The Cheyenne Leader learns that Wyoming wheat has won the first prize at the Worlds Fair.

Ephraim people are still jubilating over the entry of the D. P. V. railroad to that city.

It is expected to have the new Queen City roller mill completed and in operation for operation this Saturday evening, says the Mount Pleasant Pyramid.

Mrs. Nels Nelson of Spring City one day this week fell from a plum tree from which she was gathering fruit and sustained a fracture and dislocation of the wrist.

The wage question, which has been under consideration for the past month at Virginia, Nevada, has not yet been settled, but the miners will not submit to a 25 per cent reduction of their wages, as demanded by the managers.

Governor Colcord, of Nevada, has offered a reward of $200 for the capture of Harris, the escaped convict still at large. Watchers have been posted in several localities in the vicinity where it is expected he will come for food or horses.

The work of building a dam on Upper Salt river will, it is stated, begin during the month and be pushed to completion notwithstanding the hard times. It is one of the greatest reservoir schemes in the United States and will involve $5,000,000 of New York capital.

An unknown man on the noon trip of the ferry steamer Oakland at San Francisco committed suicide Wednesday by jumping overboard when the steamer was half way across. The steamer was stopped and a boat lowered, but no sign of the unfortunate was seen. He never came to the surface. The man is described as middle aged and poorly dressed.

The Mount Pleasant Wool and Live stock Commission Co. is now incorporated, its object being to handle wool, sheep, cattle, hogs and commodities. The officers are: President, N. S. Nielson; vice president, F. C. Jensen; secretary and treasurer, W. D. Cochran; manager, L. J. Jordan; attorneys, J. H. Seely, A. H. Nielson and John Daniels. The first shipment of about 200 head of cattle will be made Sept. 20th.

Says the Ephraim Enterprise: A personality is not to build a local telephone line from Milford to Beaver via Minersville, thence via Fremont Springs directly east to Keeler's ranch on the Sevier river, and from this point it is to follow the county road to Fairgrounds. From Keeler's ranch the line will almost follow down the canyon of the river Clear Creek and Junction. From here it will go east to Clear Fork, thence north through Grass Valley to Greenville and Mt. Sharon. If the personals in Weber county will support the enterprise, they will be able to talk to their Bobbit Valley friends by means of electricity.

A bold attempt was made on Wednesday morning by a masked man to hold up the proprietor of a Chinese restaurant at Oroville, Cala. The would-be robber waited a lady into the restaurant and entering the Chinaman's room, struck him in the head with his gun. The Chinaman jumped up and grappled with the robber, and in the scuffle the gun was discharged, the bullet passing through the Chinaman's figure and grazing his head. The Chinaman's cries attracted men from a neighboring saloon and the robber fled. There is no clue and no arrests have been made.

Lute Kellogg, a somewhat noted pugilist of Aspen, Colo., was shot and probably mortally injured at an early hour Wednesday morning by Otto Bessler, a workman at the Morrell Hardware company's warehouse. Bessler claims that Kellogg and two other young men were taking goods from the warehouse. Bessler, at the point of a gun, arrested Kellogg and started up town with him, en route to the jail. Kellogg attempted to escape when Bessler fired, the ball entering the back and passing through the left lung. After being shot Kellogg ran three blocks before being captured. The police have arrested Harrison and Kraft, who were with Kellogg.

The first accident of any serious nature since the Nevada county narrow gauge railroad, says a special to the San Francisco Chronicle, has been in progress a bridge gang, after midnight on Wednesday. Sells & Renfrew's circus, which played in Grass Valley, Cal., pulled out on the dropper route to Auburn, at which place it was billed to play yesterday. When near Herman station the engines and flat cars left the rails and rolled down an embankment, scattering cash and destruction on all sides. The train was running very slow, for it was going around a bend in the track, and slightly up grade. The supposition is that the brakes in one car became troublesome, and in getting on one side overbalanced the car. The first warning of danger was a small jerk, but the tired and sleepy members of the circus fell far least. It all until it was too late. The two reversing engines were turned completely over and lay partly down the grade. The iron rails were twisted and the track splintered to a pulp. Wagons and cages were totally smashed, and from beneath the cruel pressure came occasional cries of pain, mingling where some poor unfortunate actor was lying faint and bleeding. Special engines and private conveyances brought injured men and women to the Auburn hotel. All was in confusion and it was almost impossible to learn the names of the dead and wounded. Those who had worked side by side with them knew not the names of the unfortunate. The mangled bodies were placed on the train and brought to the Auburn depot, where the names and extent of the injuries of the unfortunate were learned. Andrew Hearst of Colusa, aged 17 years, killed; Hank Jones, property man, killed; Joseph Jones, canvas man, head smashed and wrist broken; Al Crowell, groom, head smashed; the broken and arms badly bruised; Bill Sparks, neck, leg broken and serious internal injuries; Tom Russell, legs badly bruised; Dan Coughlin, ex-driver, sprained about the hip; Joe Dailey, Reuben, bruised about the body. It is thought the only one seriously injured is Sparks, the clerk. Young Heafer was taking a free ride to his home when killed. He was not employed by any experts by the circus. There are four cars containing horses, tents, Hide and other animals were overturned. A lion was killed, the horse had to seek cover and it is thought other animals were injured. The damage to the engines and cars is considerable.

The outlook for women getting rich at mining pursuits is not good just. Under the rules of the mining companies a man who is injured and laid up in consequence is entitled to a weekly sum for support until he is well again. But a woman may take a policy and pay up her dues all years or any other length of time and if meanwhile she is hurt and blacked she can not get a cent from the insurance company. Only in case of her death is any accident money paid, and then it goes to her heirs.

One of Dr. E. E. Hale's best jokes is the story of a question asked by the prime minister of England among the poet Rogers with him recommending that Alfred Tennyson be appointed poet laureate. The prime minister wrote: "Who are not acquainted with the works of this gentleman, and will you be good enough to let me know whether he has ever written anything which would make it improper for a woman to read aloud to his poet?"
