A LIST OF KILLED.

Further Details of the Terrible Accident at Ford's Theater.

SUFFERING AND DISTRESS.

Many a Veteran in the Service of the Government Buried into Eternity.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Though there are persons known to have been in the building still unaccounted for this morning, the reported death list in the theater accident of yesterday is increased only by one.

Until late last night workmen were engaged in removing the wreckage of the building. Broken desks were removed, and a litter of papers and books gathered in and such as were of value have been taken in places of safety. The clerks who escaped, gathered around the wrecked building early and recounted their experiences in the calamity. No reliable building has yet been secured, and it will probably be several days before work can be resumed.

The stories of suffering and distress growing out of the calamity are heartrending. A coroner's jury was impaneled this morning and will begin the inquest on Monday. Investigation will also be made by the war department.

The following is a compilation of the death list:

George O. Allen, Pennsylvania, a veteran of the war; has been in the department since 1865.

George M. Arnold, Virginia, colored; leaves a widow.

Samuel P. Bates, Penn., war veteran; leaves a family.

T. W. Beedy, New York, no details.

John Busins, Washington City, war veteran; leaves a family.

J. E. Chapin, South Carolina; leaves a widow and three young children.

Jeremiah Daley, Pennsylvania, unmarried.

Joseph R. Fagan, Kansas; leaves a widow and two little girls, in straitened circumstances.

J. R. Gage, Michigan, war veteran; leaves a family.

J. M. Jarvis, Michigan; no details.

J. Lloyd Jones, Wisconsin; no details.

David Jordan, Missouri; leaves a family in poor circumstances.

Frederick B. Lefiux, New Jersey, more than thirty years in the government service; leaves a widow and six children.

J. H. McFall, Wisconsin, eleven years in the war department; leaves a wife and child.

In W. Beedy of New York, reported in the list of dead, escaped uninjured. This makes the total of deaths 22. There is also doubt about the death of Jarvis of Michigan.

At 7 o'clock this morning A. M. Gerault from New Jersey died of his injuries. He leaves a wife and a boy. Most of the injured are improving. It is altogether probable that when Secretary of War Lamont returns this afternoon he will accede to the request of Colonel Amsley for a court of inquiry to fix the responsibility for the accident.

Special Dispatch to the News.

RAWLINS, Wyo., June 10.—An important decision in a water right case has just been handed down in the district court of Carbon county. The title of the case is William G. Fourney against Donald McPhail. Fourney and McPhail are the owners of the "Fourney Ditching Company's Ditch" using the waters of Jack creek, Carbon county, Wyo., the former owning four-fifths of the ditch and the latter one-fifth. McPhail's land lies above the Fourney property, and it is charged that he has been in the habit of taking more than his proportion of the water. A perpetual injunction was granted restraining McPhail from taking more than one-fifth of the water flowing in Jack creek.

SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED.

The Latest Addition to Uncle Sam's Naval Forces.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—The big battle ship Massachusetts was successfully launched from the yards of Cramps this morning in the presence of Secretary of the Navy Herbert, Attorney General Olney, representing the state of Massachusetts, a number of distinguished naval and army officers and a multitude of 15,000. The big hull received the last touches of a coat of white paint above the water line, and very red below, on Thursday and was lowered on the ways, all ready to be sent overboard as soon as the tide stood at flood. When this arrived, the supports were cut away and as the vessel began to move, Miss Lois Herbert, daughter of the secretary of the navy, broke a bottle on the ship's prow, naming her Massachusetts. By severe momentum the latest addition to Uncle Sam's navy slid gracefully down the greased incline, and dashed into the Delaware river. When she reached midstream, tugs were thrown to tugs and the huge craft was soon made fast to the wharves, where she was moored the cruisers New York and Columbia and the ship of war Indiana.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Views of President J. M. Hill of the Great Northern.

Commercial Laws Not Controlled by Legislation.—How to Restore Confidence.

