His Friends Carry Him from Court to a Hotel where He Holds a Reception.

HAMMOND, Ind., April 3.—Albert Tucker, who shot and instantly killed James Conroy and William Conty, game wardens on the Tolleston hunting and fishing grounds, in John Harlin's saloon at Tolleston, March 21st, was acquitted last night, by Judge Carl Mollton, of the city court.

In discharging Tucker the court said that from the evidence introduced he was led to believe that the two men came especially prepared to beat somebody from the fact that they wore heavy [illegible] Prosecutor W. H. McMahon, of Crown Point, who conducted the case for the state, said that he believed that the knuckles were put on after the men were killed and was greeted by hisses, which were stopped only when the judge threatened to clear the court. After his discharge Tucker was borne in triumph from the court room on the shoulders of six sturdy men and taken to a hotel, where he held a reception. Prosecutor McMahon threatens to have Tucker rearrested on a charge of [illegible] The people generally [illegible] "justice had been meted out to the most brutal bullies that ever disgraced Lake county."

THURSDAY SET FOR HEARING

A Peculiar Case in Which County Recorder Lippman is the Defendant.

The trouble between Fire Chief Devine and Foreman Montague is not, it would seem, yet at an end. On Thursday of last week Judge Merritt issued a peremptory writ of mandate directing the fire chief to restore Montague to the position from which he had unceremoniously ousted him, and the writ was served in due course by Sheriff [illegible]. This morning, however, Judge Powers came into court bearing, among other papers in the case, an affidavit made and signed by the petitioner. Counsel waited patiently for some time with the intention of addressing the House upon the matter, but as Judge Merritt was otherwise occupied, he privately presented the case to him in a few words and obtained the order which he sought.

In his affidavit Montague sets forth [illegible]
