THERE was a violent collision between two engines again this afternoon on Second South street, near the Depot. One of one of the engines carried a passenger train, the other a freight. The engineers of the latter were badly damaged. Both let were the engines coupled together and each of the engineers blamed the other for the mishap.

A SWEET-FACED, lean-looking old man with gold-rimmed spectacles, was observed at the Tabernacle and Gunter House corners today with a Repository sign in which he was capturing human flies, in other words, he is supposed to be what is known to the "fancy" as a tonsorial artist. THREE AT ONCE.

That Is the Number of Insane People Taken to Ogden Thursday.

We learn from the Commercial that on the same train which brought Thomas Warren from the east, were two other demented passengers. One of them imagined he was impelled to escape for his life and made some attempts to jump from the train while it was in motion. being thwarted in this he became comparatively quiet until Ogden was reached, when, when he alighted upon the platform, he threw his luggage down and started in a run up Twenty-fifth Street, with an officer in pursuit. He eluded street and it appears that after wandering for some time around the town he got on a passenger train. Then he found his way back to the depot and was taken care of by the railroad authorities. As soon as he got sobered up for some more sober days for a time to himself, and after getting on a second drunk was placed under arrest by the police and sent up. He gave the name of Robert Ross.

The third case of mental disorder was of a man bound for the west who should have left on the train with the first two cases. When the train stopped he suddenly rushed out on the platform and jumped off, exclaiming that there was a passenger on the same train who would kill him. The railroad officials, who meet many cases of passengers who become similarly affected by the rarity of the atmosphere, took him in hand, and he was afterwards started off on another train to his destination.

The Tabernacle Choir Concert.

Professor E. Stephens gained another well deserved triumph in the great success of the musical entertainment in the Tabernacle last night. Every number on the programme was a masterpiece of musical composition, and the rendition was, as a general rule, sentimentally correct, as well as animated and full of the spirit of true genius. That the vast audience appreciated the entertainment was evidenced by the vigorous applause that greeted the singers.

"Faithful Hearts," one of Mr. Stephens' pretty compositions, was sung by Julia Silversood and Viola Pratt and was enthusiastically received. Heber S. Goddard had to give an encore "Forever" encore, and E. C. Easton removed the Scotch ballad "Annie Laurie" in his unsurpassed style and responded to the applause by "Then You'll Remember Me" and "The Chieftain" was sung by Maggie Hull, and "Consolation" by Agnes Olsen Thomas and Little Thomas Edward. These ladies are most excellent singers, and it was only the silence of the body that prevented the audience from encoring an encore.

The Cecilia Club, consisting of fifteen young ladies, and the Harmony Glee Club, ten young men, rendered their respective pieces admirably, the harmony of their voices being all but perfect.

Professor Weihe held the audience spellbound by the wonderful tones of his violin which he handled with exquisit skill and taste, and Professor Dayton handled the great organ in a way that would have rounded out the admiration of any musical audience in the civilized world.

The choir, particularly in the closing quartette, "God of Israel," another of Professor Stephens' grand compositions, gave evidence both of the wealth of musical talent which this community possesses, and also of the faithful work and the success of the instructor.

The concert last night would have been considered an event in any place where song and music are appreciated.

A Noted Pugilist.

A conspicuous figure on the street just now is George Le Blanche, commonly called "The Marine," the famous pugilist. He bears but few marks of the business by which he is engaged, is a very pleasant-spoken person, seems to be educated, and although a French-Canadian speaks English without a flaw. He is five feet six inches in height and weighs unstrained about 160 pounds. He has fought a good many times, the most severe of his contests being those with Jack Dempsey, the first at Larchmont, N. Y., when Le Blanche was defeated, the last at San Francisco several months ago, when Dempsey went down.

Beaver Woolen Mills.

It is rumored that the "Factory" management will shortly put all the Beaver woolen mills to be run a brief season to work up a little raw material that was left over from last year. Fears are expressed that the immense stock of textile fabrics now in stock in the company's warehouse will rapidly deteriorate from the ravages of moths etc., unless measures are taken looking to frequent turning over of the goods.—Chronicle.

In Pamphlet Form.

The exceedingly interesting and instructive lecture which a few weeks since was delivered by Elder Andrew Jensen before the Students' Society in this city on Joseph Smith as a Prophet, and which was subsequently published in the News, has now been issued in pamphlet form and can be had at this office for ten cents per copy. It is just the thing for home reading or sending abroad to friends.

A SAD STORY.

A House Built on Benefits and a Life Miserable by the Demon Alcohol.

