A Story of "Home, Sweet Home."

A short time ago I visited the scene of New Echota, where the Indians were confined to a fort prior to their removal. It is about eight miles from Calhoun, and a very short distance from the Conasauiee. The place is teeming with romance, and the people round there love to relate to you that legend which lends new beauty to a country attractive in itself. It is a matter of history that Georgia involved herself in a serious difficulty with her sister state by arresting John Ross and John Hyward Payne on the banks of the Tennessee river. It is not always told, however, that Payne was brought to Georgia strapped on the back of a mule, and confined in this fort at New Echota. The soldiers were a little rough with him as the best soldiers sometimes are with defenseless prisoners, but their leniency was obtained by an odd accident. One of the soldiers was whistling "Home, Sweet Home" one morning while preparing his breakfast, and the prisoner said: "That is my composition."

"Well," replied the soldier, "if it is your song, let me hear the words to it; I never knew it had any before."

In his own sweet way, the prisoner sang the first verse which is familiar with everyone now. It evidently made an impression on his captors, for after that he had little to complain of. When he reached the fort he asked for a pencil and paper, and wrote the other verses, reading them over to Colonel Cantrell, he asked him what he thought of the poem. Colonel Cantrell was struck with it, and I presume the peculiar pathos of the composition just at that time and place impressed him. It records a picture in my mind now! I see the Indians standing round, in groups of families and friends; they look out in the other face, for speak the thought that floods the weaker eyes with tears—it is not the custom of the red man to invite sympathy. Yet the poet felt their grief, and an intuition of the home-hunger they would feel inspired his song of heaven on earth.—The New Bohemian.

A Tramp's Trick.

"Say, partner, yer from New York, ain't yer? I heard one tramp say to another the other day as they sat roasting themselves on opposite sides of the path in Union square.

The weary gentleman addressed made an evasive reply intended to create the impression of a negative without being one in terms.

"Yes, y'are," continued the first in an aggravatingly persistent tone of voice. "I've been watchin yer, an yer've been keepin that foot o' yours movin all the time yer was asleep, an th' ain't but one place in this country where the gazeboo learn that, an that's in City Hall park, New York, where yer have to give the cops some kind o' excuse while yer settin up sleepin or they'll run yer in. I've been there, partner, an I kin do it myself.

"But, say," and the voice assumed a confidential, conspicuous tone, "you don't have to do it in this town."—San Francisco Chronicle.

LITERARY NOTES.

Every Month for February comes enveloped in red, the color selected for its 1896 career. For a musical magazine it is exceedingly attractive, containing reading matter of a high order, and musical selections of the most delightful character. The four pieces published in this number are, She Is Mine, (song and chorus); I'll Be True to My Honey Boy, sentimental; Hylvan Echoes, gavotte, and Shall We Forgive Her, song and chorus. The illustrations are numerous, beautiful and appropriate to the fads and characters temporarily in the public eye.

Housekeepers will be especially happy over the February number of Table Talk (the American authority on culinary matters), in which are given many receipts in the "Housekeeper's Inquiries," "Dainty Cakes for Afternoon Teas," "Creole Recipes," and "Sauces for Meat and Fish." "A Few New Books for the Housekeeper's Library," will also be found interesting; Mrs. Burton Kingsland tells of several enjoyable "February Fetes," while Mrs. M. C. Myer describes two new forms of entertainment, which, when tried, will be found to produce delightful evenings. Other articles are "Dentition and Its Attendant Discomforts," "Fashionable Luncheons and Tea Toilets," "Some German Methods," given from experience. A sample copy will be mailed free upon application, to Table Talk Publishing Co, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Youth's Companion begins the new year with several noteworthy changes, which include the use of larger faced type, the addition of departments devoted to current events and scientific items and the enlargement and extended scope of the editorial department. The character of The Companion is, and will be, unchanged. Three generations of young people have approved it. Three generations of American parents have learned to trust it. Its ability to entertain its readers of all ages will be maintained and promoted by the same enterprise and thoughtful care that have governed its editorial staff during the many years in which it has sought the entertainment and instruction of the public.

Stomach and Bladder Trouble Cured.

Mrs. Hiram Yeager of Acadia, Salt Lake City, Happy.

"My little boy when three years old," writes Mrs. Hiram Yeager of Acadia, Salt Lake City, Utah, "suffered from some unknown trouble and obstruction at the base of the stomach and bladder, the attending physician performed an operation upon him but it did not produce the desired effect and found the patient no nearer recovery than before.

DR. DAVID KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Was at this critical time suggested and used with the most remarkable results. The pains in the back ceased, the urine resumed its natural color and condition, the heavy distressed feeling in the stomach and head "that makes my heart ache when I think of his sufferings," disappeared and the use of but a few bottles of Favorite Remedy completely cured him. He now attends school one mile from home and walks back daily."

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy restores the disordered liver to a healthy condition, corrects the worst cases of constipation, it is a certain cure for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women. It cures scrofula, salt rheum and erysipelas. For nervousness, loss of sleep, or that worn out feeling, it has no equal. In cases of rheumatism, dyspepsia, gravel, Bright's disease, diabetes, and bladder troubles it has cured when all else failed. $1 a bottle.
