OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, - FEB. 1, 1896.

Junction City Items.

One Woodmansee was arrested yesterday for cruelty to animals. He was driving down Thirty-third street, when his wagon wheel got into a rut from which his team was unable to pull it. It is alleged that for two hours Woodmansee brutally pounded his horses, during which time a number of teamsters offered to assist to pull the wagon out of the hole, his reply being that he would make his own team pull out or kill them, which he was at last successful in doing, one of the horses dropping dead from the effects of his treatment.

It is rumored that Utah Northern freight cars will have to run through to Salt Lake City, which business men here are very much opposed to.

Arrangements have been made to give the Uintah county party a royal reception on Monday when they come to Ogden to stay two weeks.

On account of the Home for the Friendless being crowded, two little girls had to lodge at the jail all night.

The Little Mountain gulch excitement is cooling off.

Box Elder Stake Conference.

The quarterly conference of Box Elder Stake was held at Brigham City, Jan. 26th and 27th, 1896. There were present, as visitors, Elders Geo. Teasdale, Seymour B. Young, Lorin Farr, Richard Waite, Lorenzo Snow and Wm. Palmer.

The Brigham City tabernacle was filled to overflowing at all the meetings.

Sunday, at 10 a.m.—After services were regularly commenced by singing and prayer, President Rudger Clawson gave a brief report of the condition of the Stake; said there were many in this Stake who desire to promote a spirit of charity and brotherly love; the various organizations are in active working order and are fairly complete; in the quorums the presiding officers are always present at the regular meetings; the brethren who preside over the Stake are united in all their operations, as also the High Council; the tithing record is favorable for the past year; had observed that the wards that are doing the most by way of building meeting houses and the like pay the best tithing; felt that he had been well paid for every good deed that he had ever done for the work of God. Elder Seymour B. Young felt that gratefulness in this Stake are times of refreshing. We have had experiences in the past and it is hoped that we are growing in intelligence and wisdom. Every Elder in Israel must understand his position and letters of inquiry in regard to missionary work should awaken a desire to fulfil any requirement that may be made of us. Aim to filled with all manner of righteousness and in the midst of one's labor the powers of the evil one; young people are called upon to think and act for themselves to see if they can rise above these evils and take upon themselves the armor of the Gospel.

2 p.m.—Elder George Teasdale said those who accept responsibilities in the Priesthood should be as clay in the hands of the potter for this is the covenant they have made. The Gospel has been restored and there is no reason why a person who desires to know the truth should walk in darkness. Life and death are placed before us and we can choose whichever we desire. It is our mission to call all human beings to repent of their sins. Young men can manifest the dignity of their character by refusing to partake of evils. If parents do not exercise righteous dominion over their children they come under condemnation. We should sit in judgment on ourselves and not so much on our neighbors.

10 a.m. Monday.—Remarks were made by A. Maiben, Chas. Kelly, H. M. Young, Wm. Palmer and Lorenzo Snow who gave some excellent testimonies and experiences.

In the afternoon Bishop Barnard White gave some interesting incidents which he had witnessed. The faith and knowledge of the Gospel he had obtained had been by a life-long effort. The Gospel is so easy to understand that it is almost impossible to err if we have the spirit of God. Had been a member of the Church about forty years and had passed through some of the hardships incident to the settlement of this country. Looked upon Utah today with pride for the Lord has blessed the land for our sakes. Elders George Teasdale and Crendall Young occupied the remainder of the time in exhorting the Saints to works of righteousness.

On Monday evening an interesting well-attended Priesthood meeting was held.

At the close of the conference all seemed to feel they were well paid for attending.

Agricultural College Notes.

The Experiment Station building is now devoted almost entirely to chemistry and assaying. A new assay furnace has just been completed in the basement. Professor MacEwan, whose somewhat extensive library of classic English, German and French literature, has been located in this building, has been asked by the college authorities to name a price at which he will sell his books to the college. The collection is the growth of fifteen years and contains among other valuable literature, about 300 volumes of Shakespeare and Shakespeareana.