A few evenings ago a middle-aged man of early old age, but very old called at the City Hall and inquired for the Chief of Police. On being informed that that dignitary was not present he briefly addressed himself to Sergeant Donovan. In substance she said: "I have called upon a painful and delicate duty. My husband, until a few months ago, was a generous, kind and agreeable companion. For years we lived happily together and the good of trouble were given darkened the tranquility of our lives by reason of the fact that which is incidental to every one, but times have changed. My husband is now a slave to the wine cup and his earnings are spent in drink. Drink has become cruel, boisterous and abusive. Our home is no longer the sacred and peaceful circle that it once was. Tonight I ask for that to be taken away from me. I have been feeling under the influence of that deadly drug that has taken my life and continues to torment me. His appetite was insatiable, his face reddened and his eyes almost starting from their sockets. He demanded that I give him the little money I had left. Jiddess away in a remote part of the house. I remonstrated with him by saying that it was needed for bread, clothing and rent. My argument was useless and he became violent to-day. I refused, however, to disclose the whereabouts of the money and he left in a fury. I was scarcely ejected from the house and remained in the streets for an hour. On my return I discovered that my husband had overturned everything in the house with a view to finding the money. Failing in this, my watch and my wedding ring, which I had kept as a sacred relic, given to me as our death bed, were taken by him. At the juncture of the recital of her story the unfortunate woman broke down in tears, but on recovering herself she continued: I know not his intention was to take the articles to a broker's and pawn them and spend the proceeds for rum. Now, what I want, is that an officer be detailed to recover my ring, that golden band that adorns my finger, and that my husband be notified that if I be molested in any manner I will notice. If the officer is successful the watch shall become his."

The lady, who seems to be an earnest and intelligent woman, was informed that the recovery of the articles would not be shirking and she hastened home to return to her desolate home.

An officer was sent in search of the pawnbroker and could hardly, but up to the present he has not been found.

APPLICATIONS FOR DISCHARGE

From the Penitentiary Granted and Denied.

Benjamin Bennett, who was convicted and sentenced in the First District Court, by Judge Blackburn, on March 3rd, to pay a fine of $100 and costs, in default of which he was sent to the penitentiary, today made application for discharge from imprisonment by subscribing to the "poor convict's" oath.

The application was denied on the grounds that he had made property on his person at the time he was sentenced that would be required to pay his fine, and that such property is still in his possession.

APPLICATION GRANTED.

L. R. Miller, who was sentenced by Judge Blackburn in October last to six months' imprisonment on the charge of unlawful cohabitation, also made application for discharge from imprisonment, on the ground that he had been imprisoned for thirty days solely for the non-payment of $50 fine and costs, in addition to the sentence for unlawful cohabitation, and that he was unable to pay the same.

The petition was granted and the prisoner ordered discharged.

A Wife Beater Sentenced.

Jacob Oyler, a Union Pacific machinist, whose custom for months past has been to enter upon a protracted spree on the advent of every pay day, was arrested by Sheriff Hurt last evening on the double charge of disturbing the peace and beating his wife, being unable to procure bonds he spent the night in jail. This morning he was taken before Commissioner Greenman, when he pled guilty. He explained to the court that Mrs. Oyler was his wife and if occasion required that he should use harsh measures to "subdue her," that that was his business and the law of the land had no jurisdiction over him. "We shall see," quietly but emphatically said the Court. The defendant was sentenced to twenty days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Reception to Brother Richards.

Brother Franklin D. Richards found a very agreeable surprise awaiting him when he returned to his home in Ogden from this city on Friday evening. The Standard says he found the parlors of his spacious residence crowded with friends and relatives who had assembled to greet his completion of three score and ten. Though surprised and deeply moved, he was able to extend those kindly expressions which are eminently characteristic to him and which make sociability and happiness the rule. Some hours were passed in the pleasures of conversation, music, speeches and the table, and when the company dispersed it was with a hope that another year and still others after might find the ranks still unbroken and in the enjoyment of life, health and prosperous peace.

Amusements.

"A Messenger from Jarvis Section" was presented at the Salt Lake Theatre, last night, by the Home Dramatic Company. Notwithstanding the concert at the Tabernacle, there was a very good house at the Theatre. What there was lacking in numbers, was made up in enthusiasm and hilarity.

Mr. Young as Uncle Dudley, was better than many of the average professionals. Mr. Spencer, as "Skinny" Smith, was received with loud and enthusiastic plaudits. Mr. Taylor as the villain, Mr. Pierce as Simon Briggs, the rascally gentleman, and Mr. Evans as the German policeman and sauerkraut, were all good. Birdie Cummings, Lettie Claridge, Mabel Young and Mrs. Gilbert all rendered their respective parts very creditably.

