THE TURKISH QUESTION.

The latest embroil in Constantinople is a reminder to the world of the smouldering embers of discontent that ever remain a danger to peace so long as the Turkish question is unsettled. The authorities seem to be unwilling to give the full facts publicity, but it is stated that thousands of Armenians were massacred, their bodies thrown into the streets, and that the Turkish authorities remained inactive while the slaughter took place. Against the conditions that make such scenes and rule of terror possible at the very gates of the Ottoman palace there can be but one remedy—the liberation of the Christians.

A London paper speaking of the situation in Turkey, remarks that reforms are not to be expected for the simple reason that they have no foundations to rest upon. The most prominent forces in the empire are the reigning house, the army and the Mussulman mob, but neither of these desires anything but the strict despotism that is accepted as the decree of an immutable providence. If the so called young Turkish party had the people, or a considerable part of the people, with them, there might be hope for their cause, but they have not, and will not be supported by the masses so long as the government succeeds in rearing impenetrable walls between them and all modern means of education and enlightenment.

It is not impossible that at the present meeting of the emperors of Russia and Austria the situation in Turkey may be considered and that the practical results of that tete-a-tete will be a more definite policy in eastern Europe. Emperors do not as a rule travel across a continent merely for the sake of pleasure. The belief is justified that such a journey has political significance, and if so, the results will appear in the near future.

HELPING HOME BUSINESS.

The California home industry workers are persisting in vigorous efforts to help local producers in the state and by that means to improve the condition of the people generally. The slogan "Keep the money at home," is being sounded on all sides. In a speech on the subject a few days ago, a prominent citizen asserted that fifty-three million dollars left California annually for eastern circulation that should be kept at home for the employment and support of local workmen. It was pointed out that an eastern establishment could do a million dollars' worth of business in the state with an agent, two clerks and a typewriter, all the other employes being in a far distant part of the country; while if the preference were given by the people to home manufactured goods of the same quality and price, the million dollars would be kept at home for the employment of several hundred laborers, and would be in circulation locally.

It is said these little illustrations are having an effect on the people in helping home business. Certainly if California, or Utah, or any other western state, wants less of hard times then now there will be more purchasing of home productions at the expense of the excessive importations which drain the country and reduce its population to poverty. A people that will not support themselves and each other may look and long for prosperity, but will do so in vain. There is success for those who work together with a will.

MR. CLARK'S FOREBODINGS.

According to the telegraphed report of the Denver remarks of S. H. H. Clark, one of the receivers of the Union Pacific, that gentleman takes a gloomy view of the railway situation in the West. He is discouraged as to the outcome of the Union Pacific, and believes the successful reorganization of the line impracticable, for a long time at least. The light which the receivers thought they saw ahead has disappeared, says Mr. Clark thinks the company will have no option but to allow the government to take the road and sell it for the debt, which it cannot pay. Another line could be built now for much less than the debt, but even that the gentleman regards as not practicable because it would not pay unless there was a restoration of good times and good business, which he sees no promise of.

Perhaps Mr. Clark takes the darkest view of the business prospect, and perhaps not. As a railway manager of marked ability and extensive experience, his expressions will receive widely consideration. They show that under an efficient management, backed by every favorable condition that was available, the great railway system which has been a potent factor in developing the great West is unable to bear the burden of its own business life, and it is cannot hold up, the fact is evidence of a hard struggle on the part of other lines. Whatever may be said of "grasping corporations" and other terms freely and often flippantly applied to railway managements, if Mr. Clark's prognostications are to meet with fulfillment, the West will suffer another blow in the late that is to store for the Union Pacific system. As time goes on there may appear another side to the interest of the people than the clamor for forfeiture of the road. Meanwhile, it is to be hoped that Mr. Clark's line of still further and worse business depression is the result of temporary discouragement rather than of deliberate judgment, and that the sun of prosperity will soon chase away the shadows that now darken the sky.

TWO VIEWS OF IT.

Politicians and some people who do not profess more of an interest in politics than should come to the average citizen, display much interest in figuring out the way the electoral vote will be cast in the approaching presidential election. The fact that there is so much uncertainty as to how the votes of many of the states will go seems to increase rather than diminish the interest in these calculations, which will be canvassed and re-canvassed many times between now and November 4th next, when the ascertained fact will settle them all. The wide range of results arrived at in these tables indicate the measure of confidence the calculators have in the potency of their sums and also how little real knowledge there is of the determination in the minds of voters as to prevailing issues. There are some tables that give McKinley 275 and Bryan 174 votes—this being the most extreme we have noted in that direction; while other figure it as close as 224 for McKinley and 221 for Bryan. On the other hand there is even a greater diversity in the tables that figure out a victory for Bryan, giving him all the way from 3 to 240 majority, one figuring giving McKinley as low as 161 votes.

