LOCAL BRIEFS.

The council committee on control of the city and county building met in the mayor's office yesterday and appointed R. W. McAllister to the position of watchman to succeed Axel Ustrom who resigned.

The little flurry of snow that passed over this city this morning, was the skidding of a fall that was more extended elsewhere at Modena there was a snowfall of 16 inch, and there was snow in Wyoming, Colorado and northern New Mexico.

The revival meetings being held in the First Baptist church, every evening this week are being so well attended, and the interest so marked that it is considered probable that the meetings will continue for at least two weeks.

The Swedish Lutheran church in this city is to have a new pastor in Rev. Emanuel Rydberg, of Chicago, who begins his labors in April. Mr. Rydberg has been in the United States thirty-two years, and has served in important charges in the east.

At the meeting of the Brotherhood of Carpenters last night, $20 was appropriated for the fund that is being raised for the relief of Mrs. Coates. A grand ball and social will be given by the brotherhood at the Hotel Utah on Labor day next Wednesday night.

The Socialist Labor party held a meeting last evening and discussed the subject of "Trades Unions." The discussion was led by John M. Erskine, who declared that the only way in which the workers of the laboring world could be righted was by the ballot.

The Y. M. C. A. is in receipt of a request from John C. Swan of Morrison, Iowa, for information in regard to his brother Arthur Swan, who is supposed to have come to Utah in 1883. Any one knowing anything of him would confer a favor by communicating with Mr. Weston.

Miss Amelia West and Joseph D. Manley of Bingham were married last evening in the parlors of the White House by Justice Lochrie. The parlors were prettily decorated for the event, and a banquet followed, which was enjoyed by the happy couple and a number of invited guests.

James Malone and Al Collins were put in the city jail last night charged with peddling without a license. They are characters whom the police have had occasion to take in before on more or less serious charges, and it is said their offense this time principally consisted in peddling without a license.

Mrs. Gardner, whose home is on State street between Seventh and Eighth streets, was struck by a wheelman yesterday afternoon and thrown violently to the side walk. Her baby carriage was also overturned, and the little occupant was pitched out upon its head. Fortunately neither the mother nor the child was hurt.

George D. McMill, field secretary of the Y. M. C. A. international committee, and whose home is at Omaha, is in the city, having just arrived from Omaha. Mr. McMill is traveling and organizing associations at all railroad points where there is a desire for them. He has been at the local Y. M. C. A. and is pleased with the conditions he found there.

The street railway cashier's office at the barn has a unique safe. The unique feature is a Lopper set in the top with a lid that opens up far enough for conductors to insert the bags of money, and on shutting down the lid the bag drops into the safe chamber below. The mechanism is so arranged that getting one's hand into the safe through the Lopper opening is an impossibility.

As the Walker House is being torn down it is discovered that the joists for the most part are in an excellent condition of preservation, so that the contractors say the building would have lasted for a long time. The Walker House was built by David Keith has returned from Nevada, but states he has nothing to say as to the character of the building that is to go up on the site of the old hotel.

The funeral of Stephan A. Dole was held from Evans' undertaking parlors this afternoon under the auspices of the Wasatch lodge, A. F. & A. M. The deceased was a brother of Pres. Dole of Hawaii and came west several years ago as Indian agent on the White River reservation in Colorado. About nine years ago his health failed him and he removed to Tucker, Utah, where he lived the remainder of his life.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Alice J. Gardner were held on Tuesday at the Granger ward meeting house. They were largely attended and appropriate words were spoken by Bishop Melroe, John C. Mackay, F. M. Miller and Joseph B. Taylor. The remains were interred in the Mill Creek cemetery and were followed to the grave by the longest funeral cortege ever seen in this section.

Roy Thurman, a soldier from the infantry at the post, was released to seventy days in the city jail by Judge Dole yesterday afternoon. The ofference for which Thurman was charged was petit larceny and destroying property. The proprietor of a commercial street saloon caught the soldier trying to steal a box of cigars and after making him put them back, he ejected him from the saloon. As a means of revenge, Thurman threw a rock through the plate glass window of the place.

Two or more burglars broke into the residence of Mrs. J. F. Oakes, 578 South State street yesterday by breaking through one of the rear doors. They entered the pantry and completely denuded it of everything that could be carried away. Dishes, flour, hams and every other portable thing was denuded and the thieves have managed to cover up every clue as to their identity, but the police are of the opinion that the miscreants are connected with the gang of robbers that was discovered a few days ago.