ST. PAUL, June 10th.—In view of the close personal relations existing between President Cleveland and President J. M. Hill of the Great Northern road, the following expression by the latter in response to a toast at the banquet to him here last night are considered significant: "The business of six years have been stormy financially, but the country at large is prosperous. The conditions of the country are more than usually favorable, and the conditions in the Northwest are certainly as promising as they have been at any time during the past ten years. If there is one thing more than another that has caused these jolts, it is the attempt on the part of those charged with our legislation to regulate by statute that cannot be controlled by legislation. Commercial laws are as certain in their operation as the laws of nature. Commercial laws carry with them the means to execute themselves. They enforce their own penalty. The condition of our country today is due to our financial legislation. If we could remove the executive Sherman act we would have what no money can do without. We would have confidence.

"I think the United States today stands better than any other part of the world for investment. If we could remove the one condition created about through the want of knowledge on the part of the men who were responsible for it, I have no doubt we would begin to see of prosperity the like of which we have never had. You can no more mend the financial or commercial conditions by legislation than you can mend a broken limb by a statute, and I hope the time will come when congressional wisdom will permit the repeal of every man in all the united rights will be the reasonable limit of our legislation, and when all our commercial matters will be governed by commercial law and commercial usages."

THE GALE SHORTAGE.

A Suit for $20,000.—Total Amount of the Embezzlement.

Special Dispatch to the News.

LARAMIE, Wyo., June 10.—City Attorney Brand has instituted a suit in the district court against Chas. T. Gale, ex-city treasurer, and Henry G. Balch and Robert Homer, sureties for Mr. Gale, in the sum of $20,000. This is a civil action begun for the purpose of recovering the amount of his embezzlement. The case will come up for trial at the September term of court. The criminal charge against Gale is also set for trial at that time. Another examination of Gale's books shows that the amount of his embezzlement is $12,007.83. Gale's bondsmen will endeavor to avoid payment alleging dereliction on the part of the city council in not looking after the city's finances.

HARRISON A CANDIDATE.

Said to Prepare for the Next Presidential Race.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The Times says: Samuel E. Morse, of Indiana, the consul general of Paris, today sailed for Europe. There is no doubt in my mind, said Morse, that Harrison is preparing to be a candidate for the Presidency in 1896. His friends are working for him and I have little doubt that they are preparing even now to send a Harrison delegation to the next national Republican convention.

Victims of the Riot.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Everything is quiet in the quarries and along the drainage canal in the neighborhood of Lemont today. George Kuksaus is added to the list of those killed in yesterday's fight. He died this morning. Another body was found today, but the name of the victim is unknown, though it is said he was one of the strikes leaders. Later in the day another unknown body was found literally riddled with bullets. It is now believed that there are from three to five dead bodies in the canal. At least a dozen were seen to plunge into the water after the first volley and the number who were killed in swimming out to safety is unknown. It is said that seventy failed to join. The canal is being swept for bodies. John Dugdale, one of the wounded, is expected to die any minute. The departure of the injured regiment of militia is believed to enable one further rioting impossible.

A DARING ROBBERY

Said to Have Occurred in Wanamaker's Store.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 10.—The facts connecting a daring robbery alleged to have occurred last Wednesday in the store of ex-Postmaster General Wanamaker have leaked out to-night. Wanamaker officials at first refused to have them from the public. The alleged victim of the daring theft was Rev. W. L. Popp, a Catholic priest, accompanying Cardinal Vaes of Quebec, Mexico, on a tour of the United States. During Wanamaker's recent trip through Mexico he was especially kind and attentive to Father Popp, and during the first day the party did some trading in Wanamaker's stores. Among other purchases at jewelrous they visited pawn or pawnbroker. Popp and other members of the party were not in a private room in Wanamaker's store. When they returned to Mr. Popp, after a search discovered that a small pocketbook containing valuable stones were missing. The pawns were satisfied, so far as known the missing stones were not returned. The pawnbroker says he said he have no longer jewelry to Vaes and the priest and the value is stated all the way from $500 to $5,000. The popular figure is $10,000.

Express Messenger Whitlivey refused to open the door and the robbers fired into the car and wounded him. The robbers blew open the door with dynamite and rifled the car of everything of value except what was contained in the through safe. Whitlivey was not seriously hurt. He is the messenger who shot off the Dalton gang at Red Rock, I. T., a year ago.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Asbury H. Greene of the "Tribune" Terribly Mangled.

