KENTUCKY TACTICS.

Kauffman Unseated by the House, James and Walker by the Senate.

HOT WORDS AND THREATS FOLLOW

As Furious Crowd Surrounding the Statehouse, Interested in the Proceedings.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 11.—The House has unseated Kauffman.

The senate has unseated James and Walker, Republicans.

A rush was made for the door of the house to prevent the entrance of the two contested members. Senator James was already in the house. Hot words followed and trouble seemed imminent. Sergeant-at-arms Boyd and his force and Capitol guards were ready to throw the first member over the bannister, if he attempted to enter the hall. Speaker Blackburn recognized Governor Worthington as president of the joint assembly and Dunlap moved the house adjourn until the hall would be cleared. An immense crowd surrounds the statehouse.

AN UNEXPECTED RESULT.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 11.—A special to the Post from Frankfort, says: After the house adjourned, Dunlap, the only man in the house, introduced the resolution to the effect that the house ask the senate to join in the joint assembly to be held at 12 o'clock to elect a successor to Senator Kauffman. The Democrats realized the seriousness of the situation, and came had no power to recall Kauffman.

The speaker held to declaring the motion, that it was perfectly competent for Dunlap before the case had been presented to the end, to have withdrawn the motion, but he did it earlier than the case had been tried.

A vote was ordered on the minority report declaring Day Kauffman entitled to the seat. Republicans voted aye, Democrats voted nay. The minority report was adopted by a vote of 51 to 45.

The vote, contrary to all precedents, was cast by the Democrats who had voted aye on the majority report.

In the senate, on roll call to adopt the majority report, the Democrats left the room to break the quorum, but one of them, Senator Bigstaff, came back and voted, thus giving the majority report, the requisite number to succeed, and James is seated.

Of motion to reconsider the motion to extend the session of the house after the joint assembly was adopted.

As soon as the joint assembly of the house reached the senate, Senator Gorman moved the adoption of an amendment to the rules. The motion was seconded by Brenton and the question on motion. The chair refused to put the motion and kept up a continual cool tapping. The noise was so uproarious. The chair ordered the proceedings tumultuous, Brenton, waiving the rule, finally, succeeded in the chair to call the roll.

Brenton moved that the senate adjourn. Amid the wildest excitement the motion was put to put the motion. The Republicans voted aye in a body. The Democrats voted nay in a body. The Democrats left the senate chamber and with the Republican members left the chamber. The report of the committee on elections was then read. Bond was called and Walton and James were declared ineligible to seats in the senate by a 16 to 23 vote. (Wild cheers from the Democrats.)

James is in the senate chamber before the vote to unseat him was taken, and voted for himself. Walton was not present.

Many men are armed and a tragedy may result.

When the joint assembly convened, Speaker Blackburn heard orders that only members of jets are entitled to privileges of the floor be modified. At 12:05 the doorkeeper announces the Senate. The speaker, before recognizing the Senate, rap the gavel for the house had full control of the floor. Brenton insisted the ruling was without precedent. He stopped, "I move that Senator Gorman be made presiding officer of the assembly." (Cheers.)

A storm of Noes arose. Lieutenant Governor Worthington rapped for order.

Senator Sallee implored the members not to do anything that would bring disgrace on Kentucky. (Cheers.)

Brenton called attention Rule 11 of the joint assembly, and he contended that the duty of the senate is the clerk of the joint assembly and shall call the roll of the entire joint assembly.

The presiding officer ruled that the clerk of the house would call the roll of the house, and the clerk of the senate called the roll of the senate.

The calling of the roll then began. The clerk in calling the names of members of the senate, omitted to call those of James and Walton. The clerk of the house called the name of Kauffman (Dem.). Roll call showed 51 members present, with two vacancies. The ballot for senator then began. Carlington voted for Blackburn while Poor voted to Vote. Prescott voted for Durham. The Republicans refused to vote.

The ballot resulted: Blackburn, 51; Carlington, 1; Durham 1.

The clerk decided that as only 53 votes had been cast, there was no quorum. The assembly adjourned at 4:05.

Throughout all the excitement Senator Blackburn was in his senate chamber. When the alternative threatening personal violence occurred between Brenton and Worthington, he started in organized excitement "Let me get out." He was restrained by friends. (The Republicans claim senate leaders mistake when they so need to take in the question of unseating Walton and James in relation to their seats. Had the Republicans all voted "Nay," it is claimed by many members, they would, at least, be in equally unseated, as it requires two-thirds vote to expel a member. The opinion prevails that there will be no election issues the joint assembly will adjourn to vote from day to day and thereby break a quorum.
