is caught by Mrs. Grismer strangling James Sullivan, played by Mr. Grismer. The villain drags Mrs. Grismer to the elevator, throws her under it, closes and locks the door so that she cannot escape, gives the signal for the elevator to descend and leaves her to be crushed to death. The elevator is lowered by means of a cable passed around a windlass which is turned by two men behind the scenes. There is no limitation as not that elevator is weighs 2,000 pounds. The actor who is to come to the rescue forgot his cue and the elevator was allowed to descend upon the prostrate woman, whose body was crushed, but no bones broken. She bravely insisted in finishing the play, after reviving. The audience realized that Mrs. Grismer was in real danger. Women fainted, men clambered on the stage and the whole house was in uproar.

Charles Ryan, who lives on Fox Ridge, about ten miles west of Ukiah, Cal., tells a remarkable story of the discovery of a human skeleton while out hunting the other day. Early in the morning Mr. Ryan got his shotgun and went out into the woods to kill a squirrel for dinner. He soon discovered a fine large gray squirrel, which ran up into the top of a tall fir tree. Mr. Ryan fired at the animal, which fell from its perch, but did not strike the ground. It was somewhat puzzled at the failure of the squirrel to drop, and examined the tree carefully, thinking perhaps the little animal had fallen and lodged in the branches. After carefully scrutinizing the fir for a few minutes he discovered what appeared to be a large nest, made apparently from the dead branches of the tree, and on looking more closely, saw the bushy tail of the squirrel hanging from the nest. Ryan determined to have the squirrel at any cost, and cutting down his gun took off his coat and prepared to ascend the trunk of the fir. The squirrel had lodged about sixty feet from the ground and it was with some difficulty that the climber was reached. Finally, however, the branch in which the squirrel was lodged was reached, but Ryan was horrified to discover that the object he had mistaken for a nest was in fact the skeleton of a human being. The skeleton was seated astride of a branch of the tree, close up to the trunk. One of the legs had fallen off, but other wise the skeleton was in a fair state of preservation. It was tightly lodged in the tree, and bore evidence of having been there for many years. Ryan secured his squirrel and descended the tree. He did not disturb the skeleton, as he is undecided as to what is wrong in the ground. He intends to present breaking it, if it is possible this discovery clears up the mysterious disappearance of Andrew Nubrick, a pioneer settler of Cow Creek, who was supposed to have left the country seventeen years ago. He left his cabin one morning in the late seventies and since that time has never been heard of. It was thought by Mr. Ryan that the skeleton is that of a man who was either driven to the tree for refuge (it is well beaten), who, being lost in the woods, ascended the tree for observation and fell, dying in the crotch of the tree.