RUN DOWN BY A U. P. TRAIN.

His Left Arm Crushed to a Pulp and His Right Leg Badly Broken.—His Remarkable Fortitude.

One of the saddest and most frightful accidents of local occurrence during this year happened near the big Union Pacific coal chute at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The victim was Asbury H. Greene, ex-manager of the defunct Salt Lake Times and now editor of a mining collection of the morning Tribune.

Mr. Greene went to the office this morning about a quarter to ninety. A little later he started for the Utah Soap company's place of business in the northwestern part of the city. On reaching the Union Pacific depot, it is stated (though it is not positively known) that he proceeded northward along the railroad track. However, when near the big chute in the coal yard his attention was called to the approaching of a train on a parallel track and he turned facing southward with a slight variation to the west. At that moment the two passenger trains from the north came around the curve at a high rate of speed and an instant later struck him in the back, knocking him down and mangling his left arm and fighting to a frightful manner.

The train was stopped as quickly after the accident as possible and a stretcher and express wagon produced in which the unfortunate man was taken away.

A NEWS reporter soon learned of Mr. Greene's misfortune and set out at once to gather particulars of the dreadful accident. First of all he was informed that Mr. Greene was dead and that his lifeless body had been taken to his home, No. 32 F street, and thither the reporter went. He had no sooner reached the gate, however, than he became partially convinced that the body had not arrived as all was quiet about the place. In response to a knock at the front door he received a pleasant greeting from the lady who answered the call and knew at once from her composed appearance that she had not heard the dreadful news.

The reporter, of course, was obliged to assume a hasty excuse as to his call, as he had no desire to be the bearer of evil things. He had hardly finished his explanation when the voice of Mrs. Greene was heard from within requesting him to step inside. He hesitatingly did so on being again asked.

Mrs. Greene was seated in her bed, pale and ill under the doctor's care and she explained that Mr. Greene must be seen at the timber office shortly before noon and at noon a ring at the latch, on his return for lunch.

All this time she was entirely oblivious as to the frightful fate of her husband and yet the News representative felt he detected a slight apprehension in her mind that something was wrong and leaving that she was about to frame some excuse for the purpose of questioning and be quickly withdrawn.

At that moment Mr. Greene was being carried into the sisters' hospital within a block of his own home. In less than two minutes the News reporter was at his side in the surgeon's room. His face was colorless, and his eyes were closed. He soon opened them, however, and seeing the reporter he called him by name and with a forced smile said, as he pointed with the index finger of his right hand to his left arm, which lay crushed, lacerated and bleeding across his breast, with fragments of bones exposed, "Look at it old boy, isn't it a beauty? It will have to come off I know it, but then—"

He seemed very cool and self by the appearance of Dr. Pinkerton who said feelingly, "Greene, my friend, I am sorry to see you here in this condition. How did it happen?"

"It was struck by a train. Say, doctor, it will have to come off, won't it?" (again pointing to the arm).

"Its a pretty bad arm," was the doctor's response.

Ten minutes later Mr. Greene was under an anesthetic. A tourniquet was applied near my between the elbow and shoulder joints, the crushed leg had been cased in a mould and bandaged with a view to setting it.

During the few minutes of preliminary arrangements by Drs. Pinkerton and Meacham before the surgical operation, Mr. Greene exhibited wonderful calmness, and to Mr. Lathian, manager of the Tribune, who had just arrived, he gave direction regarding business matters. Being told by Mr. Lannan to dismiss such things from his mind and keep up his grit, he replied firmly yet reasonably to the effect that he expects to come to the other given him by Dr. Meacham, "Oh, I have plenty of grit, Mr. Lannan." A few seconds later and he was unconscious.

The handling of Mr. Greene's right car, the one behind the engine, means the engine which ran him down was somewhat impaired and it is thought that his left side been spared the terrible misfortune which befell him. His wife was informed of the accident this afternoon and her grief was heart rending. Latest advices from the hospital are to the effect that the patient is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances and that he will probably recover sufficiently in the course of a couple of months to be at again. The only thing to be feared is the shock which will follow the operation.

