SPICKS OF SPICE.

A simple lay—An egg.

Knavery is the worst trade.

You never lose by doing a good turn.

Zeal without knowledge is fire without light.

Learning makes a man fit company for himself.

Wise men make more opportunities than they find.

Life is too short for its possessors to wear long faces.

Is a woman browbeaten when her hair is banged?—Boston Bulletin.

Bob Ingersoll's middle name is Green. Perhaps that's the reason he thinks he will never burn.

Taste in dress holds supremacy even in the far west. A miles City editor's wife wears red to match her husband's nose.—Bismarck Tribune.

Clerk of the court: "Owen Doherty! Are you Owen Doherty?" Prisoner, with a merry twinkle in his eye: "Yes, begorra, I'm owin' everybody!"

The Christmas Turkey has the wild wierd satisfaction of knowing that he doesn't feel half as bad to-day as some of the people who compassed his ruin.

Arkansaw Traveler: A pusson what ain't got no mussy fur a animal ain't got none fur a man, an' is only kep' from beatin' a man 'case he's a coward.

This is the best country in the world for a poor man. Except when he is is married he has a right here to do what he pleases with what he makes.—Hotel Mail.

German professor: "What a couple of bonny little children, dear Baroness! Twins, I suppose." Baroness: "You eave guessed rightly." Professor: "Are they both yours?"

'And so you have married a Mr. Penny,' said a gentleman to a lady of his acquaintance. 'No; Mr. Pence,' she replied. 'Ah,' said he, 'you have done better than I thought.'

"A woman's exchange" is to be opened in Washington. We are glad that the irregular practice of swapping wives is to be systemized at last.—Burlington Free Press.

A West Hill man was taken violently ill after eating a hearty dinner, but as he had dined principally off bologna sausage, the physicians are undecided whether he has trichina or hydrophobia.

'Is anyone waiting on you?' said a polite salesman to a young lady from the country. 'Yes, sir, replied the blushing damsel. 'That's my young man outside, he wouldn't come into the shop.'

'Oh, I am so glad you like birds. What kind do you most admire?' said a young wife to her husband. 'Well, I think a good turkey with plenty of seasoning,' said the husband, 'is as nice as any.'

No one pays any attention to signs marked "Dangerous" that others set up over thin spots in the ice of life; each one prefers to run his own risk of drowning rather than confess another wiser than he.

During the thick fog the other evening Gom Gom took a poor blind man by the hand and led him to his door. Telling the story to a friend on the following day, he cried: "It is terrible to be blind in such a fog."

'Has the cooking-book any pictures?' asked a young lady of a bookseller. 'Not one,' replied the dealer in books. 'Why,' exclaimed the witty miss, 'what is the use of telling us how to make a dinner if you give us no plates.'

An English traveler in America asked a captain of a lake steamer the name of the lake they were traversing. He replied, "Lake Huron." "Yes, I know," responded the Englishman, it is the lake I am on; but what is its name?"

"What a difference," exclaimed Popinjay, "there is between the boy and the man!" "Well, I don't know about that," responded Blobson, sadly. I was short when I was a boy, and I have been short ever since."—Burlington Free Press.

One of the greatest artifices the devil uses to engage men in vice and debauchery is to fasten names of contempt on certain virtues, and thus to fill weak souls with a foolish fear of passing for scrupulous, should they desire to put them in practice.

The 24-o'clock scheme is going to be a perfect bonanza for the man who comes home before daylight and tries to unlock the front door with a doughnut. His wife wont be able to tell whether it is to-morrow or the day before yesterday.—Burlington Free Press.

A writer—probably of the sealskin-sacque gender and unmarried—asks: "Did you ever watch a dear little baby waking in the morning?" We never did. The dear little angel always awoke so confounded early that we were not ready to open our eyes.—Norriston Herald.

A Texas woman chased her husband a mile and a half with a club for winking at the hired girl, and he only escaped her by climbing a telegraph pole. At latest advices she was sitting at the foot of the pole waiting for the crowd to leave so she could go up and see him.—Bismarck Tribune.

A gentleman who imagined that he recognized a lady friend on Austin Avenue advanced cordially and addressed her: "I beg your pardon," he said, "but isn't this Miss Greenleaf?" "No, sir," replied the lady, "my name is Redpath." "Ah, excuse me; I must be color blind."—Texas Siftings.

A really well stocked bar now offers to its victims a wide choice of poisons, viz: Alcohol, opium, tobacco, chloral absinthe, hashish, coca leaf, betel nut, intoxicating fungus and kava. No man need be without just the kind of misery best adapted to his taste and circumstances.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

When spelling is "reformed" she'll write:

"I'm sailing on the oshun,
The se is hi, no sale in site,
It filz me with emoshun,
But one "spell" will not change its name,
For she'll be se-sic just the saim!

