The late cold spell has greatly injured the fruit on the lower Snake river, Idaho. Mr. Petersen reported to a Spokane correspondent last week that the peaches and apricots were entirely killed and that the plums and other fruits were also injured.

On Thursday night the choir at Lehi had a very enjoyable time in the upper room of Broadbent & Co's store. It was this shape.

James P. McDade, editor and proprietor of the Buena Vista (Colo.) Record, has just closed up the Cincinnati Enquirer, it sees Vista. Bailey (Idaho) Times—Snowslides having blockaded the road between the mine and mill, all the miners and mill hands employed at the North Star property, on the east fork of Wood river, were put to work Thursday mining at shoveling the snow off the pipe so as to enable the management to get ore to the mill.

A dispatch from Sheridan says: C. H. Grinnell and William Burgess of this place are the pioneers in extensive development of the inexhaustible coal measures in the Powder river vicinity. They have secured title to several hundred acres, have contracts in the South Dakota and Nebraska markets, and are placing a large plant. Trackage has been supplied by the Burlington. The coal veins owned by them is said to be the greatest in the world, measuring seventy feet.

Rawlins (Wyo.) real estate is still on the upward grade. Lots that could be bought last week for $150 speculators cannot touch now for double that price. Those parties are wise who buy at the present time. Even if you do not care to build, by holding the property a short time you can realize a handsome profit, remarks the Rawlins Journal. Indications all point to a season of unprecedented activity in building here next summer, and already carpenters are preparing for extensive jobs.

Trace of Peter Anderson, who robbed his employer, C. F. Johnson, at Carbon, Wyoming, one week ago, of over $300, has appeared in the shape of a certificate of deposit for $50 on the Cathcart State bank to the order of Miss Nellie Bolson. Anderson had forged Miss Bolson's name and signed his name as John Miller. The certificate was presented at the Frontier Bank at Niagara, Niagara Falls, New York. Since Anderson's departure from Carbon it has been discovered that he had stolen about $100 from Jacobs, Hahn & Co., of Hanna, and had money belonging to other parties.

The fact has just come to light that last fall, says the Idaho Falls Register, several of our ranchers were gulled by a disreputable insurance agent who represented a company doing business in Idaho and would insure almost anything and to any amount just to suit the whims of his victim, and collecting the initiatory fee. For instance he would insure hay and grain in the stack when the company knew nothing of the kind of business, and as a consequence the farmer would loose when he paid the agent. About twenty-five persons were taken in by him.

A remarkable instance of recovered sanity was brought to light in the county court at Denver, a few days ago. Annie E. Westall, who had been sent to the Public asylum eight years ago, having been pronounced hopelessly insane, was brought before Judge Le Fever and found to be entirely recovered. Nearly eight years ago she was the happy wife of an engineer on the South Park road, and the mother of two bright boys and a great little girl scarcely two years old. The winter of 1885 was a very severe one, and blockades were frequent on the mountain roads. The husband was caught in one of these storms and prevented from reaching home. His wife, certain as she was in him, was driven to distraction at his non-appearance, and on the second day began to act in a very strange manner. At the unlucky moment a sleigh bell, long expected along, sounded close, and, taking the situation, made the poor mother believe that the wife would never see her husband again. That night the neighbors were alarmed by loud cries and upon going to the house found the woman a raving maniac. Her hallucinations were wild and varied. She thought the master mechanic was coming in a hearse for the man who mainly was her husband, and would start about the shops for hours at a time. She was a devout Catholic, and imagining one of her neighbors to be the Virgin Mary, insisted upon sprinkling her with water. She was frequently seen on the steps of St. Elizabeth's church, and would stay there until one of the priests came out and persuaded her to go home. After a month she was pronounced hopelessly insane and sent to the Public asylum, from which no one ever expected to see her emerge alive and in her right mind. For some month past she had shown symptoms of returning reason, and at last Dr. Toomy, superintendent of the asylum, pronounced her cured. She was brought to Denver, adjudged sane, and yesterday left for Iowa, where she expects to find some of her relatives.—Denver News.
