A MURDERER'S OPEN CONFESSION.

Strange Conduct of an Oakland (Cal.) Woman.—A Compassionate Jury.—Walters and their Whiskers.

Judge Isaac M. Hall, a pioneer at Seattle (W. T.), has died suddenly of fatty degeneration of the heart. He ceased held the office of auditor of King's county, and was twice elected public judge. He was born in Warren county, Ind., in 1841, and went to California about 1866. In 1864 he reached the sound, where he had resided ever since.

There was a riotic of excitement at the Palace Hotel, Oakland, Cal., on Tuesday, over the request of the manager to permit the waiters to grow mustaches and beards. The men are up in arms over the matter. Thus the fight on the whiskers goes on. The hotel authorities think they have the revolt quelled, but there are a whole lot of waiters thinking deeply and not saying anything.

Good crops of wheat, barley and wild oats hay are reported from Cajon valley, Cal., where shucking is nearly completed. There will be an average yield of two tons of hay to the acre on early-sown land. The experiment with Texas red oats has been so successful that they will be sown extensively next season in preference to wheat or barley. They are valuable for hay, and the yield is upward of two tons to the acre.

In this country says the Leader (Wyo.) Clipper, the assessment rolls for 1892 show we have one company which pays taxes on $1,000 assessment; two on $5,000 and over; four on $4,000 and over, five on $3,000 and over; six on $2,000 and over; nine on $1,000 and over; twenty-one on $500 and over; twenty-three on $400 and over; twenty-five on $300; thirty-one on $200; sixty on $100; 109 on $50; 162 on $25. Whole number of companies and persons assessed, 426. Whole number of cattle, 56,183. Assessed value, $578,968.

At Fresno, Cal., in Judge Holmes' court a few days ago, the novel spectacle was seen of a jury paying a fine which had been imposed upon a prisoner whom they had found guilty. Adam Bollinger, a well-to-do farmer living twenty-five miles from Fresno, was tried for beating a Portuguese shepherder on the head with a shotgun. He was found guilty and the court sentenced him to pay a fine of $50. The jury paid it, saying that under the law they could not do otherwise than find Bollinger guilty, but they believed he had done right, considering the great provocation.

The Casper (Wyo.) Tribune reports that Mr. Guthrie, who has been drilling for the North Star and Rattlesnake company on Fenson Spider creek, about eighteen miles west of there, struck the oil sand a few days ago and the flow was so large that it lifted the tools nearly out. It was found that the oil was certainly there in very large quantities, although the well at that time was not entirely finished. The quality is about the same as that of the Salt creek oil, while the capacity cannot be accurately ascertained until the well is completed. The oil sand was struck at a depth of a little less than 800 feet.

The preliminary examination of H. W. Early, the clothing merchant of Boise, Idaho, was continued on Wednesday. The testimony developed the shipment of large quantities of goods in addition to those mentioned previously. Twenty-one cases of boots and shoes were shipped to H. B. Hill & Co., San Francisco, three cases of boots and shoes and three of dry goods were sent to J. H. McInnis & Co., of San Francisco, and three cases were shipped to J. H. Flint of Peters, this state. The agent of Wells-Fargo testified that a great many packages had been sent by express. Testimony was introduced to show that the old marks had been placed on the cases, the presumption being that the goods were reshipped without being unpacked.

On December 1st C. O. Walker was murdered in Mrs. Monk's house at Sunnyside on San Leandro mountains, Cal. George J. Bullock was arrested, found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment for life at San Quentin. Recently he made a confession implicating James Burns, who was examined on Wednesday, and held to answer. Bullock, who was brought from San Quentin, testified that he and Burns went to Mrs. Monk's house carrying a rifle, at the suggestion of Burns, who said that the difficulty between Bullock and Walker should be settled. When they reached Mrs. Monk's place Bullock hesitated, when Burns grabbed the gun, placed it on Bullock's shoulder and fired the fatal shot. They agreed never to tell what had happened, and if discovered to swear they had spent the night at Burns' cabin, some miles away.

