TRUTH AND LIBERTY.

NO. 78. FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1894. SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH. VOL. XXVII.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Journal of London, the Alleged London Anarchist.

WHY NIMAN ASKS FOR BAIL.

Cause of the Fall of the Price of Silver.—Interesting Facts.—Pickpockets, etc.

LONDON, Feb. 22.—This day was held for the funeral of Bourdin the anarchist, who was fatally injured by the explosion of his own bomb on Feb. 15th. Endless demonstrations were expected and the police made preparations to prevent them. The shops in the neighborhood of Bourdin's residence and in Compo street where he was killed, were shut and barricaded. Crowds of excited spectators, including many anarchists, gathered in the neighborhood in the early morning hours. They were watched by a strong force of police and detectives.

When the anarchists attempted to move the body to one of their meeting places, where their leaders were to deliver orations over the remains, the police forbade it, and directed that the body be conveyed in the mortuary by another route than had been agreed.

The police allowed only one coach to follow the hearse, and it was surrounded by a body of mounted police. The anarchists who had intended to follow the body were compelled to go to the cemetery by a different route from that taken by the hearse, or follow very far behind.

Before starting the anarchists displayed a red flag; the police made a charge and captured it after a brief struggle, and one shown shortly afterward not the same color. The police had large reserves close at hand in case of need. The anarchists laughed at the police precautions against bomb throwing, and said they were not fools enough to blow themselves out of house, the only country where the anarchist could live in peace.

FROM THE TOMBS.

Wiman Makes a Statement to a Reporter.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—In response to a note sent in by a reporter this morning, Erastus Wiman, from his cell in the Tombs, wrote the following: "I did not intend to ask for bail, but the dying condition of my aged son, the doctor tells me, they were not from his mother and a sweet wife entirely dissent my presence beside them, if I can get a friend to go on my bond. I am in communication with a gentleman who has promised to be able to get Staten Island today. As to the rest, I can say nothing."

The last sentence is in answer to a query as to his reported indictment for forgery. His son, W. D. Wiman, is lying at the point of death at New Brighton, Staten Island, of pneumonia, and does not know of his father's arrest.

Probably Incendiary.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 22.—Early this morning the stores of Wordsmark & Ross, where the Central Telephone exchange, Myer Bros., bakers, S. B. Tolan, shoes, were burned. The loss is from $10,000 to $15,000. At the same time in another part of town, a school house was destroyed with a loss of $20,000, and a barn was burned shortly afterwards. It is believed all the fires were incendiary.

Early to Bed.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Feb. 22.—General Early is better today and sitting up.

Hearing Postponed.

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 22.—The hearing on the petition of the railway union asking for a modification of Judge Jenkins's Northern Pacific order, which was to be had today, has been postponed until April Friday.

TO MOVE RECEIVERSHIP.

Efforts to Harmonize the Various Conflicting Interests.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22.—Before the United States Circuit Judge Caldwell this morning application was made for permission to remove so much of the Atlantic & Pacific and Missouri Pacific ownership as relates to the St. Louis and San Francisco road to state courts, the appointment of receivers for the Atlantic & Pacific and Missouri Pacific being sought for the St. Louis and San Francisco. The argument was begun. The Prince-Atchison interests will move to the utmost the effort to separate the two systems. The movement is on the part of the German bondholders of the Prince reorganization, by the United States Trust Company, trustee for Prince, and general mortgage bondholders. The petition of the United States Trust Company sets forth that their number of Prince general mortgage bonds and bondholders are $1,000,000, six per cent Prince general mortgage bonds and $1,000,000 five per cent bonds, the other issued June 1st, 1892, and the latter July 1st, 1893. The interest on these, amounting to $141,000, was due January 1, 1894, and remains unpaid, although the trustee alleges that the Atlantic & Pacific failed to pay its share of the interest for the year 1893 to its credit of the company, and to pay such interest. The Prince office the allegation of the Atlantic to the effect that Prince is indebted to it in the sum of $1,300,000, on account of advances, and contends that interests of the security holders of the two companies are adverse; that a majority of the holders of the Prince general mortgage bonds have requested the trustee to proceed to foreclosure and secure the appointment of receivers for the Prince & Atlantic and that some of interest in the second mortgage bonds and Prince and Parks and Finney bonds are equally antagonistic of other creditors. There are questions of difference as to the interchange of traffic opportunities, and the sale of the properties and the use of equipment between the Atlantic and the Prince, which the trustee allege cannot be impartially determined by receivers to represent both companies, and the Prince general mortgage bondholders fear the interest of the Atlantic is to be injured and prejudiced to those of the Prince general mortgage bondholders. They therefore are loyal to the receivers in the state courts to secure the ownership of the appointment of receivers under state court jurisdiction, and that if the property is not sold, foreclosed, the present receivers may be retained and disinterested parties appointed.

