Salt Lake City has a new public park, and it was formally dedicated as such yesterday afternoon. The celebration took the form of a public meeting, at which Mayor Clark presided. The exercises were performed on a specially erected stand in front of the block, with the Tabernacle as a shelter. On the stand were members of the City Council, Pioneer Board and Camping Pioneers, Rev. Dr. Hill Moore, Rev. E. F. Bird, W. C. A. Smith, Mrs. E. R. Eldredge, Mrs. E. R. Walts, Mrs. E. C. F. Moss, and a Prof. Cannon read a long paper descriptive of the park as it is to be and was.

MAYOR CLARK'S ADDRESS.

Mayor C. S. Clark, the presiding officer, then made a few remarks. He said: Fellow-Citizens, Ladies and Gentlemen: We have met here this afternoon at the opening of a new park in Salt Lake City. At the time we set out to be technically a dedication of this beautiful park, I felt it to be a matter of nothing by which we could better commemorate the day of the dedication of this beautiful park than by inviting the citizens of the city, young and old, to participate in a public park for the south side of Salt Lake, that President Brigham Young, when living, had selected for a public park, and which, in the year 1847, that President Brigham Young, when with the pioneers, had selected and dedicated for a public park, and which, in the year 1849, that President Brigham Young, when with the pioneers, had selected and dedicated for a public park, and which, in the year 1851, that President Brigham Young, when with the pioneers, had selected and dedicated for a public park, and which, in the year 1852, that President Brigham Young, when with the pioneers, had selected and dedicated for a public park, and which, in the year 1853, that President Brigham Young, when with the pioneers, had selected and dedicated for a public park, and which, in the year
