TWO INTERESTING SESSIONS HELD.

J. E. Dooly President, C. A. Baldwin Vice President, Morrison Clerk, H. G. Whitney Treasurer.

The Board of Education held two interesting sessions last night, the first by the old for the transaction of regular business, and the second by the new for initiation into office of the recently elected members and for the further purpose of effecting a permanent organization.

This was brought about as follows, the vote in each case being unanimous: John E. Dooly, president; Charles A. Baldwin, vice president; J. R. Morrison, clerk; H. G. Whitney, treasurer. P. L. Williams continues as attorney, and the personnel of the new board is as follows:

First Municipal ward — Rudolph Ahlf, J. J. Thomas.

Second Municipal ward—S. B. Westerfield, Wm. J. Collins.

Third Municipal ward—John E. Hansen, George L. Rywalker.

Fourth Municipal ward—J. B. Toronto, Marcellus S. Woolley.

Fifth Municipal ward—Charles Baldwin, John E. Dooly.

The retiring members were A. J. Pendleton Jr., William Nelson, Walter J. Beatie and Richard W. Young.

Considerable routine business was transacted, a brief transcript of the proceedings being as follows:

Applications for positions as teachers were received from S. Allen and F. J. Kocher. Referred.

Territorial School Commissioner Lewis submitted a communication, stating that under the law he had made apportionment of Territorial school money, as published yesterday, for the distribution arising from the three-mill tax for 1894. The school population is 74,471; the amount of the December apportionment was $152,000, and the per capita apportionment $2.05. Filed.

Clerk Morrison submitted his financial statement of the receipts and disbursements of the board of education for the first half of the present school year—from July 31st to December 31, 1894, showing:

Receipts from all sources	$174,[illegible]
Total disbursements	18,[illegible]
Balance	$ 15,[illegible]
Cash on hand, per treasurer's report: December 31, 1894	$ 12,[illegible]
Warrants outstanding	2,[illegible]
Balance	$ 15,[illegible]

Filed.

Treasurer Duke submitted his report for the month of December, showing receipts in the sum of $90,[illegible], disbursements amounting to $[illegible], balance on hand at the close of the month, $[illegible].

The contract for calcimining the privies of the Lowell school was let to John Caisson, the contract for changing radiators in Fremont school to P. J. Moran, and the covering of steam pipes in the Bryant to F. D. Lyon. Miss Hallie Cox and Miss Porter were employed as teachers at the Jackson and Tenth schools respectively. Miss Bond, teacher in the Sixth grade was ordered promoted and W. L. Emery was employed to succeed her.

A communication was received from P. L. Williams, attorney for the board, accompanied by correspondence relative to the expense of the recent school election, in which he advises there is no legal obligation upon the part of the board to pay the bills that have been presented, and they were accordingly entered returned.

The letter accompanying, from Chairman Leisher, sets forth that the Board of Education was made responsible for the expenses by virtue of the Commission having made an order when the call for the election was issued, and again, that the Commission is without funds with which to pay the expenses.

The finance committee recommended that the bills be not paid by the board, but that they be forwarded to the Utah Commission for payment. Adopted.

Clerk Morrison reported that since the previous session of the board he had received $174.[illegible] from Patrick L. Williams, the sum so due the Board of Education for sewer connection on E street, and that the sewer had been placed on the credit of the building fund. Filed.

Appropriations were made aggregating $2,[illegible] and the labor was announced closed, whereupon Clerk Nelson was presented with a handsome jewel in recognition of his valuable services as president, while the retiring vice president, Mr. Young, was presented a fine silver pendelcer and gold pen. Both officials made generous acknowledgements and President Nelson announced that the life of the old board was at an end.

After a brief season of social amenity, A. H. Westerfield was called to the chair as temporary presiding officer and the organization as heretofore related was brought about with the utmost harmony and good feeling. Mr. Dooly, the new president, announced the appointment of the following committees on rules, who he stated would meet at 10 o'clock this morning: Baldwin, Thomas, Toronto, Rywalker and Dooly. The board then adjourned until this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

SOJOURNING IN TURKEY.

Elder Robinson Relates Some of His Experiences in that Land.

Elder E. W. Robinson, writing from Aleppo, Syria, in a letter dated November 26, 1894, published in the Millennial Star says:

I have had quite a varied experience in Turkey—sometimes easy, sometimes hard, but always interesting. Leaving Beyrout I went with Brother Clark down to Haifa, a city located at the foot of Mount Carmel. There I spent a week with the Saints, and very much enjoyed reading the account of I Kings of Elijah's cave and his experience with the prophets of Baal on that historic mountain; I visited the cave in which tradition says he took refuge, and brought thereform a rock. I also visited the tombs in that vicinity supposed to be the work of the Phenicians, or Philistines.

