THE LAW'S REALMS.

The McDonald Case Proceeded With Today.

DR. MAHRY WANTS A CONTINUANCE,

As He Is Too Poor to Pay the Expenses of Trial—Has Always Borne a Good Reputation Till Now.

There was a large attendance at the opening of the Third district court this morning to listen to the proceedings in the McDonald case. Chief Justice Hemii occupied the bench. Following are the proceedings:

The first was an application by Attorney Goodwin with an affidavit for a continuance in the case of the U. S. vs. Dr. W. D. Mahry, and read a number of letters from Iowa and Illinois testifying to Dr. Mahry's previous good character while in the capacity of minister in the M. E. church covering a period of twenty-five years. He is now residing at Pontiac, Ills., and will be thrown at the present time by the wages of his son, which only amount to $8 per week. Owing to his financial condition he could not be prepared to meet the expenses of his trial. He thereupon asks that this case be postponed till the next term of court. He is now acting as a traveling agent for a New York firm.

Prosecuting Attorney Howat opposed the motion, and thought the bondsmen would furnish the means for Mahry's return should this motion be denied.

Chief Marritt in a few remarks overruled the motion, and Judge Hawat intimated that he would ask that the hearing be hurried at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The assault with intent to murder case against McDonald, continued from last Saturday, was taken up.

Edgar George was the first witness called by the prosecution, and gave his age as 14 years. He stated that he lived in Salt Lake City, and was acquainted with the defendant. He saw the plaintiff Sackerson and McDonald struggling together from a distance, while the witness was in a pear tree in the orchard adjoining. Did not see any weapons. He with other boys then came up to the scene of the conflict, but did not see Sackerson strike McDonald. Then heard the plaintiff ask for the warrant of arrest and saw McDonald offer a piece of paper but could not say whether it was a warrant or not. McDonald then drew a pistol and the Sackerson in the hand from a distance of about twelve feet. The first and third shot were fired at a still closer range. The last also testified to seeing McDonald take Sackerson's watch, which the defense claimed was offered by Mr. Sackerson for damage done had been done by his cows on McDonald's premises.

The witness was cross-examined by Attorney Powers for the defense, but no material change was made in the evidence given.

Sheriff Jones was the next witness, who stated that Sackerson was intoxicated at the time of the altercation. An exception was here taken, argued and overruled.

Mr. Sackerson was recalled and questioned regarding his conversation with the witness Jones at the police court, that Jones was a d—— fool for swearing against him. The witness denied saying that he guessed he had asked Jones what he had come for, as he knew nothing of the case.

Mr. Jones was again put on the stand and testified to what he had said in the police court, that Sackerson had called him a g—— d—— fool and that McDonald would only give him dirt.

The prosecution asked the witness if he didn't generally take something with him when he went fishing, to which the witness Jones said he took nothing with him on that day, he was perfectly sober.

McDonald then took the stand and testified that he was a police officer last August at the time of the trouble in this case. He took the cows up and had some conversation with Mrs. Sackerson, who owned the cow that had been doing damage in McDonald's orchard.

This was on the 11th of August. Herald Mr. Sackerson that his stock had been doing some more damage amounting to $2.50. Sackerson then handed him his watch for nearly not claw it back, and struck the witness with a buggy whip, exclaiming at the same time he would be —— if he would give him his watch. Sackerson again came at him kicking at him and using foul language, and calling to his wife to bring out the gun and he would shoot the —— of b——. Mahrey then fired one shot into the ground, and another to the left of him. He did not put his hand on Sackerson except once and that was to keep away from him. He also fired another shot to the right of Sackerson, but had no intention of hurting him.

Cross-examination by Judge Howat.—Did not have drinking that day, and did not intend hitting Sackerson. Had agreed with Mrs. Sackerson that she would come and do washing for Mr. McDonald to pay for the damage done by the cows. He had the watch in his hand when Mr. Sackerson, who was intoxicated at the time, grabbed it and made the claim.

Redirect—The witnesses stated that he right wrist was injured at the time the pistol took place, and he used his left hand mostly in defending himself against Sackerson, who was very quarrelsome.

Mr. Nebo was called for the defense. Resumed to taking up the row and giving it to a tree to Mrs. Sackerson's pleading with him not to take it away as it was a mistake of their support. He also stated that Mr. Sackerson was somewhat intoxicated; that Mrs. Sackerson said to her husband, "Give Mr. McDonald your watch; he has been very kind to us." The witness saw Sackerson strike McDonald several times with something in his hand, when McDonald told him to stop, and he would fire, which he did, one to the ground and one to the left and one to the left of Sackerson.

Judge Powers here objected to the testimony of the prosecution in the presence of the jury, as he knew the witness if the gentleman on the jury, who is a little more cross-firing than intended.

The general character of Mr. Sackerson was then testified to by the witness to be very disagreeable when under the influence of liquor. While in conversation was going on the witness are coming and said nothing. saw Sackerson striking at McDonald but could not say whether he hit him or not.

Mr. Emma, a brother-in-law of Mr. Sackerson was called. He did not know as to the condition of Mr. Sackerson. The reputation of Mr. Sackerson was not very bad.

At noon the court adjourned till 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON PROCEEDINGS.

On the opening of court this afternoon Mr. Emma was recalled by the prosecution. He did not see Sackerson with any weapon in his hand as he went into the house and ate supper, and I * the two outside.

Sackerson recalled—Denied having said he could, by his testimony, throw the cows any way he wished.

Mr. Jones was the next witness. He knew Sackerson's reputation. It was bad.

Mr. Reed testified—Live in Center ward. Saw McDonald there on the occasion of the trouble between the plaintiff and defendant. The scuffling occurred about three-quarters of an hour. Knew Sackerson's reputation. It was bad.

Cross examination—Had no feelings against Sackerson, but knew his reputation to be bad. There was no shooting during the scuffling.

Charles Morse testified. The reputation of Sackerson was bad. Had never been arrested for larceny or swindling oral. Was not in business now.

Dr. Daley was called but was not present.

Dr. Harrion testified that Mr. Sackerson had been drinking but previous to the doctor's examination of his wound. He thought the wounds on Sackerson were not made by bullets.

Mr. F. McDonald, the defendant, took the stand, but nothing of importance elicited.

By agreement it was allowed that the testimony of Dr. Daley would be the same as that of Dr. Harrion in regard to the wounds on Sakerson.

Mrs. Sakerson was called. She denied that her husband called for a gun or anything of the kind.

Mr. Sakerson took the stand. He denied asking for a gun is about the ——

Mr. G. H. Backman was called by the prosecution—Knew his general reputation to be good. Never heard of his having been accused of burning haystacks, stealing scrapers, or anything of the kind. Had heard very little of his drinking.

Judge Powers took the witness in hand in regard to the reputation of the plaintiff for truth and veracity, the witness stating he knew nothing against him.

Mr. R. G. Raynold, called for the prosecution, had lived here about thirty-five years. As far as he knew the reputation of Sakerson was good.

Mr. C. R. Dorr, called by the prosecution, knew Sakerson but very little.

Mr. Bothwell was called but was not present. It was admitted by the defense that his testimony would be the same as the last witness, that is, he knew but little of Sackerson.

A delay here occurred, owing to the non-arrival of Mrs. Parker, a witness who lived over Jordan, for whom an officer had been sent. She has not arrived when the NEWS report closed.
