HE NOW DOUBLES.

The "Tribune" Again Sued for Libeling Attorney Arthur Brown.

DAMAGES $50,000 NOW CLAIMED

It Arises Out of an Article Published Last Sunday, After the Trial.

Encouraged by the success which attended him in the Third district court last week, in his libel suit against the Salt Lake Tribune, Attorney Arthur Brown has now lodged another action on similar lines against the same newspaper. It was placed on file this afternoon, and is founded upon what is claimed to be another libel on Mr. Brown contained in an editorial which appeared in last Sunday's issue. The defendants named are Patrick H. Lannan, the Tribune Publishing company and William Nelson.

The complaint begins by setting forth that the defendant Lannan is president and general business manager of the company and the defendant Nelson the managing editor. It then recites the fact of the city election having been held on February 5, 1894, and that the plaintiff was a duly appointed judge at poll 2 in the Fourth precinct. The allegations which formed the subject of the recent hearing against the Tribune are into again gone into, including the Hogney-Smithing charges. Reference is then made to the result of the trial in which plaintiff was awarded $5,000 damages, and the complaint then proceeds: Thereupon in the daily issue of the said newspaper, as proprietor by the said defendants as aforesaid, on the 25th day of November, A. D. 1894, the defendants said each of them, falsely, wickedly and maliciously published of and concerning the plaintiff, and of and concerning the doings of said plaintiff as such judge of election aforesaid for said Poll No. 2, in said Fourth precinct in Salt Lake City, at the election of 1894, and of and concerning this plaintiff as plaintiff in said action of libel and slander as aforesaid, against the said Tribune Publishing company, a certain false, malicious, scandalous and defamatory article and libel, thereon and thereby referring to the plaintiff by name in a certain part of which said article and libel there was and is contained the following false, malicious, scandalous and defamatory words of and concerning the plaintiff, and of and concerning his acts as judge of election and of and concerning him as plaintiff in said action of libel aforesaid, to wit: "He (the plaintiff meaning) connived, advised and promoted the rejection of the votes of duly qualified and legal voters who were on the registration list. He (the plaintiff meaning) did this willfully, and not in the exercise of an honest judgment." And in a certain other part of which said libel and article there was and is contained the following false, wicked and malicious language, to wit: "His (the plaintiff meaning) action was partisan in the extreme and overbearing almost past endurance. He carried the rights of citizens and it can easily be proved that he illegally threw out the votes of men undoubtedly entitled to vote." That thereby and by said publication the said defendants and each of them intended to and did charge this plaintiff with corruptly, maliciously and knowingly rejecting the votes of duly qualified electors and voters at said Poll 2 in said Fourth precinct in Salt Lake City, while acting as judge of election as aforesaid, and with corruptly and illegally refusing to permit only qualified voters to vote at said Poll while the said plaintiff was so acting as such judge of election as aforesaid. That he, said plaintiff, while acting as such judge of election as aforesaid willfully, illegally and corruptly violated his oath of office taken as such judge of election and thereby committed a felony. That this plaintiff while acting as such judge of election at said Poll 2, in said Fourth precinct, had violated section 26, of an act of the Legislature of the Territory, approved February 22nd, 1878, entitled an act for the registration of voters and further regulating the manner of conducting elections in this Territory," it being section 204, of vol. 1, of the compiled laws of 1888, of Utah Territory, and found in vol. 1, page 326, and was therefore guilty of the crime therein defined, to wit: a felony, and was liable to be sent to the penitentiary therefor.

That the said libel and publication and each and every charge therein, and each and every insinuation and innuendo therein is false and malicious, and is understood by of the said plaintiff, and was published by the said defendants and each of them well knowing that the same was false, and with the intent and intent and purpose of villifying, defaming and injuring this plaintiff, and was published to by each and all of the defendants.

That by means of said publication of the said libel, the said plaintiff has been greatly injured in his standing and reputation in Salt Lake city where he lives and in other places where he is known and was and is injured, exposed, and his character maligned and injured to his damage in the sum of $50,000.

Wherefore plaintiff demands judgment against said defendants in the sum of $50,000 and costs of suit.

THE COOKING CLASS.

Cereals and Stewed Meats the Subject of the Last Lecture.

The attendance at the cooking lectures is increasing at each meeting, showing that the ladies of Salt Lake are taking an active interest in the practical science of housekeeping. The subjects last evening were cereals and stewed meats.

