Where Millionaires Congregate.

There are over 1,000 men in New York and Brooklyn, according to the latest estimate, who are worth between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 each, and the most of them are entirely unknown to the general public. Andy two citizens of New York—John D. Rockefeller and W. W. Astor—are supposed to be worth more than $100,000,000 apiece, but there are nine who are each worth $[illegible] and over [illegible]. The total number of millionaires in these two cities is greater than in all the rest of the country.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

PHENOMENAL.

The Good Work About to Be Closed in Salt Lake City.

We are informed by good authority that the Shakers Medicine company will soon take their departure from our midst. They will surely be missed by all our citizens, both old and young, on account of the great good their medicines have done since their arrival in our city, as well as for the excellent entertainments that they have given nightly at their lot adjoining the Knutsford. We called on the Shaker Doctor yesterday afternoon and had a pleasant chat for a few minutes, but his business was so urgent that our visit was greatly abbreviated. The Doctor speaks highly of our citizens, and did us the proud honor of stating that in all his travels over the American continent he never before was in a city the size of Salt Lake from which the daily papers had such a widespread circulation, and were so closely read. Since he has been here he has received mail from all the adjoining states, which he traces to the announcements in this paper.

We regret that these gentlemen are compelled to make their visit so short, but the doctor assures us that while the business is sufficient to justify a prolonged stay, duty compels him to hasten to other fields so as to finish allotted territory by the end of the year. Those who are in possession of cards of admission to the Doctor's office should hasten to avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing him this week. To such people he will be in his office at the Walker house from 9 to 11 a. m. and 1 to 5 p. m. for the remainder of this week—and will probably move Sunday to some other point. He requests that the children competing in the "Word Prize" contest send their work and get their marks to him by 4 p. m. Saturday next, so that the awards may be presented that night.

Suppose we gave you a package of Schilling's Best tea, and said, "You needn't pay for this unless you like it."

You'd say, "Thank you," and try it.

Your grocer will give you a package of Schilling's Best; you give him fifty cents. You try it and don't like it, and tell him so.

He gives you fifty cents back; we give him fifty cents.

Schilling's Best is going to win—on its merits.