At midnight on Tuesday three Japanese sailors from the British bark Kittle, which is anchored in mid-stream, at Astoria, Or., floated a raft that they had been secretly making for three days, but just as they stepped aboard it overturned and the ship's watchman was aroused by their shrieks, none of them being able to swim. It was nearly ten minutes before they were dragged on board by the aid of ropes. All were thoroughly exhausted when rescued. At noon next day four more Japs of the crew jumped overboard and swam for the shore. Three reached the Astoria side in safety, but the other sank, and was only saved from drowning by a fish boat, which subsequently landed him. None of the deserters have yet been found. There is supposed to be serious trouble among the whole crew, some of whom claim that they have for months been the victims of harsh treatment.

Mrs. S. N. Walsh of East Oakland acted in such a strange manner on Wednesday as to lead her friends to believe that she is insane. Shortly after 8 o'clock in the morning she was discovered hanging from a telephone pole attired only in her night dress. Her dress was caught near the top of the pole, and there she hung perfectly helpless. After she had been in this condition for some time her screams attracted attention. Gentlemen who were passing summoned some ladies to their assistance, and the work of rescue was commenced. A long ladder was secured, and one of the strong men ascended it until he neared the unfortunate woman. Then he loosened her clothing, and with a knife cut an offset lowered her to the ground. Mrs. Walsh said she was heading for her children. How she managed to get to her upward position entirely baffles her, for she was not discovered until far she had been hanging there for some time.

E. F. Greuard, father of Frank Greuard, chief of scouts Custer's cavalry, has arrived in Oakland from Santa Ana, Cal. A few days before he came and gone at the father and son had met face to face with each other's arms, and the meeting of the long separated pair on Monday evening at the Windsor hotel, says the Sheridan Enterprise, was a touching one. At the time of the new Frank Greuard, as a youth of the 1776 mountain against the Sioux, Frank Greuard was reported in all the leading papers to have been caught and tortured by the red men, and the aged Greuard, convinced that the report was true, mourned his son as dead. About a month ago the indelible situation was attracted by a newspaper account of a lecture delivered in the Wells and Adventures of Frank Greuard. He knew of no other person being that name but his son, and immediately communicated with the war department. He was referred to the line officers of the department of the Platte, and by the officials of that department he learned of Frank Greuard's at Fort McKinney. Telegrams were interchanged, and he called immediately started to meet his son, the two left for Buffalo and Sheridan on Monday evening. They will spend some time in each other's society.

The capital commissioners at Sacramento, Cal., have discovered what they believe to be an attempt to defraud the state. During Governor Waterman's administration the commissioners decided to lay a six-inch main from Sixteenth street to the corner of the grounds, a little east opposite the Twelfth-street entrance. William Gutenberger, a tinsmith of Sacramento, was given a contract of the superintendent of capitol Treasury. Hayes. A few days later W. W. Dargie, secretary of the commission, was approached by Gutenberger, who said he knew where he had decided to have the pipe included. Dargie notified ex-Governor Waterman, who investigated and discovered that Hayes had no right to contract for pipe, as there was no money to pay for it. Notwithstanding Waterman's objections the pipe was dumped on the ground and has since remained there. Recently the present capitol commissioners concluded to lay the pipe and discovering that more was needed a contract for 600 feet six and three inch pipe to match that which they bought from Gutenberger. On Wednesday a contractor named Lyman, desirous of putting in a bid, visited the capitol and viewed the pipe. As soon as he learned it is he said: "Yes, have no 6 and 3 inch pipe. That is all 5 and 2½ inch." The state treasurer and secretary of state were summoned, and started an investigation. They called on Deputy Controller Douglas, who had certified to the bills as being for six and three-inch pipe. Douglas said he had signed them on State Gardener Shultrath's statement that he had examined the pipe and found it was all right. The bills made out by Gutenberger were then examined, showing that the state had paid for six and three-inch pipe. The commissioners are determined to compel Gutenberger to remove the old pipe and supply the article designated in the contract.
