FAIRSE HELD TO HIGHER COURT.

Must Answer for Alleged Assault Upon Ora F. Paige.

Ogden, July 7.—Lauritz Fairse of Salt Lake City, will have to answer to the second district court before Judge Howell to the charge of assault with intent to commit murder on Ora F. Paige, June 24. The preliminary hearing occupied all yesterday afternoon before Municipal Judge Paige. The witnesses examined being Dr. J. S. Gordon and the defendant for cross-examination. Dr. Gordon testified to being called to the sheriff's office on the Sunday evening to dress the wound on Paige's head. He found a wound about two inches long on the back of his head, cut to the bone, the wound had the appearance of having been made by a blow from something blunt. It might have been made by a rock.

The defendant was put through a severe cross-examination by Dist. Atty. Halverson, but maintained to the last that he did not strike Paige, but that in their quarrel over Paige having written his wife the letter asking her to meet him in Ogden they clinched and both rolled down the mountain. The court, however, took the view that his having invited Paige to go up Ogden canyon with him and strike Paige, and that in their quarrel over Paige having written his wife the letter asking her to meet him in Ogden they clinched and both rolled down the mountain. The court, however, took the view that his having invited Paige to go up Ogden canyon with him and strike Paige, and that in their quarrel over Paige having written his wife the letter asking her to meet him in Ogden they clinched and both rolled down the mountain.

CHARLES TOONE HURT.

Skull Fractured by Flying Rock From Quarry Blast.

Ogden, July 9.—Charles Toone, about 40 years of age, and a resident of Morgan county, was brought to Ogden yesterday and taken to the Ogden general hospital, in a very precarious condition to be operated on for fracture of the skull.

Mr. Toone was employed at the rock quarries in Morgan county getting out large rock for building purposes. He and several other employees placed an unusually heavy blast of powder into the rock to loosen it from the mountain side and then after setting the fuse on fire they ran about a hundred yards away, thinking they were safely out of danger from the pieces of rock that might fly from the force of the blast, but unfortunately a piece of stone about the size of a man's fist came with great force and struck Mr. Toone over his right eye, crushing in his skull badly. His fellow workmen picked him up in an unconscious condition, but he soon regained consciousness, and with his wife, father and brother, was brought to Ogden. Dr. Welch and Osmond had him taken to the hospital immediately on the arrival of the train and operated on him removing a large piece of his skull. He rallied from the operation very quickly and rested quite easy last night. He has good vitality and physicians have hope of his recovery, although his condition is critical.

CITY SCHOOL BOARD.

The question of adopting a military system in the public schools of Ogden was laid before the board of education by President R. F. Joyce last evening. President Joyce stated that Captain Kneass of company E could be secured to instruct the pupils in military tactics at a nominal fee. It was stated that in this way the pupils of the different schools could have their way into the gymnasium of the two armories now being erected in Ogden. The matter of uniforms would be optional and left with the students. Mr. Joyce was instructed to confer with the state authorities and ascertain what arrangements could be made along these lines.

This meeting was the first of the fiscal year. The finance committee reported cash on hand in the sum of $2,889.64. A communication was received from the county clerk stating that the amount of money resulting from taxes to which the board was entitled for the ensuing year was $71,298.29. The clerk's annual report was submitted and showed receipts of $119,979.54, disbursements, $114,563.49, leaving a cash balance on hand of $20,414.25. The report showed that in addition to the expense necessary for maintaining the city schools the board had paid off a floating indebtedness of $5,071.29, making a total to the taxpayers of $7,453.25.

The census enumerators were given from July 15 to Aug. 1 to complete the second census at a salary of $3 a day.

RAPID TRANSIT SUED FOR $5,000.

Mrs. Jane E. Rankin has filed a damage suit in the second district court against the Ogden Rapid Transit company to recover $5,000 alleged to be due for personal injuries. The complaint alleges that one day in the early part of June of this year Mrs. Rankin was a passenger on one of the defendant company's street cars; that the motor-man was signalled to stop the car at a certain point on Washington avenue so that plaintiff could leave the car; but before she had stepped to the ground the car started up again on the signal of the conductor and plaintiff was violently thrown to the ground and received serious injuries, to her damage in the sum of $5,000.

DAMAGE SUIT DISMISSED.