Mrs. Ewing considers hasty pudding nutritious, inasmuch as it requires to be cooked two hours. To make it, moisten a cup of white corn meal with half a cup of cold water, then turn it into an open saucepan in which there is three cups of boiling water. Cook for fifteen minutes in the open saucepan, then turn it into the labor-saving implement—a double boiler—and cook for an hour and a half or two hours with a gentle heat. All stirring is to be avoided when possible, in cooking cereals.

Rolled wheat, rolled oats and rolled barley are prepared similarly and make excellent breakfast. They should be cooked in a double boiler for an hour and a half. Two measures of water to one of grain, salted to taste. Cracked wheat is far better than rolled wheat and though it requires three hours cooking it can be prepared for breakfast by being soaked the day before in a waitress, set aside in the double boiler and re-heated by putting boiling water in the lower part and setting on the stove until the mush is heated through. Farina and farinose are more quickly cooked, requiring only half an hour. Farina is cooked as follows: eight measures of liquid to one of grain (though it can be cooked in water alone, half milk and half water, is preferable.) When the liquid begins to boil scatter in the farina, stirring constantly.

Mrs. Ewing then showed by the class a young chicken and the explicit time her method for serving chicken, lamb, veal and beef were the same. Cutlets proper suitable for serving and put in the kettle in order, wings, drumsticks, giblets and hearts at the bottom, then dark meat, the breast meat on top. A young chicken will begin to be tender in a quart of hot water for two hours, for an old chicken more water and longer cooking is required. To make a nourishing gravy of the broth take a cupful of the broth, add a of piece butter, stir into it twice as much flour and a little cream if you desire and stir in the broth. Pour back over the chicken and it is ready for serving.

The recipe for the next lesson will be the making of soups.

AMUSEMENTS.

HOUSEKEEPER.—Tom Keene was always popular in Salt Lake, but the truth is that just now we were not ready for him. Last week's bill was too heavy a draught both on the purses and the spirits of our theater goers to make this week a propitious time for his appearance, and the consequence was that last night saw only a little better than a poor audience to greet his Richelieu. It was most regrettable, for our stage today, now that Booth and Barrett have made their final exits, boasts no actor who interprets the legitimate roles with the sensitiveness, force, keenness and intellectuality that is manifested by Tom Keene. Louis XI is his best part; Richard III his max best, and his Richelieu comes about third in the list. It is a grand interpretation all the same, and there is probably no one left in the world, unless Irving be excepted, and Irving rarely essays the part of the crafty cardinal nowadays—who can approach him in portraying the various shades of cunning, humor, weakness and strength that make up the character of Burwer's great creation. Thunderous applause greeted the big scene of the play, the lambdoing of the curse of Rome, and the other familiar episodes and speeches whose have passed into proverbs, such as "The pen is mightier than the sword," "There's no such word as fail," etc., were all recognized and applauded. An interesting feature was the restoration of a scene rarely given nowadays but belonging to the original, showing the struggle in the dungeon by which Francois repossessed himself of the missing packet of papers. The support, excepting Miss Lawrence, who is pretty and intelligent, but not great, is a distinct disappointment, surprising as it does no actor like Mr. Keene; and if he had inserted a line on the programme to the effect that he had taken his company on the world tour, the fact could scarcely have been more evident. Richelieu is a play so entirely and familiarly known in Salt Lake and all its characters have been filled here by such worthy exponents that one feel, that our very actors must know what De Mauprat, Dellarme and Joseph, at least, should be, and when these leading roles are not in authoritative hands, even a genius like Keene is handicapped by playing with them. Mr. Alexander, Mesdames Neuhaus, Bailey, Mr. Heming's Baldwin, stagy, and Mr. Ainscott's Joseph, soggy and leaden. The others were from bright Beckwith, the Francois and Rugard being the best features.

Tonight Louis XI, without doubt Mr. Keene's best impersonation.

Constitution Making.

Dr. Tanner will continue his treatment of this subject tomorrow evening, at 7:30, at 233 West First North street. All interested are invited to be present.

LITERARY NOTE.

One of the latest and strangest novels written by that versatile and vigorous French writer, E. Zola, is Lourdes, a book which deals with the marvelous cures of many ills to which human flesh is heir that have been noted in the place in Europe which furnishes title to the book. Lourdes is situated near the Pyrenees and is said to be visited annually by thirty thousand pilgrims, including over a thousand sick persons. It was in considering these afflicted people, and in conversing with some who had been healed, that E. Zola conceived the plan which he has carried out in this publication. There is much in the book which is instructive; most of it is interesting, and some might well be eliminated with profit to the general reader. Altogether, however, the book throws Zola has lost none of his powers of description and his imagination is not fettered.

The book is bound in P. Thompson's Society of Chicago, and was translated by Ernest Vizetelly.