The following new officers of Eagle Gate lodge, A. O. U. W., were installed last night by officers of the grand lodge, and will act until July 1: Past master, Silas T. Lake; master, George A. # STORY BY WIFE OF MURDERED MAN

Hay Left Home to Get Money in Violation of Romney's Order Because Mortensen Said He Was Going Away In the Morning.

Following is the testimony of Mrs. James R. Hay, widow of the murdered man, given after the "News" report closed last yesterday afternoon.

When Mr. G. E. Romney left the witness stand at 4:17, after undergoing a most thorough and searching cross examination, Mr. James Sharp turned to County Attorney Christensen and asked:

"Shall I bring her in now?"

"Yes, bring her in, Hay."

In a few seconds the door of the court room swung back and Mr. Sharp entered supporting a frail figure dressed in plain black. The grief-stricken lady moved with faltering steps to the witness stand. The pallor of her face could be plainly seen through the veil she wore. As she took a seat in the witness chair two ladies sitting in the front row of spectators arose and hurriedly left the court room, one of them sobbing hysterically. They were unable to gaze on that sad face and witness the silent sufferings of the woman who had been robbed of her husband by the foul deed of an assassin.

The questions put to Mrs. Hay were asked in a subdued tone of voice and some of the answers were so low they could scarcely be heard. Mrs. Hay's father sat near her in the jury box and eyed Mortensen keenly during the examination.

As the widow turned and faced the accused, Mortensen straightened up and looked at her for a second or two and then lowered his eyes to the table in front of him. Soon he raised his eyes again and stared at the witness. In his eyes was that peculiar gleam in which was reflected neither fear nor pity. Apparently he had settled himself to glare at her with a determination not to show the slightest sign of emotion. He was not a man who was easily moved.

Mr. Mortensen then asked the witness if she looked at the clock when her husband came in.

"No, sir," she replied.

"Was there any light in the clock when your husband went out?"

"No, he asked me what time it was, and I told him what I thought."

"Was there any light in Mortensen's house?"

"No, sir."

"Then there was no light to light the door closed at once and I could scarcely see to get down the steps."

Were there any other persons besides yourself and children in the house when your husband came home?

Attorney Bernard Stewart then asked the witness if she looked at the clock when her husband came in.

"No, sir," she replied.

"Was there any light in the clock when your husband went out?"

"No, he asked me what time it was, and I told him what I thought."

JUDGE C. M. NIELSON, Who is Hearing the Mortensen-Hay Murder Case.

DANIEL WEBSTER ON MURDER.

Daniel Webster in the finest criminal speech of his life, thus defined the situation of a man who has committed a murder.

"Such a secret can be safe nowhere. The whole creation of God has neither nook nor corner where the guilty can bestow it and say it is safe. The human heart was not made for the residence of such an inhabitant. It finds itself preyed upon by a torment which it dares not acknowledge to God or man. The secret which the murderer possesses soon comes to possess him. He feels it beating at his heart, rising to his throat and demanding disclosure. He thinks the whole world sees it in his face, reads it in his eyes, and almost hears its workings in the very silence of his thoughts. It has become his master. It betrays his discretion, it breaks down his courage, it conquers his prudence. It must be confessed! It will be confessed! There is no refuge from confession but in suicide and SUICIDE IS CONFESSION."

"I then asked if James had the money and Mr. Mortensen said he had. Then I knew something terrible had happened."

Attorney Stewart interposed another objection, but it was overruled. "I immediately returned home," continued Mrs. Hay, "when I turned to go

MAYOR WM. GLASMANN IN COURT

Ogden's Chief Executive Arraigned on Charge of Violating Health Ordinance—Pleads Not Guilty.

(Special to the "News.")

Ogden, Utah, Jan. 23.—Mayor Glasmann appeared in court this morning in company with his attorney, John D. Murphy, to answer to the charge of violating the health laws preferred against him by Dr. Condon, Judge Howell said, "Let the prisoner stand up, and the 'prisoner' stood up and the complaint was then read to him. On being asked what he had to say to the charge he responded, 'Not guilty.' Judge H. H. Henderson, who appeared for Dr. Condon and the state, at the request of the county attorney, asked that the case be continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon, for the reason that most of the witnesses had been notified that the trial would be called at that hour. Judge Murphy objected to the continuance but the court overruled the objection and the case was continued until the hour named.