Mr. Greene has a strong constitution and perfect health in his favor and these will prove important factors in his hoped for recovery. He was well known in Salt Lake and the sincerely will sympathize with him in his awful suffering and misfortune.

Through to Chicago.

Beginning on Tuesday next the Union Pacific will put on an extra through passenger coach between here and the White City owing to the increased Utah traffic.

MINES AND MILLS.

Rich Body of Ore Struck in the Silver Tunnel.—Tours Mills and the Fair.—Other News.

Red Street was in town today, and reported that a rich body of ore has been met with in the new tunnel at the Silver group of mines, Tintic. The owners have been operating in good ore from the start, but the tunnel was run in to reach the body at a lower point, and take it out without sinking. After running not feet the vein was reached. Some of the ore was taken out and shipped. It averaged sixty ounces in silver and $10 in gold per ton. With silver at its present extremely low figure, the mine is paying regular monthly dividends. "If we could get a decent price for silver," said Mr. Street, "we would have something immense. There would be some money coming in to increase our working force and make things lively."

The Utah Consolidated is another of the Tintic mines in which Mr. Street is interested, and which made a large shipment of ore to the city yesterday, as noted in the News. It is also a steady dividend payer, and a good force of men finds steady employment there.

STRIKE IN THE UTAH.

A tish strike is reported in the Utah mine at Tintic, owned by S. S. Jones and Ed. Lees, of Provo. They were doing development work only, and did not anticipate meeting the body of ore so soon there. The strike was therefore somewhat of a surprise to them. Their good fortune encourages them that when they get into the body of ore it will prove a bonanza.

AFTER THE CORNER STONE.

The First district court convened at Provo this morning, Associate Justice R. W. Smith in the bench. The venue for great fabric was reported, and a jury empaneled with Ann Hinckley as foreman. In the Chance Jackie Smith stated to the jurors that among other matters which would be brought to their attention there would probably be the circumstances connected with the recent blowing up of houses at the Hollister Rock mine, at Eureka. The judge called attention to the fact that it was generally understood that some kind of orgs in this section had recently which sought to overcome the people by lawless deeds. He called attention to the law in the premises and directed the jury to make a searching investigation of the case, and charged under the law against any offenders of whom information might be given by competent witnesses.

FIRST MILLS AND THE FAIR.

In an interview published in the Newspaper today, regarding Utah's exhibit at the World's Fair, Hon. Heber Bishop stated that "two of our best good manufacturing institutions have not exhibited in Texas." One of these two was, of course, the Provo Woolen Mills. Manager J. C. Cutler was required of today for the reason of the non-appearance of any samples from the Provo mills, and replied, "I'll was not our fault. They gave us no opportunity. The mills, as the public are aware, were shut down for a considerable time last winter and this spring. We were given to understand that the machinery would be ready for operation and that they must be in by May 1. We had nothing on hand that would meet this requirement, and the mills did not start in time to make any, so it was simply out of the question so far as we were concerned. We could not send any leftover goods to be shown in comparison with new and specially made cloths. I have just received a letter from Commissioner Empey, saying that we can send something now, and that he will let us know in a few days how to ship it. If we had known earlier that goods would have been received later than the first of May, we would have made up something. Even as it, we have nothing on hand but specially manufactured cloth. We have our regular line of fine wool goods which I believe are as good as can be shown anywhere, and as the directors meet on Monday, if Commissioner Empey's other letter arrives in time, something may be done."

Mr. Cutler's statement is a conclusive reply to any attempt to fasten blame on the mills. The fact that they were shut down is sole cause of their being not exhibit. The same condition probably covers the ground in relation to the Deseret mills.

THE "STAR" COMPANY.

A change is to take place in the officials of the Star Mining company. Arthur W. Stagner, who has been secretary for some time, has decided to retire, and filed his resignation with the board of directors. The latter will meet on Monday and fill the vacancy. In the meantime the duties of the office are attended to at Elias Morris' place of business, 21 west, South Temple street.

