La Veta, Colo., makes 100 pounds of butter daily in its Excelsior creamery, and it is all sold in Trinidad, Colo.

A sheep herder near Johnson county, Wyo., for $10,000 damages because his sheep caught a disease while being driven through the county.

In Arcadia county, Colo., a company from Missouri has made arrangements to bore for oil at the Navajo oil springs. They are prepared to sink a distance of 2000 feet.

Charles Robert Thorne, the veteran actor, is slowly dying at his home on Nineteenth street, San Francisco. His aged wife, once an actress of note, is constantly at his bedside.

The order has just been issued by the Telephone company of San Francisco that hereafter the "hello" girls shall wear uniforms. The decision, it is said, are sadly put out over it.

Rico county, in the southeastern portion of Colorado, reports a favorable season for range cattle. The grass is good and cattle are fat. Farmers, however, are complaining of the dry weather, which is preventing seeding.

Grand Junction and the farmers of Mesa county, Colo., decline to use imported poultry. This year they not only raised sufficient poultry to supply home demand, but last week shipped 2000 pounds to other portions of Colorado.

Edward T. Nichols, a Denver real estate man, has been arrested on a warrant for forgery. Nichols is accused of forging the names of James and Helen D. Mackie to a note of $1,200, which he afterwards sold to one White, receiving therefore that amount in cash.

Telluride, Colo., miners, twenty or thirty in number, who went to the Junction City gold mines in Mohave County last season, write very glowing reports to their friends in Telluride. White labor is scarce and commands good prices and the gold output is large.

The Las Vegas Optic mentions the serious illness of Thomas O. Hogue at Clayton, N. M. Mr. Hogue came to New Mexico in 1870 and has twenty-three years on the frontier. He was a warm friend of Kit Carson and is a complete encyclopedia of western frontier information.

Don Campbell, for several years paid a driver for the Colorado Trading company of Bessemer, Colorado, is charged with embezzling a considerable sum from his employers, according to it is said, to package $2,500. Campbell was formerly in business for himself, but failed and entered the Trading company's employ.

Captain Evan Nelson, of Oakland, Cal., was shot through the right temple and instantly killed by a police officer at Beulah, Cal., on Wednesday night. Captain Evan Nelson was quite well known along the Oakland water front. He was looked upon as a quiet and peaceable citizen.

John Phillips' party of mighty hunters, who went out to the Black Pines country in quest of the Rocky Mountain deer, has returned home, says the Keyesville (Davis county) Enterprise, crowned with the glory of a successful trip. There were 5 persons in the party and they brought in eighteen deer.

Charles Leitner, a twelve-year-old boy, was seriously injured on July 12th last while visiting the family burial plot in the Odd Fellows cemetery at San Francisco. A gun of other explosive weapon which had been set in the ground to kill gophers was accidentally discharged and so injuring young Leitner's left hand as to render it permanently useless. The shot also inflicted a severe wound in Leitner's abdomen. The boy, by his guardian, John Leitner, has now brought suit against the Odd Fellows' cemetery association for $15,000 damages.

While the road making fever is on it would be a good idea for our citizens to make a dugway around the point this side of the Black springs, suggests the Ephraim Enterprise. This piece of work could be accomplished in a few days with a good force of men, and when completed it would be of incalculable benefit to the entire city. With this work completed this fall and Taylor and Tom's dugways fixed up early in the spring when other work is not pushing, we would be ready to start on the county road on the east side of the mountains as soon as the snow is off, and by July 1, 1894, the trade of a large portion of Emery county would come to the Junction city.

John Matthews took a party of Englishmen out hunting from Aspen, Colo., to the White River country. He left them in the Wilderness without a team and went to New Castle and telegraphed their trouble to Aspen that they were snowbound and he must have money to hire teams to get them out. Money was sent him there and Friday he came to Riffle and telegraphed their arrival here and asked for more money. It was sent him, but before he had cashed the money the party arrived at Aspen having walked out and carried their camping outfits. Matthews has been arrested for obtaining money by fraud.

Fred Simms, a stenographer, and assistant bookkeeper for the Newport Lumber Company at Santa Ana, Cal., suddenly dropped out of sight last Saturday, since which time he has been lost to his friends and acquaintances, who have not the least idea where he went or what has become of him. On Saturday he left his employers' office a few minutes before noon, saying he was going out to lunch. The company made an examination of the books, and so far has found all transactions straight and regular. A little over a year ago Simms was married to one of Santa Ana's popular young ladies. He has left his wife in a critical condition and in almost destitute circumstances.

C. E. Adams, through his attorney, has filed in the Superior court at Sacramento, Cal., two complaints, one against Mayor E. U. Solomon, the other against Second Trustee E. H. Green, accusing them of corruption and asking that they be removed from office and be mulcted in a judgment of $500 each. The complaints charge that the city officials violated a new charter; that an election for city officials was held in accordance with the provisions of that instrument, and that the officials called to comply with the law in not receiving the bonds and issuing certificates of election to those who were successful at the polls. It charges them with willfully, knowingly and corruptly refusing to do their sworn duty.

W. N. Nesbit Sr., William S. Nesbit Jr., W. R. Nesbit, Fred Jennings, S. H. Billingsley, James Holesworth, Thomas Wilson, and F. D. Roberts were arrested at Idaho City yesterday, charged with implication in the Quartzburg robbery. All the centers are Utah men. W. N. Nesbit Jr. had been suspected of the robbery, but it was thought advisable to arrest and search the entire party. The young Nesbit was found $35 in gold coin. Among the gold coins stolen was an English sovereign and such a coin was found among the money concealed on Nesbit's person. He was held with all the others were discharged. He claims to have drawn the money from a Utah bank before going to Quartzburg. The robbery occurred October 5, $1,600 in gold bullion and gold coin being taken from the safe in the office of the mining company.

The Deseret Irrigation company has been wrestling with some hard problems in its efforts to reach the Millard county lands. Two meetings have recently been held, at the first the principal question was that of allowing stockholders to sell shares to be used on the Kanosh lands, which was voted down by an overwhelming majority. The other question, which is really a knotty problem, is that Providence is kindly disposed to keeping and early summer by sending us an abundance of water, the rightful distribution of which is vexing the legislators, the wheel horses and statesmen of Deseret. After protracted session the meeting adjourned at the identical point at which it started. It is truly a bigger job to regulate the water in the subdivisions of all Utah it seems, but it must be done. It is because we've got too much of a good thing. In patient, gentlemen, for a million is over at Fort Wall for the asking or Jones at Leonardsville.