We here present two views of the prospect, both in Democratic papers, one a supporter of the party ticket and the other a gold standard advocate. The first named, a Chicago paper, gives this table:

States.	Bryan.	McKinley.
Alabama	11
Arkansas	8
California		9
Colorado	4
Connecticut		6
Delaware		3
Florida	4

Utah		3
Vermont		4
Virginia	12
Washington		4
West Virginia		6
Wisconsin		12
Wyoming		3
Totals	221	275

The other, a Massachusetts journal, presents the result this way:

States.	McKinley.	Bryan.
Alabama		11
Arkansas		8
California	9
Colorado		4
Connecticut	6
Delaware	3
Florida		4
Georgia		13

Wyoming	3
Totals	271	174

The maker of the first table admits that only Michigan and North Dakota are doubtful, while the other thinks that Nebraska, California, Maryland and Delaware are doubtful, neither case would the main result be affected. Thus the outcome is figured up conclusively both ways, so one must be wrong, if both are not. In this situation each political mathematician may have plenty of entertainment in making calculations to suit himself, with the assurance that every other one of his kind thinks that he alone of the lot is not wasting his time to unpredictable uncertainty.

THE FINANCIAL NEWS ARTICLE.

The News has already noted the sympathetic denial of the London Financial News that it ever published such sentiments as were attributed to it in an extract alleged to be taken from its columns of March 19th last, and published in many papers throughout the country. This was in justice to our London contemporary and to ourselves, for we had also reprinted the alleged extract. We also find on examining the London paper that its denial is correct, and that the attributing to it of the views referred to was a gross injustice to that journal and to others that were imposed upon it in being led to believe it genuine. The article pointed out advantages to the United States from the independent free coinage of silver, whereas the Financial News has taken the stand that such free coinage would be an injury. The News copied the article from the Tribune of this city and gave it credit thereby. Hence it is due our contemporary to give its correction and explanation of the source of the imposition. It says in the morning's issue:

Some days since, under the heading "Facts That Is Your Ret," the Tribune published an article purporting to be from the London Financial News. We copied the article from the World-Herald of Omaha, first, because that is a reputable newspaper, it is said the issue crime of Mr. Bryan himself; and second, because we had read something of the same kind in a News editorial, or from a correspondent of the News. The News doubts the authenticity of the article and claims that it is a forgery. We have waited several days since that announcement was made for the World-Herald to make a frank and fair explanation of it, but it has not done so up to date, and we cannot any longer afford to suppose the above explanation, because the Tribune has a reputation for truthfulness which it has fairly earned, and while we are aware, and white the people are aware that with the utmost care a newspaper is sometimes led into an error in the statement to a purported fact, there never has been a time, there never will be a time when the Tribune, if so discovered, will not make its explanation fully and fairly, and give it as much prominence as was given to the offending article. We are sorry it happened. We are sorry that after days of waiting the World-Herald has not seen proper to fully explain how such an accident could have happened in that newspaper office.

THE LEADVILLE miners' strike is likely to result in bloodshed before it is over. The men have been out over a month now, and it is anticipated that they will violently oppose the bringing in of non-union labor. The striking union men insist that the mine operators have not kept faith with the employes under the agreement to restore wages when it became practicable. The state militia may be needed to preserve the peace. Prior to the inauguration of this strike the pay roll at Leadville aggregated $250,000, as the business men are feeling the loss very badly.

THE NEW YORK papers are exploiting that the asking for clearing house certificates, by the banks of that city, is merely a precautionary measure and does not indicate fears of another crash.

DENVER HERALD say Salt Lake cantaloupes are superior to the Colorado crop. The conditions in this valley are more favorable for their cultivation than at higher altitudes.

NOW THAT England has got a sultan of Zanzibar who will go as the British industry wish, there will be little further trouble on the island except such as may come through the new sultan's selection.

The population of the earth at the time of the commencement of the Christian era is estimated to have been about five-sevenths that of the United States today.

THE POLITICAL bottom in Idaho seems to be clearing to the extent that all the silver parties will come in an outside understanding.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the Spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A proper use of this medicine has often averted long and fatal illness. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only fifty cents a bottle. E. C. M. I. drug department.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersen, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make the extract "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Hiwa Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia complicating La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. It gave her rest to the work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at E. C. M. I. drug department. Regular size 50c and $1.00.