Ois Johnson was today condemned to twenty-five days of hard labor, by Judge Howell for stealing a lap robe from the Co-op. Wagon & Machine company.

MUST LEAVE TOWN.

Annie Kennedy, the intoxicated woman, who started a rowdy house on Twenty-fifth street last evening, was today sentenced to five days in prison, but on the strength of her promise to leave the city at once she was permitted to go.

charge of petit larceny and was sentenced to pay a fine of sixty dollars or serve sixty days in jail.

The proceedings of his commitment were attacked on several grounds, one of which was that the act establishing the city court is unconstitutional. Nash claims that no warrant has ever been served upon him and that he has no copy of a warrant, commitment, or other process and does not know that any were issued.

The hearing on the petition was set for the evening of Feb. 5 and the prisoner's bond was fixed at one hundred dollars.

your way down stairs?"

"No, sir."

"Did Mortensen offer to go home with you?"

"No, sir."

"Was Mortensen dressed?"

"Partly."

At this point Attorney Christensen took the witness again and said he wanted to ask a question relative to her husband's errand on the night of the 16th.

Attorney Stewart objected again and said it was irrelevant to permit the witness to tell what her husband said and it was "incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial."

"I will admit the question is very close to the line," said Attorney Christensen, "but Hay's conduct, demeanor and explanatory statements in view of subsequent developments makes material and admissible evidence an explanation of her actions. His last words, so far as we are able to introduce in court—spoken in leaving his own door, not knowing he was going to his death, could not be misleading to court or jury."

Att. Stewart began another objection when Assistant County Attorney Ritter arose and said if the evidence was ruled out, the question, "who murdered James R. Hay?" would be barred, also. The young lawyer then launched forth into an elaborate argument, citing authorities in an endeavor to prove that the evidence, though hearsay in a sense, was clearly admissible.

Attorney Ritter demanded to know why Hay went to Mortensen's home in the first place. He asked the witness, "What pressure was brought to bear upon him between the time he left Romney's office with Peter Mortensen and his arrival home?" That is what we seek to prove. Hay's intentions are the essence of the situation. If the act of his leaving home that night is admissible evidence, any explanation that accompanied it is admissible. His intention and any explanatory statement are material evidence."

Attorney Stewart still objected and said the authorities were not in line with the point involved in this case. Once more the objection was overruled and the examination proceeded.

By Mr. Christensen—Now, I will ask you to state what conversation took place between you and your husband before he went to Mortensen's?

Answer—He said, "I am going to Peter Mortensen's to collect some money. Ernest said not to get it tonight, but Peter is going away in the morning and I must get it tonight."

"What remark did your husband make when he said his coat down?"

"He said he was going to Peter Mortensen's for a few minutes and I asked why, and he said to collect some money, and that he had the receipt in his pocket."

"Did he explain how he knew Peter was going away?"

"He did not explain. I asked him if he was going to town, and he said no; that he would be back in a few minutes."

Attorney Stewart asked: "Are these all the statements made?"

"Yes."

The witness was then excused and court adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

CHIEF HILTON

WILL NOT RESIGN

Has Taken Positive Stand and Will Not Be Moved.

SAYS HE WAS DECEIVED.

That Committee Misrepresented Situation to Him—His Official Life in Hands of City Council.

Chief of Police Thomas H. Hilton now clearly avows that he will not resign his position for the reason that he claims the members of the council committee misrepresented the situation to him and had tried to hoodwink him into resigning. He now declares that he will see the thing through to the end and expresses the confident belief that the majority of the council will stand by him.

Mayor Thompson has no comments to make on the action of the chief, declaring that the matter is now in the hands of the council and there is nothing for him to do until that body acts.

He also declines to say much as to whether he has in mind for the position, if he is successful in ousting Mr. Hilton. He does declare, however, that he is a good man and will be acceptable to the council, and there is nothing for them to do.

So that it now seems that at the next meeting of the council the official life of Mr. Hilton will either terminate suddenly or will be lengthened out to his own pleasure. Those who profess to know declare that Hilton cannot weather the storm the mayor has precipitated upon his head while others aver that he is secure in his position and that he cannot be dislodged.
