Drowned By a Horse Falling While Crossing a Stream.

DIED FROM A SPIDER'S BITE.

Kill-d While Hunting—Hard Luck in Idaho—Gun Accident—In Old Silver Dollar.

During the four years the bounty law for wild animals was in force in California $102,155 was paid as bounties for coyotes. In the last month before the repeal the amount paid was $10,993.

The special commissioners of the Fair estate have sued the Bank of Ukiah and sureties in San Francisco to recover a street assessment lien for $1,193.10, alleged to be due from the estate on account of the grading of Devisadero street from Fulton to Hayes.

George W. King, son of the late M. J. King, died at Stockton, Cal., on Monday, from blood poisoning caused by the bite of a spider. Deceased was a native of Sacramento and 27 years of age. He was formerly employed at the railroad shops there but went to Mexico a few weeks ago. He was bitten up a spider in one of his nostrils, and blood-poisoning ensued, causing his death.

Antone Verango, a Greek, aged 25, was murdered at Clifton, Oregon, Monday morning, while a boy was waiting back of the house, he came upon the body of young Verango lying by the side of the road. The wound found that the man had been stabbed above the left nipple. No motive is known to have existed for the commission of the crime, but it is possibly the result of the late strike.

James T. Fanning, a pioneer resident of Modesto, Cal., was drowned in the Tuolumne river Monday afternoon while attempting to cross the river. He was in a light wagon drawn by six horses with a companion named James Hines. When in mid-stream the horse fell and Fanning cut the harness and attempted to lead the animal to the bank. The horse fell and knocked Fanning down and his body was whirled and recovered fifty yards further down. There are but three or four feet of water in the river. The deceased was 68 years of age and a native of Ireland.

The army of Oakland's (Cal.) religious fanatics has received a recruit from an unexpected quarter. Ben Hill, ex-baseball player and bartender, converted of murdering his wife some months ago, conducts a Bible class daily in the county jail, and is said to be assisting in his efforts for the religious welfare of his fellow prisoners. Jailer Lane says that he believes Hill to be absolutely sincere. He has made a number of converts. It was contrary to Hill's wish that his case was appealed to the supreme court. He freely admits his guilt, and expresses his readiness to pay the penalty of his crime with his life.

James Eldred, a most eccentric character, died at Santa Barbara, Cal., on Monday. He was born in Vermont in 1818, was a forty-niner and a member of Walker's filibustering expedition. He afterward was in the lumber business in Alameda, and made money in Los Angeles real estate. He came to Santa Barbara twelve years ago, purchased property and improved it. The city council in grading the streets destroyed his improvements, and Eldred spent the last years of his life in litigation with that body. He was a bachelor and all sentiment, and in 1884 won $5,000 on Cleveland. He was generally known as the "Old man on the corner."

R. Robinson of South Seattle, Wash., has in his possession a silver dollar of the issue of 1799, says the Seattle Evening Times. It is a curious looking piece of money. The coin is somewhat larger than the silver dollar now in use, and of about the same thickness. On one side lies an eagle's claw, on which is the word "Liberty," with a bonnet woman's head, supposed to resemble "Liberty." Beneath the head is the date. On the reverse side is the lettering "United States of America," eagle and shield, with stars overhead. "E Pluribus Unum" also appears on the coin. The edge of the coin is stamped with the words "One dollar or unit. One hundred cents." Mr. Robinson has had the coin forty years and prizes it very highly.

For some months the whaling crew at Pigeon Point, Cal., had been idle, as no whales were in sight. Early last week whales began to appear. Friday evening the lookout sighted one and John Bennett's crew immediately started to give chase. The boat was soon after the monster, which was determined to give battle. When within shooting distance harpoons were sent quivering into the whale's body. The only strikes the leviathan, which twirled the water into foam, then suddenly started off with such rapidity that nearly all the line attached to the harpoon spun out and the boat spun over the water at a terrific pace. Then another harpoon was sent into the whale. This time it gave signs of surrendering, although the battle was by no means finished. While another harpoon was being made ready, Amesse, the gunner of the crew, was handling a bomb when it suddenly exploded, striking him in the stomach and killing him almost instantly. The whale was captured.

A Liberal Minded Lover.

"What is that big book in the corner?" said the young man who had called at young Mr. Easytal's apartments.

"That's my scrapbook."

"Full of pictures and poetry and stuff, I suppose."

"No. Souvenirs. Take a look into it."

Lifting the ponderous volume to a table, the visitor opened it and exclaimed, "Why, this looks like a collection of lottery tickets."

"That shows you never played the game. They're tickets that the bankers gave me in exchange for a liberal percentage of my income. They're certificates of stock in enterprises that never declared a dividend. They're receipts for a liberal fee in a long course of lectures in the school of experience."

"Most people lose things like these up, do they not?"

"Yes. But I saved them. I wanted them to remind me of the good times I had for and never had. They represent experiences that belong to the jolly past and which will never be repeated."

"You mean that you are going to stay away from the race track hereafter?"

"Yes."

"That shows your good sense. It costs a lot of money in the end."

"I don't begrudge the money so much. It wasn't my capacity that shelled. It was my pride."—Detroit Free Press.

Natural Reasons for Coal.

Most people know that coal is full of vegetable remains, but comparatively few are aware of the fact that animal and insect bodies by countless millions also go to make up the great beds of fuel that are now being so extensively drawn upon. The vegetable remains are the wood of the stems and stems and the rind, are very beautiful as well as numerous, are less than 1,000 different kinds of plants having been secured in the carboniferous seams in the different parts of the world. Scored thoroughly are very much like those now living, but the majority of them, even those found in Nova Scotia or Ireland, appear to be representatives of what are now tropical varieties.

Many animals and insects are also found in the coal beds and thoroughly preserved in the coal beds. These petrified creatures of the hypergeage called the "coal period" are of various kinds. Huge beetles equipped with beautiful teeth, small rare insects, great fish with tremendous jaws, tiny water mites, snails, "hundred legged" worms and the possible ancestors of the grasshoppers and dragon fly tribes are also found. The curious fact is that there is not a single representative of these families remains now living.—St. Louis Republic.

Home Plants.

Many a little woman poorly crew her eyes out because her house plants die inch by inch when she "takes such good care of them." The fact of the matter is, house plants in gaslighted rooms simply die a death of torture. You will have to give up gas or the plants.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the most natural method of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skilled physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed, everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.