On the whole the performance was a success. The average playgoer would never discern the fact that he was betwixt up a amateur company. Their kindness will never be forgotten by us.

F. KOHLER AND WIFE.

"THE LITTLE TYCOON."

Mr. Willard Spencer's famous Little Tycoon Opera Company, embracing fifty-six people, traveling in their own special train and carrying every piece of scenery and property used in the presentation of "The Little Tycoon," is billed to appear at the Salt Lake Theatre on the evenings of the 17th and 18th. Mr. George C. Tyler, the advance agent for Mr. Spencer, is at present in the city looking out for the interests of this organization.

The attraction at "Wonderland" is the entire woman. The crowds at "Wonderland" are increasing daily and the visitors to the city are literally packing the place to overflowing.

Today is electricity's day and all children will be admitted for ten cents to all parts.

UTAH W. S. A.

The Semi-Annual Convention of the Society.

On April 3rd, 1891, at 2 p. m., in the Assembly Hall, the Utah Women's Suffrage Association met in a Territorial convention. Caroline Dye having been appointed chaplain, opened with prayer. President Kimball was in the chair.

The minutes of the convention held in October, 1890, were read and accepted. Eliza R. H. Young, Jane S. Richards, Bathsheba W. Smith, M. I. Horne, Emmeline B. Wells, Elmira S. Taylor and Maria Y. Dougall were made honorary vice-presidents.

President S. M. Kimball spoke on the reception the delegates received at Washington and how the 1500 passes from Utah Territory paved the way for the cordial reception.

Emily S. Richards also spoke on her visit in Washington and on the part women are going to take at the World's Fair.

Ellen Jakeman, president of the Sanpete County organization, made some remarks on the plan of work carried on in the associations in that county.

Lucy A. Clark, president of the Davis County organization, spoke on the necessity of studying the laws of the country, also of the interest taken by the men in Davis County in the association.

Mrs. Viola Pratt sang a very appropriate song.

President Kimball introduced Hon. F. M. Lyman by relating in a happy manner her experience in making the first suffrage speech at Logan, when he invited her to address a large congregation on that subject.

Mrs. Lyman, as an eloquent and impressive speaker, he alluded to the opposition women themselves noised which he considered the chief barrier against obtaining women suffrage. He has based the numerous objections from a highly cultivated lady artist with whom he conversed when on the way up from Mexico. He considered the granting of the franchise as great a blessing to women as to men; the ballot is everything, the holding of office a little thing; in comparison only a few men hold office and it is optional with them whether they accept those positions or not and would be the same with women. Women being deprived of the franchise tends to make them more effeminate but men need to be converted to the importance of the ballot in their handsas well as men to their receiving it. He believed in equal rights in equal women for the same work. (Applause.)

Wyoming has taken an advance step in coming into the Union with woman suffrage in her constitution. When Henry Ward Beecher was asked if ministers should participate in politics, he replied that the reason of the corruption of politics was due to the fact that ministers and women were excluded. The speaker expressed his belief that if women were allowed to exercise the elective franchise the saloons would be closed.

The next speaker was Dr. Seymour B. Young, who read a poem in honor of Wyoming and gave his views of the woman question, in a very lucid and comprehensive manner.

The Convention adjourned for six months.

ADA CRYSALIS,
Secretary.

At Conference This Afternoon.

At this afternoon's session of the Conference Apostle F. M. Lyman was the opening speaker. His subject was the necessity for all being possessed of the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. He also dwelt upon the practical duties of the Saints, with special reference to the maintenance of union amongst them, by removing all causes of feeling of jealousy and strife. He was followed by President Lorenzo Snow. The latter opened by stating that a retrospective view of the history of the Church must impress all connected with it with the fact that God had constantly led and protected Israel. The effect of this recognition of divine goodness should cause each heart to overflow with gratitude. The speaker continued at some length upon the wonderful deliverances of the Saints from persecution and afflictions of various kinds.

F. KOHLER AND WIFE.

MRS. FRANCES MORRIS, a Bell female, deposited $25 in the Police Court today, on the charge of prostitution.

S. F. BALL, the genial caterer to Conference and other people, has placed a mammoth lout on the Council House grounds, which exhibits the artist's ingenuity and heavy pulls. The words, "Universal Provider," in bold colors, attract the gaze of the passerby.

The current number of the Pool Bonanza, which, by the way, contains a good picture of Dr. J. M. Bonnell.