"What does Mr. L. do, Addie?" asked a young lady of her companion. "He takes photographs," replied A., contemplatively. "Takes photographs? Why, I thought he was a stock-broker." "Well, he may be a stock-broker in the day-time, but he took my photograph out of the album the night before last, and won't give it back to me."

A young lady said to her beau,
"I'm glad the sweat's coming down seau,
Because now, I kneau,
We'll a sleigh riding geau,
So hail to the beautiful seau!"

The youth shook his head and he sighed.
"I'm sorry," he sadly replied;
"I can't hire a sleigh,
For I'm dead broke to-deigh,
And the pleasure to us is denighed.

Satisfactory.—A man returned to his home after an absence of two weeks. His eight-year-old son loudly welcomed him. "Is everybody well, Willie?" the father asked. "The weelest kind," the boy replied. "And nothing has happened?" "Nothing at all. I've been good. Jennie's all right, and I never saw ma behave as well as she has this time."

At a party the other evening there was a lull in the conversation, which made the host, who was inexperienced, somewhat nervous. With a view to relief, he asked a mournful looking man if he was married. "No, I am a bachelor,' stiffly replied the sombre man. 'Ah!' observed the host, warming upon the subject, 'how long have you been a bachelor?' There was another lull in the conversation.

Many a coarse rake wears fine hose.—Present time: In the sweet pretty soon.—The best Christmas slipper: Slip a dollar under the doorsill of your needy neighbor.—Of all the sad words we hear or know, the sadest are these: "Where is the snow?"—Ice-cream is now molded in the form of the Bartholdi statue.—Oh, Liberty, how many crimes are committed in thy name!—N. Y. Morning Journal.

Mr. Talmage last Sunday preached on the profound question, "What would have been the result if the rope that let St. Paul down from the city wall had broken?" The results would, no doubt, have been appalling to St. Paul. There is every probability that if such a catastrophe had happened, Minneapolis would have the monopoly on the upper Mississippi. Mr. Talmage should now endeavor to ascertain the exact position occupied by Moses at the time the light was extinguished.—Detroit Free Press.

SCIENTIFIC AND USEFUL.

Fish may be scaled much more easily if dipped for an instant in boiling water.

The weight of the female cranium is about one-seventh less than that of the male.

Sponging the head frequently with sage tea will prevent the hair from falling out.

To make green blinds that are faded look like new, brush them over with linseed oil.

There are over 900 volcanoes in the Indian Archipelago, according to the latest estimates.

To keep ice from windows take a sponge or ordinary paint brush and rub over the glass once or twice with a little cold alcohol.

Chewing gum is now made from wax obtained from petroleum. Two hundred pounds of wax, thirty pounds of sugar, and some flavoring will make about ten thousand penny cakes.

When putting glycerine on chapped hands, first wash them thoroughly in soap and water, and when not quite dry rub in the glycerine. This process will be found much better than the old one.

According to the Siglio Medico, the proportion of medical practitioners in different countries is as follows: France, 2.91 per 10,000; Germany, 3.21 per 10,000; Austria, 3.41 per 10,000; England, 6 per 10,000; Hungary, 6.10 per 10,000; Italy, 6.10 per 10,000; Switzerland, 7.06 per 10,000; United States, 16.24 per 10,000.

A recent official report says that the mercury in South Australia often rises in the summer to 115 degrees in the shade, and this has been exceeded on several occasions. In January, 1862, it reached 116 degrees, and in January, 1882, it was 180 degrees—only 32 degrees below boiling—in the sun.

The temperature in the planet Mercury is supposed to be seven times hotter than our torrid zone; therefore, if it is inhabited it must be by people very differently constituted from ourselves. It is believed that Venus has an atmosphere much like ours, and mountain peaks five or six times higher than Teneriffe, their sides bright with flowers, and birds with brilliant plumage.

There is no lead pencil; and there has been none for 50 years. There was a time when a spiracle of lead, cut from the bar or sheet, sufficed to make marks on white paper or some rougher abrading material. The marking material in the pencils of to-day is plumbago or graphite, a carbonate of iron. The carbonate is ground and mixed with clay, according to the degree of fineness required. It is then pressed into moulds and encased in wood.

The following advice is from the American Cattle Journal: Keep sheep dry under foot with litter. This is even more necessary than roofing them. Never let them stand or lie in mud and water. Let no hogs eat with the sheep in the spring. Give the lambs a little milk feed in time of weaning. Never frighten sheep if possible to avoid it. Some rye for weak ones in cold weather if you can. Separate all weak, thin or sick from the strong in the fall, and give them special care. Shear at once any sheep commencing to shed its wool unless the weather is too severe, and shave carefully the pelt off any that die