FUTURE PRICE OF SILVER

The Sudden Increase of the Product Overwhelms the Market.

Not a Question of Demand but of Supply.—Group the White Metal Can Be Sold.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—The Evening Wall Street, The heavy break in silver bullion was by far the most striking financial incident of the day. As long as the recent market was confined to the speculation sale by the Sherman regulators, there was room to believe that the lowest price was seen a week ago. But the London market suddenly fell away plainly last night in New York, and this week, almost for the first time, it is universally edged that the heavy and sudden decline in the production overwhelmed the market. Not less significant is the known fact that this week's break in silver has been largely caused by sales effects from New York at prices below the London market. The lowest price of silver ever seen perhaps less on the Indian and Chinese demand than on the United States at which the large American producers are rushed to sell.

Washington Notes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—There was large attendance of the Society of Sons of Daughters of the American Revolution. A law defining the eligibility of certain applicants, the congress, limited to the reports by the memorial committee of the state. A resolution was taken to call on Mrs. Cleveland.

The sub-committee of the house committee on public lands, entrusted with report to the full committee favorably the bill of Cooper, Indiana, to permit states and territories to aid United States surveys, met today.

Herman, chairman of the Democratic caucus committee, says he thinks the caucus on the Wilson bill measure of party policy will be called on and that a call for a caucus for Monday will be issued.

Fire in a Mine.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 22.—A fire which is burning in the coal shaft of the Spring Hill Junction coal mine, which promises to destroy the entire plant, entailing a loss of $100,000. Stock excitement prevails, as it is feared the mine will be a total loss. The mine is one of the largest in central Illinois.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Speaker Crisp Sick.—The House Prayer.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—Speaker Crisp, confined to his house with a severe sore throat and cold, sent a note appointing Richardson, Tenn., speaker pro tem. for the day. The gallaries were crowded in anticipation of a repetition of the exciting scenes yesterday.

As soon as the journal was read, Adams, Dem., began clamoring for recognition on a question of personal privilege. He was being tired when the House adjourned yesterday. He (Adams) had a letter from Wise, Va., who said he was erroneously reported as voting in on the motion to adjourn. He denied that he had taken any part in the proceedings after the House had gone to order, or at all, to adjourn, in order to "put a stop to the disgraceful performance."

On request of Cummings, Rep., Wise was recognized on a point of order. The Speaker decided the pending question was the motion to discharge Adams from the custody of the sergeant-at-arms.

Adams was given leave to state his question of personal privilege. He wanted to know why yesterday, while explaining his vote, the speaker of the House should have been used to force him to his seat. It was an indignity while he was entirely in order and in the manifest of his duties.

The Chair stated that the question would have to be taken up as the pending question was on a discharge of a privileged privilege.

Bell made the point that the question should be to compel the sergeant-at-arms because the warrant under which he was arrested was unauthorized.

Hitt said he had not been a motion to discharge all under arrest at the sergeant-at-arms, for the House had ordered the persons upon him, putting him out.

The Democratic caucus is who down the previous question to give Bourbon a chance, but some more Democrats voted with the Republicans and the previous question was lost, 104 to 111.

Then Bond moved to adjourn, but for Reed's motion to postpone all other business and take up the gold standard bill. Reed moved the previous question and Bond demanded the yeas and nays, and the question was lost, 104 to 111.

Then Bond moved to adjourn, but