LORENZO E. YOUNG was taken in tow by the police today for violating the ordinance prohibiting bicycle riding on the thoroughfares of the city. The police should not be respondent of persons. As alleged City Councilman has frequently violated this ordinance. But that makes a difference.

The "Deseret Chorister."

The first number of a musical publication with the foregoing title has just been issued from the press of this office. It is edited and much of the music also composed by the popular composer and choir leader, Prof. Evan Stephens. It contains twelve large pages of beautifully printed music and bound in very artistic cover, the title page of which was designed and engraved by Brother S. H. Harrow, the foreman of the NEWS composing room, who as artist of no mean ability. If the publication meets with the sale which its merits and the extremely low price at which it is offered—25 cts. per copy—warrant, other numbers will follow perhaps as often as once a month; and this choir in the community be supplied with original anthems, glees and chorus as adapted to their own special wants and expressions of sentiment in harmony with the Gospel. Choir leaders who are in the city attending conference should obtain a supply of the "Chorister" to take home with them. A supply of music generally should not fail to secure copies for home use. The work will be kept on sale by music dealers generally, or can be purchased from the publishers at the DESERET NEWS office.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

The State Department Says Nothing New to Announce.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—It is again announced that the State Department have nothing to make public today respecting the Italian correspondence. The excitement in the departmental circles over Baron Fava's recall has subsided, and the incident will, it is believed, take its place on the ordinary calendar of open diplomatic matters, the disposition of which is usually characterized by deliberation and patient investigation.

GOULD AND WANAMAKER.

Jay Gould and his son George had a long conference with Postmaster-General Wanamaker at the Postoffice Department today. The question of a Pacific mail steamship line, of which George Gould would be president, in connection with the Chinese mail, was alsoty set, was discussed. Gould stated that he was willing to guarantee that whatever money might be granted the company would be under that not would be expended in creating new lines.

The question of rates on the Government transportation contracts July 1, 1891, was also discussed, as was the question of increased mail service on the Union Pacific.

Steamer on Fire.

QUEENSTOWN, April 4.—The British steamer Algerian, from Galveston, arrived with a cargo of cotton on fire. The damage is yet unknown.

AUSTRALIAN BLACK TRAILERS.

Peculiar Power That One Tribe Has for Tracing People by Scent.

"Some of the Australian natives are most remarkable people," said Henry C. Dana. There is a tribe known as the Black Trailers. It is rightly named, too, for nothing ever gets away from it. No prisoner ever escapes when the Black Trailers are put on his track. When I was in Albury a young English woman and a little child were lost in the wild region. They were absent two days when the Black Trailers at Perth, 300 miles away, were sent for. The Trailers arrived and were told where the missing ones were last seen. They were set off in a circle.

"They marched around in a circle until they found the trail and then started. They went up hill and down hill, across plain and over stream, crossing the trail time and again, but never once lost it. They could even tell where the missing ones had set down to rest, where, to the eye, there was no indication of anything of the kind. It was learned afterward that they were correct in every detail. For three days the Black Trailers continued the search and finally came to an immense hill of granite.

"Here these with the searchers thought the trail would be thrown off the scent, but they followed the missing ones there as readily as through a forest. In one instance the Black Trailers said, 'There is where the little one laid down, and there the big one.' They pointed out a place on a large, smooth piece of granite, and as English officer, with the assistance of a powerful magnifying glass, was unable to detect anything unusual, but it was true, as that was where the young woman and girl had spent one afternoon.

Finally the child was found. The little one was unconscious, but was restored to its mother. The child subsequently recovered. It was ten hours later before the Trailers caught up to the young woman, and when found she was insane. She attempted to escape from her persuers, but was captured after a short chase. She did not recover her reason for five months.

"The Black Trailers have peculiar limbs. They have a tendency to sinuse in their legs. They can run like deer, however, and can stand more fatigue than a horse."—Chicago Tribune.

Extraordinary Growth.

The following extraordinary instance of the rapid growth in the human species has been noted in France by a member of the French Academy of Science and reported by him to the sitings of that institution. "The subject herein mentioned was a lad of but 7 years of age when I first saw him, but his tender years notwithstanding, he measured 4 feet, 8 inches and 4 lines high. His people had observed his marvelous growth when he was but 3 years of age. At 4 he was able to lift and carry a bushel of wheat and to throw the bundles of hay (56 pounds) to the four horses each night; and at 6 he could lift as much as a sturdy fellow of 24. But although he thus increased in bodily strength, his understanding was no greater than is usual with children of his age; playthings were also his favorite amusements."—St. Louis Republic.
