COLORADO'S ATTEMPT

To Point For Indians Upon Utah Already Rejected Us.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH,
Dec. 29th, 1891.

Hon. Fred. Simon, President Chamber of Commerce, City:

Dear Sir.—As a member of the Irrigation Congress, gathered under the auspices of the Chamber, and as one of many others who worked so very hard to make a prosperously successful such, I desire to address the Salt Lake Chamber of Commerce in reference to a public matter, which will soon need the united attention of our citizens, when, if no action be taken, much of the prospective good results of the Irrigation Congress will be lost.

I refer to a bill now before Congress, introduced by Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, proposing to appropriate a sum of land in Southeastern Utah for occupation by the Indians now in Colorado. Also a bill proposing to open to public settlement two tracts of lands off the eastern boundary of the Ute reservation in eastern Utah.

Without going into details it is, I think, a misconception proceeding that in view of the prospect of getting the wild lands, we want to get as much as we can. We don't want our neighbors to find their Indians upon us as they can have their south moon land for the use of their State.

Then as regards these lands in eastern Utah. It is said, I don know how true, the aspinal deposits are worth millions of dollars. Now if these lands be kept until they belong to the Territory, look at the east benefit to our people.

I do not know what reason those Colorado legislators have given for the proposed removal of Indians to Utah, but the people of Colorado have, by their own acts, recently shown that there is plenty of room within that State for honors. For instance, an immense effort has been made for park reservations in a belt in western Colorado, 200,000 acres, a game preserve, for the use of the Denver people. Also a 200,000 acre I where the Indians came from who are now in eastern Utah.

That any sense of right or justice can be looked for from Colorado, in this numerous is doubtful, but rather a reckless and selfish indifference to the rights of a weaker neighbor. The thing is a scandal and needs ventilation.

I address this to you because the settle is interested on the session of the Irrigation Congress.

Yours truly,
PAUL THUMEN.

TO THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Natural Gas company has sent the following to the Chamber of Commerce:

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH,
December 28, 1891.

Hon. Fred. Simon, President of the Chamber of Commerce, Salt Lake City, U. T.:

Dear Sir—Recognizing the agency of your honorable body as the most potent factor in the upbuilding of a community's and development of a community's resources, by the direction of capital to this and inquiry thereon, we deem it of paramount importance at this time to enlist your earnest co-operation with the local enterprise of this city, for has heretofore through all the stages of risk and more very serious obstacles.

On February 4th, 1886, "The American Natural Gas Company," incorporated under our Territorial laws, and located a forceful entry in the city's environment. It came lately on real work a period of active, gladdening exploration for natural gas, and from then until 1890, it has deservedly labored the plan of operation outlined by its directory—not hampered, but in pursuance of a mature, rational scheme, evolved by sound scientific acumen a careful study of our field and analysis of the phenomena indicating the existence of natural gas.

The fidelity with which these plans were wrought out is perhaps the best explanation of the success which has followed the work and of its promoters. That they have results all to success no unbiased observer of the results upon the ground has or can deny, a well of 1,000 feet, of excellent quality, holding up its periodic pressure and continuous flow, is the substantial answer to those who are in question this and every other enterprise.

It is with well founded confidence in the purpose of your honorable body to further every legitimate interest of this city that we address you this entertainment, especially inviting your attention to the fact that we present for your examination and endorsement, no visionary or speculative scheme, but per contra, a well defined body of natural gas, which has stood the favorable criticism of experts from Pittsburgh, Kansas, Pa. and other noted fields. We further beg leave to remind you that this discovery, affecting as it does the interests of every inhabitant of Salt Lake Valley, has been secured wholly through the energy and persistence of the incorporators of this company and absolutely without assistance of any kind or nature from any other source.

The question now suggests itself, is not the time opportune for your honorable body to take some decisive action looking to the placing of this overtowering resource before the country at large, to the end that it may attract and receive the encouragement it deserves, insuring its broadest development, and that the immeasurable value and benefits may be felt co-extensive with the limits of our inter-mountain commonwealth.

Respectfully submitted,

THE AMERICAN NATURAL GAS COMPANY.

How to Remove Splinters.

Drop a half dollar in lemon juice or peppermint essence and roll it in the mouth. A splinter of fresh pine rolled about in the mouth gives great relief to some people.

How to Remove Stains from Black Silks and Diagonals.

Lay the garment on a table and with a flannel wet in ordinary vinegar rub the shiny places well until they have disappeared. It does not matter how wet the garment gets. Hang it up in the shade to dry, and the shiny gloss that made a new garment look old will have disappeared, leaving it as fresh and crisp as if just from the store. The same piece will never require another treatment. This is only suitable for black silks and fine black diagonals.

