Sad Drowning of a Child in Box Elder County.—A Traveling Agent's Swindles, Etc.

The first full carload of apricots ever shipped from Visalia, Cal., went on Friday night to Chicago.

Although Montana fields are late the promise of a beautiful harvest is great, says the Rocky Mountain Agriculturist.

On Friday evening a class of eight young ladies of the San Diego high school, the first to graduate since the school was established, were given diplomas.

Another carload of fruit for the World's Fair exhibit has been shipped from San Diego. It consisted of a fine assortment of oranges and lemons of the choicest varieties.

In anticipation of high prices being demanded as lemons in the East during the hot summer months, the San Diego Land and Town company has been quietly laying up the stop in Chula Vista and Sweetwater.

Purdue Hot springs, located near Salida, on the San Juan branch of the Rio Grande, have been prepared for a large and increased number of visitors during the season. The waters of these springs are noted for their medical qualities.

The first load of piling timber to be used in the construction of the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad bridge, which is to span the Arkansas river at Florence, Colo., arrived in Florence on Friday. As soon as the piling and other timbers can be placed upon the ground the work of constructing the bridge will be started.

Water Commissioner Fred W. Hallonquist has just returned from a trip to Pickens valley, Colo., and says things are very much strained in that country. The sheep have eaten every blade of grass and vegetation of every character, and the wind raises now great clouds of dust. The settlemen have great cause of complaint. Although the Pateau valley is not large, there was sufficient grazing for the cattle of the settlers. Now their grazing range is ruined, and by people who neither help the country nor settle in it, nor pay any taxes.

Japanese residents of San Francisco announce their intention of protesting against the resolution adopted by the board of education, providing that hereafter children of the Japanese race must attend the school known as the Chinese school. A written protest is to be presented to the board of education. It will be signed by representatives of the Japanese Young Men's Christian association, the Japanese Gospel society, the Japanese consul and a number of clergymen, educators and business men interested in the welfare and education of Japanese.

Charles Bowers, who a few months ago was postmaster in the Midland yards at Leadville, Colo., tried to commit suicide on Friday afternoon by taking morphine. He has been working at Rush, and going to Leadville went through all his money rapidly by dissipation. A year ago he married but he did not live happily and left his wife. They have been trying to effect a reconciliation lately. This and the fact that his money was all gone and his watch pawned, is supposed to be the cause. A box containing four more doses of morphine was found in his pocket. It is thought he will recover.

Quite a stir has been caused in Salt Lake City and St. John, says the Alpharetta City Dispatch, over the drowning of the three-year-old son of George and Sarah Ann Tovey, formerly of Brigham and Willard. The little fellow followed two elder brothers out to call their father to dinner. He is supposed to have wandered away and fallen off the bridge into the stream that runs from Malad to St. John. The child was soon missed and diligent search was made up and down the big ditch. Wm. Jones, son of John Jones of Calliste, found the boy further down the stream, sitting up by the dam—dead.

Although right at their doors, but few citizens of Denver have any idea of the magnitude of the big Castlewood dam, which confines sufficient water to irrigate 100,000 acres of land, states the Denver News. This enterprise, backed almost entirely by Eastern capital, was begun late in the fall of 1889. With water from the main branch of Cherry creek, a basin 655 feet long, 93 feet wide and 70 feet deep is filled not less than three times a year. Over $800,000 has been expended on this gigantic undertaking and some idea of the un erking can be had by mention of the fact that the stone used in building the dam exceeds that used in the state capitol building six times over.

John L. Bartow, late proprietor of the Grand Junction Mor and one of the old timers of Colorado, is registered at the Columbia at Denver. "If there is one thing in which I am deeply interested just now," said he, "it is in the fate of Case Rite. I believe Case Rite to be one of the best men in this western country, and it is a shame that such a man should be confined in the penitentiary. Rite has thousands of friends in Utah, Colorado and other parts of the West who would be glad to sign a petition for his full pardon. The judge who passed sentence and the entire jury would sign such a paper. If somebody will take the initiative the friends of Rite in various localities will follow and a great petition could be forwarded in the proper authorities. The movement should be started without further delay."

Last March J. F. Eagan, special agent for the Travelers' Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., for the Territory of New Mexico, arrived in Albuquerque, N. M., with his wife, and his dishonesty has just come to light. He has secured thousands of dollars from the Mexican farmers and stockmen of the Rio Grande valley, in this and the southern counties, both premium money and notes in payment of policies, never written and unknown at Denver, Conn., the Western headquarters of the company. The money thus fraudulently obtained has helped him to fly high. The drowning of J. Florida Romero in the Rio Grande on May 11th is responsible for the disclosures. The body was found early last week, but before that time the family of Mr. Romero brought their attorney to Alamogordo and began to inquire into the circumstances of his life. It was ascertained that a month before the drowning Eagan had written $10,000 in the name of Mr. Romero and that he had received part of the premium in cash and the remainder in notes. He discounted the notes and all the money he obtained he squandered among gamblers and open women. His wife left the city for the south and Eagan continued his trip south. On certain A. H. Baker of the Denver office arrived in the city, and he states that on application for a policy on Mr. Romero's life Eagan never reached Denver. The missing agent is reported to be in Southern Mexico, and Mr. Baker will make every effort to find him.

The sequel to an elopement was brought to light in a criminal case in the Superior court at Oakland, Cal., on Friday, when George McCarte, was tried for perjury. His mother-in-law, who resides on Fourth street, San Francisco, made a strong effort to have him sent to the penitentiary because he ran away with her 16-year-old daughter. McCarte, who is a fine-looking fellow, was running in the White house and had taken a fancy to the girl. He was received in the family, but Mrs. White was not at all anxious to have her daughter marry. In the first place, she thought that she was too young. One day McCarte suggested to the old lady and she gave him a piece of her mind. A few days later Mr. McCarte was missing, and so was Mary. It did not take long for the mother to learn that the couple had eloped and completely unhitched her. They went to Oakland, and McCarte got out a marriage license wherein he swore that Mary White was nineteen years old. The couple then went before a minister and were married. The angry mother was soon on their trail, and when she found that a license had been issued she swore to a warrant charging her son-in-law with perjury. The chase for the runaway couple was commenced, and McCarte was soon landed in jail. The sheriff fairly interfered with his honeymoon and as a result the bridegroom has been in jail ever since. The bride, however, was faithful to her caged spouse. She refused to return to her home, she went to work for a living and also to raise some money for the release of her husband. On Friday she was in court to fight an angry and chagrined parent. Mrs. White told her story to the jury, and suggested that Mary was the pride and joy of her life. Her son-in-law, she said, knew that the girl was only sweet sixteen when he wooed that she was nineteen years old. Neither the bride nor bridegroom said a word in defense. They simply made love in court. The jury acquitted Mr. McCarte without leaving the box. Then the young couple went their way rejoicing, and will now enjoy their honeymoon.
