Secretary of Agriculture Who Sticks to His Desk the Year Round.

HEART IS IN HIS VAST WORK

Some Planting Problems Solved in a Way Which Bonnteous Harvests Have Strikingly Illuminated.

Special Correspondence,

Washington, D. C., Aug. 25,-Take 'em year in and year out no employe of the government sticks to his job with more effective fidelity than a certain cabinet officer whom you may know by the familiar sobriquet of "Tama Jim." This is James Wilson of Iowa, secretary of the department of agriculture. He is the dean of the cabinet. He is the only member of the cabinet of the McKinley administration from its start, having been confirmed March 5, 1897. It is very likely, if the Republicans continue in power, that Mr. Wilson, if he pleases, will remain at the head of the agricultural department. His administration of his department has been so singularly void of offense and pregnant of far-reaching usefulness to the country, that there are many Democrats who, in the event of the success of their party next No-vember, would ask that Mr. Wilson be urged and permitted to stay where he urged and permitted to stay where he is so long as he is not weary of the well doing which has distinguished him the dozen years he will have spent in his present office. Mr. Wilson takes but few vacations. He is often the highest officer of the government remaining in Washington. Midsummer finds him at his desk. It is because he has his heart in his vast work and because he is enjoying the fruition of wonderfuily varied tests and experiments in vitalizing arts of husbandry that keeps him loth to leave his official quarters to which continually come reports from field and farm and absorbing interest to him because they are almost invariably stories of local achievement contributing to a great national progress. tributing to a great national progress CAME FROM SCOTLAND.

CAME FROM SCOTLAND.

James Wilson, the secretary, was born within a few miles of the birthplace of Robert Burns, the matchless farmer poet, in Ayrshire, Schotland, just 73 years ago last Sunday, Aug. 16, just 73 years ago last Sunday, Aug. 16, just 73 years ago last Sunday—Aug. 16, 1835. He came to America when he was 17 years old, stopped with his parents awhile in Connecticut, and removed to his present home in Tama county, Ia., in 1855. He bas always been an enthusiastic farmer and at the same time has been actively concerned in all legislation affecting agricultural interests. He was that as a member of the Iowa legislature, in which he served several terms, and rontinued so as a member of Congress, in which he served three terms as a member of the house. He served on the Iowa railway commission four years and for six years before he accepted as place in President McKinley's cabinet was director of the agricultural experiment station and professor of agriculture at the Iowa agricultural college at Ames.

SIMPLE AND UNAFFECTED. SIMPLE AND UNAFFECTED.

Mr. Wilson has all of the Scotsman's cleavage to the practical things of well being and all of the Caledonian's enthusiasm over the triumph of shrewdly directed industry. He is one of the most interesting men who ever held office in the government. Simple and unaffected in conversation, he has a store of experience and a ripe fortilla a store of experience and a ripe fortil memory for practical things worth remembering which combine to convince all who know him of a staunch superiority of mind and character devoted to the general welfare exceedingly scarce among men who hold high political office.

among men who hold high political office.

His department is indeed less inoculated with partisah bias than any in the government. There are not a few Democrats who hold responsible positions in the department, but Mr. Wilson talks to them about their work and not about their politics. It is said that he does not know the party affiliations of a dozen men under him. Some of his most zealous supporters are Democratic members of Congress. Still. Mr.
Wilson, if Bryan should be elected president, has said he would expect a Democratic president to choose all the members of his cabinet from his own political party.

Just before Secy. Wilson left for a short vacation at his western farm, he was eleted over the assurannee of a great year for farm production throughout the country.

BUMPER CROPS.

BUMPER CROPS.

"The crops this season," he said, "will be the largest and best in our history, unless all signs fail. All reports indicate that the farmers throughout the country are preparing for an unprecedented harvest. Farmhands will be in great demand, the railroads will have few empty cars, and the cotton crop of the south will be great. Why shouldn't we farmers simile?"

While "Fuma Jim" like Bothy Burns cotter, is ready to hyma his Creator's praise for generous sunshine and vitalizing rains and for the energy and intelligence of American farmers, he takes a natural pade in the wide-spread fruitful aid given by the department of agriculture in vastly diversified directions, which have made many a form but recently and many a form but recently and many a form but recently and supposed the state of the same but recently and a form but recently and a form but recently and any a form but recently and any and a form but recently and a form but a form and a form but recently and a form and but a form and a form and a form and a form a form and a form a form and a form a form a form and a form a form a form a form a form and a form a for

BUREAU OF SOILS.