The station workers are engaged on Bulletins. Professor Mills has just issued one on "The Economic Production of Pork." He is preparing another on "Farm Crops." Professor Redfield is putting on "Testing Dairy Foods." Professor Richman is at work on "Orchard Experiments," and Professor Fortier on "Reservoirs." The station chemist is analyzing about 100 specimens of soils, mostly from Cache and Sanpete counties.

Among recent college talks in the use only of the students have been one on Persuasion I: Sermon by Dr. Anjeley, one on Moral Culture by Prof. J. Laugton of the B. Y. college, and one on Improvement of Present Opportunities by Mr. J. E. Stewart, minority of the B. Y. college. Thursday morning a school quartette from the Tabernacle choir sang some sacred pieces, instead of the regular college talk.

College festivities are popular. The college band and the athletic club have each given balls recently. A cantata, The Waif's Christmas, will be presented soon, under the direction of Mr. J. E. Hyde. This entertainment will be supplemented with a farce, The Quiet Family, by the Home Dramatic club.

The library has been the general study room for students when not in classes. The large note-her at stands necessitates using the large chapel for that purpose now. The books are accordingly being moved to the new and more capacious quarters. This room seats about 1,000.

There are now enrolled 480 students; this is more than have been enrolled at any other time in the history of the institution. Japan contributes one; Idaho, Wyoming, Oregon, Colorado and Mexico contribute several each. Almost every county in Utah is represented.

The number of students in the special short winter courses in agricultural subjects, ranges from half a dozen to a dozen. Dairying seems to be most sought. There are over twenty young women taking the short winter course in cooking and sewing.

The grand jury of the First judicial district visited the college Thursday, and banqueted with the young women's cooking class. If any indictments have been found, they have not been published.

The Achean League.

The Achean league was formed by the 12 towns of Achaia for mutual protection against foreign aggression. It was broken up by Alexander the Great, but reorganized B. C. 280 and again dissolved B. C. 147. The secret of these leagues comprised all the leading cities of the Peloponnesus, and, indeed, most of the cities and states of Greece. It was this league which contended with the Romans for the independence of Greece; but, its troops being defeated by Metellus at Scarphea and by Mummius near Corinth, the league was dissolved, and all Greece submitted to the Roman domination.

OBITUARY.

JOHN THOMAS ASHMAN.

Died at Fillmore, January 27th, 1896, John Thomas Ashman, son of Patriarch John Ashman and Ann his wife. Deceased was born at Wombleome, near Leeds, Yorkshire, England, March 29, 1833, and came to Fillmore with his parents in 1864. He married at the age of seventeen years Elizabeth Hoel, who has borne him eleven children, eight of whom—six boys and two girls, now mourn the loss of an indulgent father.

Brother Ashman was an energetic and valued citizen, and has been elected to many offices of trust, both municipal and county, all of which he filled with honor.

He had a lingering sickness (muscular rheumatism) and suffered with heroic fortitude for many months. All was done for him that science and loving friendship could suggest, until he knew that he must cross the span which separates this from a higher life. Then he called his family and friends around him, like unto one about to leave for a foreign mission; he counselled his sons as to their future course in life, and gave instructions to his friends about his temporal affairs, as one who had borrowed strength from beyond the veil; he even named those who should wash his body after death, then resignedly passed away.

There was a very large gathering at the funeral on Sunday the 26th. The long procession was led by the Fillmore brass band playing appropriate music. The speakers chosen by the deceased were Elders Joshua Greenwood, James A. Melville and Bishop T. C. Callister, all of whom spoke of their long and honorable acquaintance with the dead, and gave lessons of counsel to the living. The Holden choir came over to do the singing, as the deceased, his mother, and sister and other relatives were members of our choir. The aged father is resigned, with the knowledge that his son is united with the Holy Priesthood in preparing him in his new field of labor.