NOTES.

The mines of Alta, Little Cottonwood, are coming up again, now that the snow is gone so much as to permit operations, and shipments of ore will soon be made.

The Helper Queen mine at Iley Canyon reports a strike of ore which assays 100 ounces in silver. In running an upraise in the mine a body of ore about a foot wide was encountered.

The articles of incorporation of the Bonanza Gold Mining and Milling company, which were filed with the county clerk some three months ago, as noted in the News at the time, were filed with Territorial Secretary Rodiaz yesterday.

A very signed ore has been reached in the Uncopia mine at Osceola, Nevada. Aurelius Miner, secretary and treasurer of the company, has received samples of the ore, which is free milling, and of which there is said to be a large body.

THE COMING RACES.

Arrival of a String of Famous California Horses Today.

Active Training for the June Meeting Now On at the Track.—Items Will Be in It.

A visit to the race course will convince anyone that the coming races, which begin on Saturday, June 17, and continue until the following Saturday, will be the greatest ever witnessed in this city.

The horses are more forward in training than they were last spring and they are, as a rule, a better class. The entries display the names of the owners famous stables of California and Colorado, while Utah owned horses will show up much speedier than at previous meetings.

It will be Jackie Smith appearance since coming for prominent owner of 2:16, while W. H. Green's Anaconda Park horse, Jayson, has recently strided enough speed to warrant owners to put him in the 2:15 pace. There are a dozen young Utah horses that will surprise the men who do not keep pace with the swift strides that have been breeding for taken in the Territory during the last two years.

It is worth while to go out some morning to see them working the horses. The animals are put through just the same course of operations as if they were in real race. There are lines starts to try their wind before the start is made and they are timed and also jacked so if they were being given a trial. Horses will be two or three horses to be worked together, for in this way they are stimulated to greater speed. A. H. Dole's Sawing and Gemile Jones are worked together. Yesterday the boys worked out three heats in 2:24 5-8.

T. Hamilton's Fonte three heats on Friday in 2:25, 2:23 and 2:21, which is very even work.

Pete Williams, the famous California trainer, arrived in the city today with a string of famous horses. Seeing is already on the track with a fast string. Our Dick has a mark of 2:16½, Gettinger, 2:21½, and James L., 2:20.

Lee Shaner is one of the latest men in, and comes fresh from what may be termed "a clean sweep" at San Francisco, for he won three races out of four entries.

George Woodburge, by Alamoed, who won the mile and repeat in 1:53 (equal to a 2:26 gait) is entered in the 2:30 trot.

Kitty B, also owned by Mr. Shaner, won the 1 1-8 mile race in 2:00. Another horse, Morrison, won the three-year-old dash at 1 1-16 mile 2:00. He has also got on their string Lady H., a pacer with a 2:18 record.

These horses were winners in the last summer meeting that San Francisco ever had and they will no doubt be heard from during the Salt Lake meeting.

The Denver races end today and the horses will begin to come in Sunday and Monday, when the stables on the track will be more than full.

Most of the California stables will begin working their horses Monday morning, when it will be quite lively on the track.

A great many visitors are expected in the city during the race, all the railroads having made half rate.

Quorum Meeting.

The Thirteenth quorum of Seventies will hold their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clock, in the Nineteenth ward house of worship on Peach street.

Today's Probate Court.

The following orders were made by Judge Hart in the Probate court this morning:

Estate of Thomas S. Young, deceased. Hearing on final account and petition for distribution and petition for final discharge of administrator. Decree allowed as prayed.

Estate of Hiram H. Eldridge, deceased. Hearing on petition for confirmation of sale of personal property, and order made in accordance therewith. Administrator's account approved.

The Warren Frazier estate. This matter came on without notice on petition of the attorney of the estate for an order to have the administratrix put up additional costs in the sum of $20. Order made as prayed.

WHO'LL HAVE HIM?

Matters in Regard to the Custody of Master Wallace Hart.

THE MOTHER MAKES ANOTHER TRY.

An Undomesticated Young Wife Becomes Homesick and Returns to California.—A Divorce Failure.

