Bland's Bill Passes the House of Representatives.

DOLLARS INSTEAD OF BULLION.

An Analysis of the Vote.—Republicans and Democrats Divided on the Question.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The last struggle in the House over the Bland bill for the coinage of the silver seigniorage and silver bullion in the treasury was ended today by the passage of the bill by a vote of 167 to 126. All the amendments offered to the measure by its opponents were defeated, the one which polled the most votes being Outhwaite's amendment to strike out the second section. The bill as passed is in the nature of a substitute for the original measure. The changes do not affect materially the features of the bill, which provide for the coinage of the silver seigniorage in the treasury and the issue of silver certificates thereon, if need be, in the discretion of the secretary of the treasury in advance of coinage, and thereafter the coinage of the remainder of the bullion as fast as practicable, and the issue of silver certificates thereon to take the place of the treasury notes issued under the Sherman act, which are to be retired and canceled as rapidly as the coinage takes place.

The changes made in the substitute simply make specific the fact that the seigniorage is to be coined and that this bill will not affect the redemption of treasury notes under the existing laws.

An analysis of the vote by which the bill passed shows that 141 Democrats, 19 Republicans and 6 Populists, a total of 166, voted for it, and 79 Republicans and 47 Democrats, a total of 126, voted against it.

The first section of the substitute is identical with the first section of the original bill, except the coinage is to proceed as fast as "possible," instead of "practicable."

The substitute for the second section is as follows: "After the coinage provided for in the first section (the seigniorage), the remainder of the silver bullion purchased in pursuance of the act of July 14, 1890, shall be coined into legal tender standard silver dollars as fast as possible, and the coin shall be held for the redemption of the treasury notes issued against such bullion as fast as the bullion shall be coined for the redemption of said notes. The coin so held not so redeemed, but shall be coinable in amounts equal to the coin but derived from the coinage hereinprovided for and silver certificates shall be issued on such coin in the manner now provided by law; provided, this act shall not be construed to change the existing law relating to the legal tender character or mode of redemption of the existing treasury notes under the act of 1890."

A sufficient sum is appropriated to carry into effect the provisions of the act.

Bland explained the second section of the substitute, to make the coinage of the remainder of the bullion in the treasury begin after the coinage of the seigniorage, and the specific proviso added, to the effect that nothing in the act shall be deemed to change or alter the existing law as to the legal character or mode of redemption of treasury notes.

The vote was finally taken and the bill passed, 167 to 126.

McKane to stay Here.

BING HAM, March 1.—A large crowd awaited the arrival of the train bearing John Y. McKane to prison, which arrived here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. McKane and his assistants walked to the prison gate, followed by reporters. McKane passed through the prison gate to the office of Warden Durham, where he was received by Assistant Clerk Wright.

Sheriff Butler produced the commitment and handed it to Wright, who told McKane: "Your term is six years."

Westlake then wrote on the document, "Four years and three months," indicating the net term of McKane's sentence, less the commutation for good conduct.

McKane removed his gold watch and some items in Westlake, took his diamond ring from his finger, and diamond stud from his shirt, as well as diamond sleeve buttons, and gave them to Officer Williamson to take back to McKane's family. McKane also produced $25.75 in bills and checks, and handed the money to Chief Wright.

The customary questions were then put to McKane. He was then taken into the prison barber shop and his mustache and imperial quickly shaven off. He was then given a convict suit, which he put on himself. No cell was assigned him. He will for the present be in what is known as the isolation.

POSSIBILITIES OF LIQUID FUEL.

ADMIRAL SHERMAN SAYS MORE IS THEORETICALLY CLAIMED.

In a paper read before the Pacific Coast Technical society several weeks ago Admiral Jerry Sherman, U. S. N., retired, chief engineer, made some interesting statements about the possibilities of engine power derived from liquid fuel. Theoretically, he said, a pound of the best coal is equal to nine pounds of the best petroleum, or to one pound of the best coal is equal to nine pounds of petroleum, but practically, only half of this effect is realized under the most favorable conditions. But with petroleum there was a theoretical saving of 21, and in practice he himself secured the evaporation of 14.5 pounds of water to one of fuel.

This is without alloy. But by burning the oil with steam instead of air he claims to have raised the service to 22 or 23 pounds of water.—New York Press.

In 1894 the Republicans expect to decide the following new officers in order to constitute the empire state family: State robin chaser, litigation editor, school cruiser, artificial rainmaker, footer of state salaries, alkali inspector, phone exposer, imp tender, inspector of petition bonds and equal inspector.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Little Charlie Wray Almost Stolen From His Mother's Arms.

Two Well Known Residents of Salt Lake to the Rescue.

THE MOTHER'S INTERESTING STORY.

At the south Second West street is located the little cottage wherein resides Mrs. A. J. Wray, now in an invalid lady and to an interview with the writer gave the following story of her baby's escape:

My little son Charlie is now four years of age. He has been a sickly infant from month ever since he was born, and during the past few years he has become so much worse that we never think daily.

At the age of two years he lost his HEARING. His nose would stop up then again, then the effect. He would constantly hawk and try to clear his throat, which at times would almost strangle him, large lumps coming up in consequence that was impossible to dislodge.

He had wasting away to the one and would put his hands up to his head as if he expressed himself, try to keep the entire use of his ears.

MOTHER CHARLIE WRAY AND HIS DARLING AFTER ESCAPING.

He would not eat, and when force to did take scarcely bite heavy on his stomach and caused him much pain, he was very weak and looked as though he had no blood in him at all.

He would go around for hours and not notice anybody, he would seem to be far away, and when spoken to would start up as though he was scared.

We had to take him off of school for he could not learn, we were very much alarmed about his condition and although he was given a more medical, the result seemed to be one that called all known skill.

One day (after giving up all hope of ever getting cured) we noticed a notice similar to his being cured by Drs. Shores & Shores, the specialists, and we decided to take him there. The doctors examined him and informed us the case was a very serious one, but they would do all that could be done for him.

My son has been under their care for six months and I am happy to say he has been entirely cured. He has no more headache, HE HEARS WELL, has a splendid appetite, is getting fat and looks like a new child.

I cannot say too much in praise of Drs. Shores and Shores, for they have certainly saved my child from an untimely end. Hoping that others afflicted will be benefited by this statement, I am, yours very truly, MRS. A. J. WRAY,

245 south Second West street.
