THE EVENING NEWS.

Monday, - - Sept. 8, 1873.

THE QUARREL.

And so you have quarrelled with David?
And, hide it as well as you can,
I know at this moment you're thinking
That he is a horrible man.
He has no regard for your feelings,
He knows he has got you your beaux,
And each has confessed to the other
That both were much better apart.

You think of the days of your courtship,
When David was thoughtful and kind,
Is all your relations to hopeful,
To all of your failings so blind;
But let us sit down in the twilight,
And talk o'er the subject awhile;
Before you take leave of the meadow,
'Tis well that you pause on the stile.

'Tis likely that David is fretful,
And careless at times, it is true;
His business absorbs him too closely,
But is he not working for you?
So when he comes home in the evening,
Quite silent and thoughtful and queer,
Just let your heart keep up its singing,
And pretend you don't notice, my dear.

For just as a scratch on the finger
Will heal if you let it alone,
So many a trouble or grievance
That David or you may have known,
Would soon have been gone and forgotten,
And left not a scar on the heart,
Had either been fond and forgiving,
Had you never supposed you could part.

EASTERN NOTES.

Two young girls were outraged at one of the questionable social club picnics on North River, New York, lately.

The actors of the Paris Theatre Francais are talking of coming over to show us the true French acting in a four months' tour.

The supreme court of Georgia has decided that notes, the consideration of which was slaves, are valid, by declaring the law forbidding the vitality of judgments based upon such notes unconstitutional.

Laura Keene denies that she is dying of consumption, and asserts that she has not enjoyed better health for the last nineteen years than at present.

A correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal, writing from Madison county, Kentucky, gives his interview with Cassius M. Clay. It is evident Mr. Clay is become a chronic grumbler. He thinks all things are going to the devil, pretends to believe that Greeley would have been elected President had fraud not defeated him, and says this republic is doomed to destruction.

The New York Tribune, not unjustly, plumes itself upon having obtained the news of the fight with the Yellowstone Indians forty-eight hours in advance of the Government. It was a very creditable feat in the way of journalistic enterprise, and was effected by engaging the services of two hunters to traverse the rough and dangerous wilderness, pushing forward 150 miles through every difficulty and peril to the nearest telegraph station. We like the tone of the Tribune in saying that it "finds this method of conducting a newspaper far more agreeable and profitable than quarreling with our neighbors."

FOREIGN NOTES.

An English gentleman who recently visited the conquered French provinces states that the hatred of the Germans is growing stronger every day. Even those who can speak the German language fluently never use it, but speak French in the loudest tones.

In England they are making an attempt to introduce green corn among the table vegetables. The effort is looked on with so much favor that a letter advocating it has been admitted into the city article of the London Times, from J. C. Brehaut, who was the reporter of class 86 in the Paris Exposition. He says that, having tried twenty different varieties of maize, he thinks "that, after two dissimilar seasons, it is fairly admitted to be a success."

After numerous experiments under the auspices of the Societe des Agriculteurs de France for creating artificial clouds to protect the grape vines from frost, a success is reported from the south of France. The clouds are produced by the smoke from small cauldrons of coal-tar, placed a short distance from each other, and about 250 yards from the vines, in the direction of the wind. As soon as the grass shows signs of frost, the cauldrons are ignited, and allowed to burn until an hour after sunrise, changing them if the wind changes. The means is reported as entirely efficacious for the purpose for which it was discovered.

— A Western railroad conductor, after twenty years experience, concludes that he had rather carry twenty thousand men passengers than to have one lone, lorn female board his train.

VICTORY! VICTORY!!

THE WILSON Sewing MACHINE TAKES Five Medals AT THE WORLD'S FAIR at VIENNA.

Three separate dispatches from Vienna combine to signal as vindicating to whatsewing machine has won the first honors of the great Exposition. The first was a special to the New York press on Monday, and was as follows:

VIENNA, August 15, 1873.

The Wilson shuttle sewing machine was awarded the grand prize at the Vienna Exposition for being the best sewing machine. HAYNOR.

The second was the regular Associated Press report, compiled from a long special to the New York Herald, in which the "Wilson Sewing Machine of Cleveland, Ohio," was named as among the exhibitors which received "gold medals for merit," the highest class of premiums awarded at the Exposition.

The third was a private cable telegram received yesterday from Vienna, by Mr. Wilson himself, which was as follows:

VIENNA, August 19.

You have received five medals—two for novelty and three co-operative.

The meaning of this is then explained to be that the Wilson Sewing Machine has received the gold medal as the best sewing machine, and a second gold medal as the machine best manufactured for the money, combining the best mechanical workmanship. Besides these, a special medal was given for excellency of workmanship on the machine, another for the best sewing on leather, done by the Wilson, and the other medal for best articles made by any sewing machine, done on the Wilson.

This sweeps the entire board. Not only has the Wilson Sewing Machine been pronounced the most capable and efficient sewing machine in the world, but we have also, in both dry goods and leather, the specimens superior to that of all other sewing machines, as verdict at a World's Fair, where all the leading sewing machines of the world have competed, forms a fitting close to the contest which for months has been waged between the Wilson and its competitors. It is the most complete triumph ever known in a sewing machine contest.

The above is taken from the Cleveland Leader, of August 20.