Going down we went ashore at the "strong" city, Tyre, known in history as the mother of Carthage, and the home of the expert workmen whom King Hiram sent to assist in the building of Solomon's temple. But perhaps it is best known for having so long withstood the attack of Alexander the Great. It was formerly on an island, but the masonry which that monarch constructed from the mainland to the city converted the island into a peninsula. I viewed with great interest this fallen city, for it is now only the shadow of its former greatness. Returning, I was alone and went ashore at Sidon (Zidon), another place which figured conspicuously in early times. Brother Cook remained in Haifa, and he is indeed in good hands, for the few Church members there are excellent people. I enjoyed my visit with them very much. I was alone in Beyrout about six weeks and then proceeded to this city. The journey occupied about thirty-six hours by steamer and three days by land. It is inland from the northeastern extremity to the Mediterranean sea.

At Alexandretta, my trunk were all taken from me with the promise that I should receive them here at Aleppo. I have had a complaint with the Admiralty commenced and he says he will try to procure them. He does not speak English. Aleppo is old and quaint, and its history resembles a great fair. The city is beautiful, even from the outside it is very appealing, but within it is filthy and dirty. This is a characteristic of Mohammedan Constantinople, Beyrout is the pearl of Marmora, is quaint and picturesque, but within it is little more than magnificent.

In Aleppo there stands a large citadel hill on the top of which are the ruins of a castle. The edge of the mount are very steep and overlaid with flat slate rocks, to make attacking difficult. It is probably three hundred feet high and requires about fifteen minutes to walk around it. It certainly reminds one of the days when kings took every precaution to protect their own lives. Around it runs a moat which was formerly filled with water. Nobody seems to know anything in particular about it. The streets here do not exceed ten feet in width and along these go mules, horses, camels, dogs and people. The camels all carry feed and it is very an interesting place to visit. I have seen no large stores, not even large enough for the purchaser to step inside while buying. Each merchant occupies an area in the wall, and sits on a mat at the entrance smoking his narghile. He can reach most of his wares without getting up. They always ask just about twice the amount they expect to sell for. And if the buyer wears a hat instead of a cap they ask even more. I am quite an oddity here, there being very few foreigners. I am said to be like unto Ahasuerus. When I go along the street they look at me as we would one of them in Utah. If I stop to buy, I am immediately surrounded by a curious crowd, most of whom try to take a part in the bargain. There are 200,000 people here and I am never intrusive in their narrow crooked streets, though sometimes hot. When I first arrived I was the guest of a gentleman here, and was ushered into Turkish family life at once. No table, no chairs. All sit around a large tray, on the floor, each has a spoon and all eat from one or two pans containing boiled wheat or rice. I could not spread my limbs and sit comfortably as they do, and was granted the use of a cushion, to do which of course it was necessary to "suspend the rules" of the house. One is not expected to wear shoes in the house. You may know the manner of people in a house by counting the pairs of boots and shoes at the door. But the head is not uncovered when in worship. Beds are spread down each day, at night I should say, and taken up each morning. It is necessary to keep the floor clean for it is their table, chairs, bed and what not!

There are no only members of the Church here, but a set of fine young men, poor but humble and earnest. Services are in Turkish. All are fair speakers. I administer the Sacrament each Sunday. We hold three meetings every week. A few days ago I baptized a young man and several are investigating. One is reading the Rising Reformer while I write. He is an Armenian. My health is excellent and I am thankful to the Lord for it. I very much enjoy hearing my brethren and sisters "sing the gospel." Will go from here to Aleppo, to see the Saints there. It is three days by horse.

That Mining Suit.

The trial of the mining suit mentioned in these columns yesterday—Henry Doulston and Frank Hoffman vs the Solaris Consolidated Mining Co. and Liberty E. Hodges—was resumed before Chief Justice Akerlind this morning and will not finish today. Plaintiffs are owners of a half interest in mining claims adjoining the Galena property, and they claim $[illegible] as their share of the proceeds of ore extracted from their claims by the Galena company from 1888 to 1890. For the defense it is set out that the vein from which the ore was taken has its apex in the Galena claim and that the plaintiffs have no interest in it. The taking of further testimony has been in progress today.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, JAN. 3, 1895.

In New Quarters.

The postoffice has been moved to its new quarters in the H. K. Thatcher block. The new office is a credit to Logan. The various departments are commodious and convenient for the use of the postmaster and his assistants, and the public being in charge of the woodwork is all of the best quality of Oregon pine, with hard oil finish. It is expected that at the end of the fiscal year Logan will come into the list of second class offices.
