SCOFIELD NEWS.

Wm. C. Reese Shot by His Brother—Serious Result of an Accident—General Notes.

SCOFIELD, Dec. 11th, 1896.—Wm. C. Reese shot his brother Evan on Wednesday evening the 9th inst. The ball from a 32-caliber pistol entered the front and left side of the head, striking the skull bone and ploughing out on the same side about four inches from the place of entrance. Dr. J. W. Smith was called and dressed the wound. It appears to be not so very serious as at first thought. He bled very freely, but was able to appear in court next day. He refused to prosecute the brother who did the shooting, after the arrest was made. Williams was a temperate and Evan boards with him. He and the lady of the house were the only witnesses. They say they were having a friendly scuffle for the gun when it was accidentally discharged, but the neighbors say whisky and a family row did it.

The mines have been working good for a couple of weeks, and the railroad boys are worked nearly to death.

Wm. Palmer, the oldest hand on the road, is laid up with a lame back, but hopes to be able to get out again in a few days.

Coal Mine Inspector T. Lloyd is visiting the mines here this week.

Frank F. Strang, 21, and Cynthria Palmer, 18, both of Scofield, have taken out a marriage license.

Two deaths have occurred at Winter Quarters since our last writing, one a four-months-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pearson, and the other an infant baby of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richards.

Mr. James P. Johnson, who was injured by the train while working on the yard at the Winter Quarters mine about six weeks ago is still unable to work, and having a wife and six small children it comes pretty hard on him. Mr. Johnson's back was injured and he thinks it will be a long time yet before he can work.

For Thomas Arnold or Relatives.

LOUGHBOROUGH, England, Nov. 30th, 1896.

To the Editor:

In behalf of a widow who lives at Mount Sorrel, I wish to ask of you, if you will make inquiries in regard to a family who left here some twenty-eight or thirty years ago. The name is Thomas Arnold. He had four sons, namely, John, Thomas, Richard and James. The daughter's name was Emma. The lady here, Mrs. Harriett Bishop, is a daughter of Thomas Arnold Sr., and a sister to Emma. She joined the Church with her brothers and sister, but marrying out of the Church, she remained here while the rest of the family went to Utah. She is desirous of hearing from them. Her husband is dead and her heart yearns for her kindred. Her address is Mrs. Harriett Bishop (widow) South end, Mount Sorrel; or any one sending can direct to me and I will be pleased to deliver any letter or message for them. My address is 40 Sabine street, Nottingham. GEO. E. BEECH.

Agricultural College Notes.

The fall term closes Friday, December 18th. The spring term will begin Tuesday, January 5th.

Term examinations will be held from Wednesday 16th to Friday.

The closing party was held in the gymnasium Saturday evening. Aside from students, the attendance was entirely upon invitation.

The enrollment for the year so far has reached nearly 400. There is a greater proportion of advanced students than in previous years.

The restored music department under Mrs. Goodwin is doing nicely. A choir of forty-five members, a guitar class of half as many and numerous piano pupils take all the time that lady can spare from her duties as librarian.

The meetings of the Longfellow Literary society have been interesting and well attended during the term. The debate is the leading feature. The subject of discussion for the closing meeting, Monday evening, is the relative merits of Scott's Heart of Midlothian and Dickens's Tale of Two Cities.

The committee on purchase of books for the college library has just sent the lists decided upon to several wholesale dealers for bids. One-third of the appropriation will be devoted to general literature, history and biography; the rest is about evenly distributed among scientific and industrial departments.

Dr. Brewer is examining the well waters of this city, endeavoring to account for certain uncanny conditions. Professor Widtsoe is busy with sugar beet analysis, soil analysis and milk analysis. Dr. Fischer is fitting up a laboratory preparatory to the organization of experiments in breeding insects.

Bulletins either in press or in preparation are, one on irrigation, and one on salt grass, by Professor Fortier; one on meteorological conditions of the State and the intermountain region, by Mr. Dryer; one on tuberculosis, by Dr. Brewer, and others showing the results of the different lines of experiments carried on at the station.

The farmer's institute committee, with President Tanner at the head, is arranging a series of meetings for agricultural instruction—one meeting for each county in the State. The instructors and subjects will be the same in general as in the winter course. Each institute will have three sessions, occuring the day and one at night. Where it seems desirable, the evening will be devoted to more general topics, as a lecture for general entertainment.

The winter course of ten weeks will begin January 5th. The following will indicate the scope of the work: Prof. Foster, Blacksmithing, Soils, Crops and Manures; Prof. Linfield, Dairying and Animal Husbandry; Prof. Merrill, Buildings, Fences and Machinery; Prof. Foster, Irrigation and Roadmaking; Prof. Widtsoe, Agricultural Chemistry; Prof. Fischer, Horticulture; Prof. Dryden, Entomology and Veterinary; Prof. Brewer, Poultry, Keeping and Marketing; Prof. Shepard, Bacteriology; Bookkeeping.

Under Professor Foster the work of the experiment station is being thoroughly organized, and experiments are being carried on along many lines. Professor Foster is testing, with electricity, the value of shodded crossbidder, as compared with discrete and grains. Mr. Merrill is testing with several lots of pigs, the value of ranger meat as food. Mr. Dryden is trying to solve several poultry problems, specially the relation of the age, time of hatching, breed, kind and amount of exercise of the fowl, to productiveness during the winter. Mr. Linfield is experimenting on feeds, with his dairy herd, with reference to dairy products.
