SHORT LINE TO LOS ANGELES.

Judge Colborn of Salt Lake an Enthusiast on New Road.

TO OPEN UP VAST BONANZA.

Sam's Sentiment, whose Magic Touch Turned the Eyes of the World's Gold Handlers to Utah Mines.

Hon. Frank J. Cannon and Judge E. T. Colborn, both of Utah, are guests of the Dewey Hotel. The gentlemen will remain several days in Denver, says the News of that city. Mr. Cannon is a warm friend of Senator H. M. Teller and will await the return of the senator to Denver in order to look at the situation. The senator is the central situation. The most politicians of Utah is a business man of middle age with an attractive address and a bearing which would indicate him to be a leader in any public gathering. He is saying nothing to the newspapers at this time.

Judge Colborn is one of the best talkers of Utah. He was for several years presiding judge of the court of Guadalupe county, this state, but previous to the opening of the '80's was attracted to Salt Lake, where he has gravitated into prominence in both business and public spirit. Last evening in speaking of the new day which has dawned upon Utah, he said: "Between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific coast range, the Judge called attention to the Utah & Pacific railroad.

OUTLET FOR DENVER.

"That road," said he, "ought to be of special interest to the people of Denver. It is shining as Los Angeles and be bound to get there. It is now 222 miles in length and will probably reached the western boundary of Utah. The route is 50 miles shorter than any other, and now operating between Chicago and Los Angeles and when the road is completed the time between the lakes and southern California will be shortened twenty to fifteen hours. A large part of the travel will come through Colorado and Denver where this state will reap the benefit. Every one who trade with the Orient increases, the importance of this new artery of trade will be most important. If the Santa Fe can establish a line of steamers from Southern California, as it is believed they will, the Orient will be brought nearer to us than ever and trade will naturally seek the shorter route.

"The Southern railroad passes through what is really the last virgin mining country of the United States. In the early part of the '80s when Pueblo, Virginia City, Leadville and other mining camps were in full tide of development, the Southern Utah was dotted with a region known as the Deep Creek district. This is in southwestern and central Nevada and extends into Southern Utah. Thirty-two mining camps were established by the overflow from the great mining centers and camps were established which rained as high as $1,000,000, the ore at that time bearing the base region had to be carried a long distance away. Texas of thousands of tons of rock sent on the dumps which would now be recognized as handsome pay. All that is necessary is cheap transportation to Salt Lake and the dumps would disappear. I believe there is going to be a revival of mining in those long deserted districts which will eclipse anything of the kind in the past. We know, from experience, to camps are from the mines lying at either side of the main artery.

IRON AND COAL TO BURN.

"Southwestern Utah has vast coal and iron resources which will yield handsomely to the hand of enterprise. I have examined one seam of coal in the southwestern part of the State which carries over 100 feet of coal from floor to ceiling. This is one of the greatest coal veins in the world. I have seen iron ore from the mountains of Missouri, but we have a body of iron ore in southern Utah which is as large as any in the United States and which is very near rail, which can easily be brought on the surface for $1 a ton. This is probably the greatest iron ore deposit in America. It is said that Scotchmen by ton in Utah that Scotchmen by ton in Utah that Scotchmen by ton in Utah
