Brother C. R. Savage spoke of the necessity of making the meetings of quorums and other organizations interesting and instructive The presiding officers should be careful not to allow the meetings to be come dry. There are many subjects that could be handled by the Elders in an interesting manner. Such a programme of exercises should be ar ranged as will create an interest in the meeting and insure a good time to all who attend. In this way the quorums will encourage the attendance of the young men perhaps more than any efforts of the teachers who may be sent to visit and labor with them. Of course we cannot expect everything to move along without friction. Many difficulties will be met and must be overcome This gives us an experience which it is S. J.