How to Freshen and Restore Velvet.

Velvet can be washed if soiled and restored to its first freshness by putting a hot iron bottom upward with a wet towel folded in several thicknesses over it and then passing the velvet with the pile up over it slowly back and forth until the steam has lifted the pile to its proper position. After the pile is all raised lay the velvet on a smooth place where nothing will touch the pile to flatten or crush it down and leave it to dry and when dry it will be like new.

How to Debate Surplous Questions.

First of all, agree with your opponents as to the title determining the meaning of words. If you cannot settle that, you can never settle anything.

"Why," asks Judge Ritchie, of Nova Scotia, "should this country be made an asylum for American criminals?" We give it up.

HERE'S A 1893 HOUSE.

It Is Simple and Small, but It Is Quite Sensible.

(Copyright, 1891, by American Press Association.)

A friend, whose income is very small, asked me the other day if I would build a house for him for $500. This I felt I could do, and should like those men. They are of a story and a half outlook, which does not look cheap, and in which the rooms are well arranged and are of comfortable size.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

A broad veranda extends across the front and along the side of the reception hall and the dining room. The reception hall is midway both as a parlor and sitting room. The windows in the side consist of glazed doors, hinged to open, so that they may be opened to the floor in hot weather or to a warm climate.

The front doors are also glazed, in order to give an abundance of light. The entrance is designed with a seat upon the floor under the window above the landing, which, with an ornamental wood rail and balusters, give a very pretty effect to the room. An archway separates this room from the dining room, and is designed for a bookcase or cupboard, or a sideboard or sliding doors could be used if desired.

The kitchen is provided with a portable range, which has reservoir for hot water and a cast iron sink supplied with cold water only. A broad shelf on a level with the fifty board of the sink extends the entire length of the kitchen, with the cupboards beneath fitted up with shelves and inclosed by doors. A portion of this space is used as a pot closet, the remainder for stores, etc., with a space reserved behind the kitchenette for a small refrigerator. Above the hood shelf the space between the kitchen and the rear wall is fitted up with open shelves, the remainder which is used as a china closet, is fitted up with shelves and inclosed by glass doors. The wainscot throughout is protected by a plate projecting shingled wood. In the second story are three good sized chambers, the size of the front and middle rooms being indicated by crossing the bolder lines over the rooms and in front of each gable window, which lights up the attic and assists in giving a picturesque effect to the exterior.

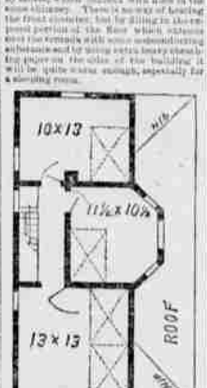
The front chamber also is provided with five full width of the veranda, and is lighted by six large windows in front and second window on the side. It is true that there seems to be a portion of the sitting and sleeping rooms be called a full story in height, but to some good judgment in planning and decorating them they will be made handsome in appearance as well as comfortable. There is special care taken in planning and the building stands upon four posts 4 ft. 6 in. in the ground. The spaces between the posts are filled with good work or boarding for keep out the cold in winter, and may be removed to allow a free circulation of air in hot weather. The cellar is provided with a furnace, for which connect with flues in the central chimney. The rear and middle chambers in the second story can likewise be heated by stoves, which connect with flues in the same chimney. There is no way of heating the front chamber, but by filling in the upper portion of the flue which stands over the remark with some noncombustible substance and by using extra heavy sheathing paper on the side of the building it will be quite warm enough, especially for a sleeping room.



SECOND FLOOR.

The framing timber and rough sheathing lumber used in this cottage are of sources, the exterior finishing lumber, window guards, doors, window frames, sash, etc., are of white pine, and the veranda floors of yellow pine. From the sketch it will be seen that the roofings to the veranda and the dormer of the attic are yards and very simple, yet there is a refinement about the whole which marks the character of a house for a home. This house can be built for $500.

A Preventive of Croup.

We want every mother to know that croup can be prevented. True croup never appears without a warning. The first symptom is hoarseness, then the child appears to have taken a cold or a cold may have accompanied the hoarseness from the start. After that a peculiar rough cough is developed, which is followed by the croup. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse; a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will prevent the attack. Even after a rough cough has appeared the disease may be prevented by using this remedy as directed. It has never been known to fail. 50 cent and $1 bottles for sale by Z. C. M. I.
