AN ADMIRER OF UTAH.

J. M. Stutchakre Writes About the Land Where Milk and Honey Flow.

Mr. J. M. Stutchakre sends the subjoined letter to the South Bend, Ind., Times:

Salt Lake City, Utah, June 26, 1898.

"Let me give you a brief sketch of my visit to this city and its wonderful valley. Almost a full quarter of a hour I remained the happy guest of the Best Bachelorhood wagon, made by my own hands, and now built by my brother, the first right of the invention belongs and my kind reception by Brigham Young and his small family, and those who had years before actively helped and endured the trials and hardships and dangers from savages and wild beasts in building up a home for all time. Not one will ever be able to realize the trials and hardships of Brigham Young on entering this valley, unless it be the invincible little band that accompanied him on his mission, in 1846, from Illinois to the Great Salt Lake valley, and I believe Waterloo day, but not of Brigham Young, and he and his family are and a great deal more, he was not enough to calculate on contrary to his words. He spoke literally and unlimited home industry and the cultivation of good farms, as he said, "Plant or starve." Not only that, it is strength. In my own mind the hill the writer has called Mount Ararat, the provisions of all good, and President Buchanan of Pennsylvania, who, with his wife, stood on the Chief's house to see the return, as the great lawyer of the telegraph, Prof. Morse, said in window in Washington, and at the Salt Lake City, said, "What hath God wrought?" I believe I am justified in saying that Brigham Young is more what Lincoln, Young was, as Lincoln founded the Mormon Church in this country, and Brigham Young made it prosperous, and I believe I could say, if I have said it and that they are and are good people in spirit and so hard to their church as the Mormons are, and what I have seen and learned, the Mormon Church was as those who believe in God think it ought to be, and the Church has had many Committees. They shun this to their system of tithing. When a man first enters and joins and consecrated they are paid for, and the rich and poor pay it according to their income. There are no paupers or beggars in the Mormon Church either in the city or country. They care for their own poor. The tithing is different during the year, they pay in produce, and the poor, with work and money, are provided for. I have been 1 day's time and can be found that they are a prosperous Church and a prosperous people, and it is owing to their great industry, and, I believe, to God's help, the creation of their people to the highest civilization and greatest prosperity and prosperity. As an example of this, you need only to see their experimental lodge, and I believe it is the only experimental lodge in the world, and located in the beautiful city of Lehi, Utah, where live some old Gentiles who have seen and experienced the evil consequences of their children.

"My brother-in-law of St. Joseph county will scarcely believe me when I tell them of the farming possibilities of Utah and south Idaho. Land sells in bottom, the cleanest of hay, timothy and clover, they raise per acre four to six tons each cutting and two cuttings per year, which from 10 to eight tons per acre each year, cutting three crops per year, which from 40 to 50 bushels per acre; potatoes 250 to 500 bushels per acre; wheat from 25 to 30 bushels per acre; and fruit of all kinds in great abundance. They have been known to sell from $10 to $15 worth of cherries from a tree, and the trees are large and productive from one to three hundred dollars per acre. One orchard of 20 acres where has five years gathered an average of 1,000 bushels of apples per year, averaging an average price of $1.50 per bushel. Another four years gathered and sold an income of $1,000 per year for small fruits, and another ten years of apples has yielded an hundred and bushels to the tree. For land near Salt Lake, ranges per from $75 to $2 per acre rich, for water and water for the market. The size of farms is from 20 to 160 acres. All farmers have more or less irrigation and water. They have the finest looking cows I ever saw, with generous conformation every few miles. Many farmers have from one to five hundred head of cows in the mountains in the summer and are brought home to stay or cut up the cows of her harvest.

"As I looked into the harvest fields here, it carried me back to my own home, where you see brothers and sisters sole to one in the Sun State, as I believed were my own. I have in the valley 100 miles long, 15 to 40 miles wide, that can produce and feed millions of people. There is a valley 100 miles long, 15 to 40 miles wide, that can produce and feed millions of people. Here
