Among the distinguished visitors who have arrived in Salt Lake recently are United States Senator Marion Butler of North Carolina, chairman of the Populist National committee and wife, who reached here yesterday, attended services at the Tabernacle and looked over the city. It is said, however, that they usually called to pay their respects to him. The senator is on his way to the Yellowstone National Park. From there he will return home via the Northern Pacific.

SERVICES AT THE TABERNACLE

Elders Iverson, Talmage and Jensen the Speakers Sunday Afternoon.

Reference to Missionary Work and the Good Being Accomplished by Returning Elders in the Field.

Elder Joseph E. Taylor of the Stake presidency presided over the services at the Tabernacle Sunday afternoon, August 28, 1898.

The choir sang the hymn:

Hark! the herald angels sing,
Glory to the new born king.

Prayer was offered by Elder Rodney C. Badger.

The choir sang the anthem:

Light and truth.

Elder Heber C. Iverson was the first speaker. He began by declaring he was not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, for as Paul had stated, it was the power of God unto salvation, unto all those who believed. The speaker testified that he was sent out by the Gospel, said the speaker, but was restored to the earth in this dispensation, and was being proclaimed throughout the nations of the earth by over 1,000 humble Elders called to do missionary work. He said it was a Gospel made up of three principles constituting the Gospel preached anciently and those called to proclaim it were ordained and set apart by revelation of God and were sent out to bear their testimonies to the nations. The speaker said he was but of God, and with the assistance of his power, would roll on and fill the whole earth. The Elders leaving there, he said, were doing a good work and were drawing in the honest in heart to partake of the Gospel and its blessings. The speaker said that as a generation, said Elder Talmage, were also doing a good work. Their remarks being attended with results and evidences following the testimonies of the brethren. They were listened and attentive, and in speaking to the people the attention given, there was such as to make audible and clear every word that was uttered. The title of opposition towards Mormonism, said the speaker, was beginning to turn in the world. The devotion of the Pioneers and their followers to the Gospel which they had received, seemed now looked upon with honor, and the success attending their labors in building up the wilderness, and making it blossom as the rose, was opening the eyes of the world and making believers of those who formerly disbelieved. This is a very great extent melting the icebergs of prejudice that have existed for so many years.

Referring to the travels of the Elders without purse or scrip, Elder Talmage felt to deprecate the fact that in Great Britain it was not followed as it should be as much so. He believed that greater blessings would follow the missionaries in their administrations of their world put their whole trust in the Lord. True, in that land, most of the people were in a state of circumstances, but God was still in evidence and would provide for His servants on notice what conditions existed. Blessings had been promised unto those who would put their trust in the Lord, and this promise would be made good if the Elders would act in accordance to it. Friends would be raised up to them on the right hand and on the left and those who would bless the missionaries would also be recipients of heavenly blessings.

Elder Talmage felt not to criticise those who had gone into the mission field to preach the Gospel. They were evidence in their labors among the people and a friendly rivalry existed among them, as to which Elder or set of them could show the best results, the greatest number of families visited, the most tracts distributed, and the greatest amount of good being done among the people. The work in Great Britain was progressing, and the Gospel was being carried by a set of humble and energetic young men.

Elder Andrew Jenson addressed the congregation. He said that the people were in traveling in the different mission fields, had been similar to that experienced by the speaker in Utah. The Mormon Elders were full of zeal and energy. They had gone out from the different stakes of Zion to bear to the people repentance, and their demeanor was generally such as to gain for them many friends, which came from the ranks of their most bitter enemies. The labors of the Mormon Elders were prompted by the same spirit which characterized the work of the Apostles of old and even Jesus Christ himself. They were not merchant to return good for evil and did so. They endeavored to see those who hated them, to do good to those who abused them and spoke evil of them.

Elder Jenson spoke of the results following the promulgation of the Gospel. He said that the destiny of the work of the Lord and believed that the day would come, and that shortly, when the world would be opened up wherever the Gospel could be preached unto every nation, kindred, tongue and people. The Lord was at the head of His work. He was exercising His affairs upon the earth, and though somewhat mysteriously, the purposes would be accomplished, effects of the labors given to the ministry, notwithstanding. The choir sang the anthem:

O Babylon's Church.

Benediction was pronounced by Elder Joseph E. Taylor.
