ENGINEER KELSEY IS CENSURED.

Council Adopts Minority Report by a Vote of 8 to 4.

DEBATE WARM AND LONG.

Display of Much Bitter Feeling Among Certain Members—Lengthy Session.

It took the members of the City Council four and a half hours to finish and the business that came up before them at last night's meeting and fully one-half of the time was devoted to the consideration of the report of the committee of the whole on the charges against Engineer Kelsey. The report was adopted by a vote of 8 to 4, the minority report, introduced a couple of weeks ago by Councilman Jones, exonerating the engineer and recommending that the matter be dropped with respect to the proceedings against him, and also recommending a repeal of section 400 of the revised ordinances, which provides that the engineer shall be appointed by the mayor and confirmed by the council, and that he may be removed by the mayor for cause, after a hearing before the council, upon the charges being preferred in writing, and upon a vote of two-thirds of the council. The majority report, which was adopted, recommended that the engineer be retained in his office.

Discussion and a number of flashes of temper followed the reading of the report, and it was a matter of some surprise to some of the members who thought the matter was settled when they came to see for the first time at the council meeting last night, that it was not quite so. It was evident that Mr. Kelsey was guilty of some more serious than the charges which had been made against him, and that he was not anxious about it. He was, as a result, was brought to a reckoning by the council, and he was not pleased with the way in which he was treated. He was not present when the report was adopted, but he was in the council chamber and was seen by the members of the council, who had been in session for two hours before he came in. Mr. Kelsey was seen by some of the members of the council to be very pale and nervous, and he was not in the best of shape to meet the charges which had been made against him