Judge Howell heard the case of F. L. Keller against the Oregon Short Line, suit on appeal from the justice court, and after the introduction of the testimony of the prosecution, attorneys for the defense moved the court for peremptory instructions to the jury to bring in a verdict of no cause of action, which motion was granted. The suit was brought to recover $150 alleged to be due for the killing of a horse belonging to Mr. Keller by the railroad company's locomotive. The testimony indicated that the railroad company had put a fence up along its track, but that it had been broken down and plaintiff's horse got on the track and was killed. However, the railroad company was not notified by plaintiff or anyone else that the fence was down, and therefore could not be held responsible for the horse being killed.

CUNNING SURPRISING THE HOME FOLK.

R. M. Cunningham "Cunning," has drawn big houses here in his home town, where he is spending the vacation with his family. He is quite proud of the success he has attained in his line of entertainment. The committee of prominent citizens who have witnessed the work on the stage are as much in the dark in the way of explanation satisfactory to themselves as any of the audience. One of the tricks is done in view of the audience, and admits of no deception in any form. A straight jacket is placed on Cunningham and he works himself out of it, but the effort is a very severe one, and makes some of the spectators fairly ache through sympathy. Another scene from confinement is more mysterious. Cunningham permits himself to be placed in an ordinary, small drygoods box—in such a position that the man's position on the inside would seem very uncomfortable for a confederate, and by a member of the committee, and ropes are tied around the box, making it as secure as a prison. Cunningham comes out of that, leaving the nails and rope just as they were when the committee finished the work of packing. In addition to this he escapes from a steel cage in which he is locked, the cage being wrapped in chains, and Cunningham, handcuffed and shackled in every conceivable manner, on the inside before the cage is locked,

ANCIENT IRRIGATING SYSTEMS OF NEW MEXICO.

Discoveries were recently made in the lava beds of New Mexico, which prove that thousands of years ago there existed in New Mexico a system of reservoirs, irrigation and viaducts that is unparalleled at this age.

Under the lava which covers hundreds of square miles are found traces of cement ditches and reservoirs that are marvels of civil engineering. Our irrigation engineers have much to learn from the people older than the Pueblo who inhabited New Mexico when the race from which Columbus sprang were still barbarians. The ancients provided against seepage by cementing the bottoms of their ditches wherever they were conducted across loose soils. Their ditches wound in and out at the base of mountain ranges, following the sinuosities of canyons and rounding points in such a manner as to catch all the storm water before it was absorbed by the loose sands at the mountain's base.

Reservoirs at convenient basins stored the water which was led in cement ditches across the loose soil to where it was needed for use. Chasms were crossed by viaducts and wonderful engineering devices were used for the removal of silt that might be used as an aid to the fertility of loose and rocky soils, otherwise valueless. Into some of the ditches lava has run, showing their great antiquity. Others are covered with shifting sands, but enough are still visible in many places to enable the skilled engineer to understand the system which prehistoric New Mexicans rendered so effective.

In those days the desert bloomed like a garden, and a city and race of millions occupied the arid southwest. If Congress desires to aid the work of reclaiming our arid lands, it can do it no more effectively than by sending out a competent engineering force to study the old remains yet left of the vast irrigation system of the most ancient inhabitants of this country, enough of which are still visible to teach valuable lessons of water conservation.—Rural Californian.

"Mykiste, Lydy."

Joseph Choate, at a dinner in New York, described the pronunciation of the London cockney in an amusing manner. Mr. Choate told how the cockney, the long "t" sound has taken precedence over all others in cockney speech, and in illustration he repeated a dialogue between an American tourist and the cockney conductor of one of the new motor omnibuses.

"The tourist, a young woman," said Mr. Choate, "opened her notebook as the conductor approaches her, and says:—

"A ticket, please."

"What's that?"

"I want a ticket."

"Where for?"

"Why, to get up town."

"The conductor, looking annoyed, said:—

"But what's the matter?" he asks. Then, appealingly: "Urty up, bdy. Don't like all this 't'ing?"

"Noting 'till, or Noting 'till Gye Station."

"Gye Station?"

"The conductor, looking at the young woman, for unconsciously, she has mimicked her cockney pronunciation of the word 'gate.' Then he gives her her ticket, and says:—

"Ere you harr. And ere's your chert."

"The young woman, smiling, replies, as she pockets her huge English copper:—

"Thank you, in a-myking 'tyle."

"And the conductor, scowling, looks black as a thundercloud, withdraws."
