Some time ago, I got a sample of curious looking wheat from a friend, who said it had been found in a cave near Fillmore, but he could give no further information about it.

have been making inquiries, but can learn nothing more.

I sent a few grains to the American Miller, who submitted it to Prof. Latto, an expert in these matters, but he did not appear to be sure whether it really wheat or not.

Perhaps your menial correspondent,

A. Bird, or others of your readers in that locality will kindly throw some light on this matter.

Today the "News" received a call from Elder Joseph A. Turnbow of the Fifth ward of this city, who returned home on Wednesday, December 8th, frith ward of this city, who returned home on Wednesday, December 8th, from a mission to the Southern States. He left this city April 4, 1896, and on arrival at Chattanooga was assigned to missionary work, traveling without purse or scrip, in the South Alabama conference. There he found the people quite hospitable as a general rule, and his labors were attended with exoellent success. During the winter of 1896-7 he was laid up with illness a couple of months. This fall his health for the been became impaired, and again again became impaired, and for the past three months he has not been able o travel much. His missionary labors, however, were very enjoyable, and he feels grateful for the opportunities he has had of preaching the Oscar Anderson, a Geyser-Marion miner, met with a shocking and violent death yesterday afternoon while wheeling ore from the property. Engaged in the same task was another man who preceded Anderson. Two other men were engaged in drilling near the same point where the breast of ore is about twenty feet thick. Anderson's partner just passed this safely when there was a heavy fall of earth and rock, catching Anderson and crushing him to death.

crushing him to death,

The top of the unfortunate man's head was crushed into an unrecognizable mass, while his arms, body and legs were frightfully mangled. The deceased came here from Colorado and was about 25 years of age. He was unmarried and his only known rela-tive is a brother in the Centennial state.

A coroner's jury made an official inspection of the scene of the fatality and rendered a verdict to the effect that Anderson's death was due to the carelessness of the company. As a re-sult a suit for heavy damages is looked

A violent explosion startled residents the western part of the city last in the western part of the city last night and set many people to wonder-ing what had happened. The explosion occurred about 8:16, and was followed by a rumbling vibration which shook the furniture and rattled the dishes in a number of homes. At first it was supposed tath a boiler had blown up at one of the railroad depots, but that theory was not correct. Later it was suggested that a large gas tank had probably burst and caused the disturb-ance, but that suspicion was also ance, but that suspicion was also worns.

Today a goodly number of persons maintined that it was an earthquake and that the rumbling was disinstly felt running apparently from north south. Several well known citizens who were on the street at the time, were almost thrown from their feet by the violence af the explosion. As a possible solution to the mystery it is said that the flurry may have been caused by a big biast in one of the lime quarries to the north of the city. Persons who heard it however, assert that the sound did not come from the mountains at all, but from some point down the at all, but from some point down the valley.

Coalville, Dec. 10, 1897.

Dr. Karl G. Maeser member of the board of education of the Latter-day saints' Church schools, is to be at Coalville today and tomorrow to visit the Stake academy with the Stake board of education and hold a meeting with the religion class instructors. There are enrolled as instructors in this laudable and much appreciated cause. are enrolled as instructors in this laudable and much appreciated cause in this Stake, thirty-six brethren and sisters. Elders Maeser and W. H. Branch, Stake superintendent of religion classes of the Summit Stake, go to Evanston and Almy, Wyoming, on Sunday where they expect to organize from one to three religion classes in each of those wards. God bless the brethren in their endeavors in this direction. Great good is being done in their efforts, it is a being done in their efforts; it is a notable fact that wherever we go, where notable fact that wherever we go, where these clases are organized, the testimony of all is that better results follow this movement than any other organization in the ward. Where the cause is receiving proper attention, greater love union, and respect for the Priesthood exists than ever before; the whole the control is being fest and exercised by the young of our community through the influence that is characteristic of this work.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY, DECEMBER 11.

County Clerk Dunbar received word from Provo today of the death, at the State insane asylum, of Nells Oganson, aged 74. Little is known of the old aged 74. Little is known of the old gentleman, and in the absence of ingentleman, and in the absence of information regarding his relatives, he will be buried at Provo City, at the expense of Salt Lake county. An examination of the record in Mr. Dunbar's office shows that Mr. Oganson formerly lived at Union, this county; that the complaint was sworn to by Peter Van Vankenberg, and that he was ordered sent to the asylum in 1893.

Butte Miner: August Johnson, fore-man of the Parrot concentrator, was brutally assaulted and probably fatal-August Johnson, forebrutally assaulted and probably fatally injured in South Butte last evening as he was on his way home from work, and Gus Nelson and Martin Herreson who have been positively identified as his assailants, are under arrest on a charge of assault in the first degree, which will very likely be changed to murder within the next twenty-four hours. Johnson was beaten over the head in the most cowardly and brutal manner imaginable with some heavy instrument, presumably an iron coupmanner imaginable with some heavy instrument, presumably an iron coupling pin, and his skull was so badly fractured that portions of the shattered portions of it had to be removed to relieve the pressure on the brain. At an early hour this morning he was reported as being in an extremely critical condition and the attending physicians had very slight hopes of his recovery, if in fact they entertained any hope at all that he would pult through. through.