Chief Justice Zane having gone to Colorado Springs, whence he will return on Monday next, the place in the Third district court this morning was taken by Judge Bartch, who heard a number of matters of the usual "weekly" order. These occupied his honor's time till 12:30, when an adjournment was taken until 2 p. m.

The only subjects of public interest, however, during the afternoon were an application in regard to the custody of the Hart infant and the hearing of a suit for divorce.

CUSTODY OF MASTER HART.

Soon after Judge Bartch had taken his seat, Attorney Jones (Jones & Schroeder) asked the court to hear his motion for a modification of the decree in regard to the custody of Wallace J., the little son of Andrew J. and Helen M. Hart, with the part values of which controversy reacted of the News are by this time familiar.

Judge Powers, representing Mr. Hart, asked that the matter be transferred to Judge Zane, who he considered was the proper person to hear the application. He said there was evidently a purpose on the part of the other side to now bring up the case before his honor (Judge Bartch) and that, he suggested, was to have it heard by a judge unfamiliar with the surroundings.

Attorney Jones emphatically protested that there was no such thought in the mind of Mrs. Hart's counsel. The day, he said, he asked call, was not that before Judge Zane at all, but was referred to Judge Henderson as referee. He took all the testimony and reported the findings to the court, and upon his report the decree was entered. Mrs. Hart's counsel had tried to get this present matter to Judge Zane, but his honor could not take it up for want of time. Hence he had cited the defendant to appear here this morning, being fixed anxious either to obtain a modification of the decree in regard to the child's custody or to know whether it could not be worded and be modified. He saw no reason why the case should not be heard now and disposed of. If there was any question, counsel had the findings with him. All Judge Zane did was to sign the findings and decree.

Judge Bartch finally said: Judge Zane should either hear the case or refer it. I think under all the circumstances I should not care to take it up, so counsel are not agreed upon it, so it seems to be referred to me. Judge Zane will probably be here next Monday and you can go before him then."

Attorney Jones (in conclusion)—Counsel is waiting to try the case by stipulation, I see. If Judge Zane transfers it to your honor's court, then he (Mr. Henderson) you will hear it.

Judge Bartch—Certainly. Judge Zane will have to hear it. I have no objection to so do, but I would not like to take it up under the present circumstances.

SHE WASN'T DOMESTICATED.

The divorce suit of Wm. E. Carey vs. Ella M. Carey, on the ground of desertion, was then heard, Attorneys Card and Cox appearing for the plaintiff.

The parties were married at San Francisco on May 22nd, 1889, and subsequently came to Salt Lake, where the plaintiff engaged in business. About two and a half years ago the wife became homesick, left her husband and she could not live "in this country" and that she should return to her relatives in California. Soon after that she left him, and although he has several times written requesting her to return, and offered to send money to defray her traveling expenses, she has persistently refused to do so.

Judge Bartch asked the plaintiff whether his wife, while they lived together, properly discharged her duties as a wife.

Witness—She couldn't even really tell a drop of water if you came to it. (Laughter.) She was not at all domesticated. I knew very little about her before we were married, and I first met her by accident at Seattle.

Judge Bartch—Did you always treat her well?

Witness—I tried to as far as I knew how.

Judge Bartch—Did you have any quarrel?

Witness—Nothing to speak of—no serious quarrels—only through my meeting upon her staying here.

The defendant also stated that he had $1,000 in his possession when he first became acquainted with his wife, but had run through the whole of it.

Judge Bartch granted the decree as prayed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

His honor then heard and determined a long list of unimportant motions. Among those of more consequence were the following:

The case of the Crescent Mining Co. vs the Alliance Mining Co. was dismissed by consent and leave given to withdraw the bond on injunction, each party to pay their own costs.

In the case of John White vs the U. P. Railroad Co., twenty days were allowed in which to file a bill of exceptions.

Thrown From a Horse.

Michael Clare, of Kayesville, was thrown from a horse on Wednesday evening, about 8:30, as he was returning home from visiting his intended bride, to whom he was to have been married yesterday. He was badly bruised, and received internal injuries which the surgeon says are dangerous.
