SCHOOL BOARD BUSINES.

Webster Building Will Soon be Ready for Occupancy—Election Returns Not Canvassed.

The board of education met last night but did not canvass the official returns of the school election, an opinion having been received from the board's attorneys to the effect that under the law, Monday noon next would be the time to do the work. The routine business, however, was speedily disposed. One of the members-elect—E. W. Wilson—was present and watched the proceedings with interest.

When the minutes of the special meeting held the day before were read Clerk Morgan was instructed to insert an appropriate reference to the conflict in the appointment of trustees on participated in between Messrs. Alff and Woolley.

Architect Chidlaw, Hansen of the committee on building and grounds reported that he had been assured by the contractors of the Webster school building that they would be finished with their work on the 15th inst. and that the board could have practical possession on the 20th. They will have two weeks in which to thoroughly warm and dry the building. During that period the heating plant will be tried or without cessation.

The report of Treasurer Barrett for the month of November showed as follows:

By way of summary, the treasurer also reported the following:

Total	$174,864 86
Disbursements for five months	170,937 32
Balance on hand Nov. 30, 1897	$3,526 41

The finance committee reported the proper cancellation and record filing of the bonds issue of $7,000 5 per cent coupon bonds, which were recently received by an exchange of $10,000 worth of Salt Lake City bonds. The cancellation was reported as having been made according to law and the previous resolution of the board.

Appropriation amounting to $5,844.70, covering the November pay rolls of the board's officers and janitors, payments on the Webster building contracts, and for sundry expenses, were made, on recommendation of the finance committee.

The committee on teachers and school work reported the receipt of $25 for tuition from non-resident pupils, and the payment of the sum named to the treasurer, to the credit of "teachers salaries" account.

On resolution of Mr. Colton, the superintendent of buildings was directed to procure 16 small drawing boards for the High school, and to have others on hand repaired.

Farewell Party to an Elder.

Neoleyville Ward, Nov. 28, 1897.

To the Editor:

A very pleasant evening was spent here on the 26th at a farewell party to Brother Enos Neeley, who has just started for a mission to the Northern States. Relatives and friends were gathered until our small hall was filled to overflowing. An interesting program was rendered; there were also dancing and a delightful lunch. So much feeling was manifested when the parting time came that few eyes were dry, and it seemed like only one was parting from a dear beloved brother. We feel that Neeley is loved by all our people and respected and honored by all business men in our locality. He is a young man of excellent character and has a testimony of the gospel sufficient to accept his mission, and we feel that his energy and uprightness will make him a favorite abroad as well as at home.

Thanksgiving at Circleville.

Thanksgiving was a gay day for the people of Circleville. The program was furnished by the school and primary associations; in return they had furnished the dinner. The school house was decorated as never before, with evergreens, festoons and many of the products of the land. After the program was rendered the assemblage adjourned to the Dalton opera house, where dinner was served, followed by a dance for the children. During the feasting Elder Joel Mrs. A. O. Woodruff and Elder Beamsiler of the Bear River Stake addressed the people in Pingatch. Public meeting was held at 4 o'clock and addresses were made by the brethren. The day closed with a Thanksgiving party.

We haven't heard of any one having the Kolobs blues since we moved in sight of the majestic proportions and picturesque valley.

The Mission of Literature.

Tomlinson's "In Memoriam" is as sensible an example as modern literature affords of the use and noble mission of literature. Which reminded us to "Enquire and written in consideration of the value of the people personal friend—and, in this case, a neighbor—we are stricken in the tender of labor to and develop the great book of God and the universe, and to do our part in study and doctrine, of life and death and immortality of good and evil, right and wrong, and of the duty of people, which are religion, so as to aid, if we can, to open the sensitive eyes of truth and to make the heart feel that he is dealing with a great and good man, and that truth and heaven are in every page." Tomlinson and other men of his stamp, if they are not poets, it is because they have not the time of literature and phraseology of the Dorothea Tomlinson on low and striking form; Carlyle's and Emerson's and Longfellow's poems are who read it.

Hence, he and, mind, the fame of Tennyson and his contemporaries and successors rest in a position as this than any other of his works. "Maud," "Princess," "Locksley Hall," "Enoch Arden," "Lady Clare," "Dora," and "Aylmer's Field" are "Idylls of the King" and "Queen Mary" and "Harold" are the same connection with this poetic conception.

Similarly rich in these qualities is the marvelous poem of the Shakespeare drama, which we have that classic, called Lady which, before quoting Shakespeare to himself, as having no legitimate right to the "brother of Poetic Beauty." Most of the Shakespeare plays come this first condition of literary creations, in their respective embodiment of some great thought.—Prof. Theodore W. Hunt in the December Forum.