Especially gratified is the secretary with good results achieved through the operations of the bureau of soils under Prof. Milton Whitney. This is the branch of the department which is in closest relation to the farmer. It is the foundation of his well being. In the language of a soil expert who has reason himself for pride in the work of the science of agriculture, it has no middleman and it speaks what the soil filler can understand, so that few have wondered when the powerful opposition of the appropriations committee was everthrown at the last session of the house of representatives and an increased sum was voted to be put into the hands of Prof. Whiteley for the acceleration of soil surveys. still but in its initiative the results obtained by the bureau of soils have already closely interwoven themselves with the daily work of the farmer and have solved planting problems in a way which harvests nave strikingly fluminated. The latest phase of soil study which has been taken up will, in the opinion of the student workers, prove the greatest boon yet enjoyed by the tillers of the ground.

In nothing connected with the revelations of tests founded upon the chemical knowledge has more light been shed than upon the old problem of fertilization. From the earliest days fertilization of the soil has been one of the most important and absorbing questions with the farmer.

It is certain, according to the erudite department authorities, that ancient agricultural people worried over it, and that may be Cincinnatus, when called from his plow handles to the helm of state, was pondering this very question. It is likewise held that in all old-time discussions and experiments old-time discussions and experiments there was a vital part of the problem which remained undiscovered.

REVOLUTION IN TREATMENT.

The bureau of soils has found that The bureau of soils has found that plants often kill off succeeding generations in the same soil, not by exhausting it and extracting all the nutrition, but by depositing toxic or poisonous substances which always hamper and frequently prevent the growth of the succeeding plant. So, instead of devoting all its time to replenishing the ground with those elements and sub-stances which have been given off durstances which have been given our dur-ing the growth of the plant, the bureau has purated its experiments of the theory of isolating and removing the poisonous matter. The discovery of these hurtful substances disclosed that with all the necessary mineral or nu-trient elements native to the soil the dant would not flourish. After a se the toxic elements the character of the toxic elements was chemically identified and there immediately began the revolution in soil treatment by the bureau which continued until it has ncovered the poisonous excreta of all ne most useful plants. The evil has sen counteracted successfully by the discriminating use of chemicals and fertilizers, and the farmer, it is claimed, has been freed from a presence more baieful a thousand times than the boil weevil to cotten or the natural exhaustion of the land.

AIDING THE FARMER.

AIDING THE FARMER.

Thus far the toxic properties have been removed in many instances by a number of simple operations. The experiments are proceeding with all possible expedition, the object being to afford the farmer a cheap and convenient method of making his land yield the greatest possible uniformity of profitable production year in and year out. The farmers of the country are as a rule co-operating cheerfully and intelligently with the department, and the chief of the bureau of soils, Prof. Whitney, is greatly encouraged, feci-Whitney, is greatly encouraged, feel-ing that the importance of the work is properly appreciated by those whom is inost concerns.

Experiments are constantly going on with commercial fertilizers also, with the view of supplying a particular fertilizer for each type which will replace all the nourishing elements taken by the plant in the course of its life. As there are more than 460 different kinds of soil in the United States, this will be no easy task, but great progress has been made, and already anymer of sections have been advised by the bureau just what elements the soil requires to be tickled to yield a maximum harvest.

Commercial fertilizer is used chiefly in the Atlantic and Gulf states, and since 1899, its use has doubled in this country, until now $100,000,000 is annually spent for this kind of soil im-

Gradual improvement continues, especially in respect to the percentage of manufacturing plants in operation and country merchants are more disposed to replenish stocks.

Retail trade is seasonably quiet, except where sales are stimulated by clearance sales, but wholesale and jobbing houses are doing a good fall business, although collections are irregular. With the exception of the cotton mills, there is much less idle machinery in the leading industries, Several wage agreements have been signed, and there is little strife between capital and labor.

On the whole, crop prospects are BETWEEN MONUMENT AND (% 5TH Ave., pair spectacles in black case. Re-ward. Simmons, Z. C. M. I.
