DAVIS STAKE CONFERENCE.

Instructions by the First Presidency, Apostles, and Others Who Addressed the Saints.

CENTERVILLE, Utah, Sept. 9, 1895.—The quarterly conference of the Davis Stake convened at Farmington on Saturday and Sunday, September 7th and 8th, 1895. It was held in a large bowery erected by the Saints of the Farmington ward, Saturday, September 7th, 10 a.m. There were present on the stand Presidents Wilford Woodruff, Geo. Q. Cannon and Jos. F. Smith, the First Presidency of the Church. Elders John W. Hess, Joseph H. Grant and Joseph B. Clark, presidency of the Davis Stake, members of the High Council and Bishops of wards.

After the opening services President Geo. Q. Cannon addressed the congregation; subject, the necessity of continuous revelation, and the need of the inspiration of the Spirit of God.

Elder John W. Hess made a few closing remarks expressing his great pleasure in having the First Presidency with us today. After the closing exercises conference adjourned until 1 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 7, 1 p.m.—After singing and prayer, President Woodruff spoke on divine revelation, and of the great work that President Brigham Young accomplished through the revelations of the Lord unto him. He also spoke of the many temptations that have been the path of the Saints and Saints of God; said Satan is ever on the alert to draw them away from the path of truth and righteousness. He urged the Saints to be united.

President Joseph F. Smith then addressed the Saints. He spoke on divine authority, testified that men actually had been given to God's servants here on the earth. President Smith also spoke on moral speculations and monopolies; told the Saints to have nothing to do with them; said they would lead to sin and obloquy, to error and trouble.

After a few short remarks by President Cannon and President Woodruff, the conference adjourned until Sunday at 10 a.m.

Sunday, Sept. 8, 10 a.m.—There were present today President Joseph F. Smith, of the First Presidency; Elders H. J. Grant and A. H. Cannon, of the Council of the Twelve, and the Stake and local authorities.

President John W. Hess gave a brief report of the Davis Stake. He said that all things being considered, we are on the improve, although during the busy season meetings had not been as well attended as they should have been. There were no serious difficulties in the Stake. The people were paying their tithes, and were very liberal in paying their fast offerings. All organizations and associations were doing well, especially the Relief Society, which is doing a good work in helping the Bishops to take care of the poor.

Elder H. J. Grant addressed the congregation. He spoke on fault-finding and the disposition among the people to hunt out the faults and failings of others. He said, "Usefulness to humanity is." We should not believe everything that floats around the country—we should not willingly believe evil of our brother—if those with whom we have been associated for years. We should overcome prejudice, and be liberal in our views. Elder Grant compared politics to the mesmeric—not very dangerous without they attempt to; if they do, they are apt to make a person terribly sick.

Elder A. H. Cannon, in his remarks, referred to the great field that was being opened for missionary labor, Spoke on Japan, its people and its great advancement in civilization during the last few years. Said he was interested in the welfare of Zion; was in favor of accepting that great boon statehood. Did not want to see personalities used in this campaign. We should remember that we are members of the Church of Jesus Christ—brothers and sisters in the Gospel.

Sunday, Sept. 8, 1 p.m.—After the opening exercises, the Sacrament was administered. The general and Stake authorities were presented and unanimously sustained.

Elders Rossi Hyde, J. H. Grant, J. B. Clark, Nathan T. Porter and John D. Chase addressed the saints. They testified to the truth of this work and expressed their gratitude to God for the many blessings they had received through obedience to the principles of the Gospel.

President Joseph F. Smith then delivered an interesting and instructive discourse on the principles of government.

Conference was adjourned for three months, to be held at Kaysville.

The weather was fine during conference. The people gathered from every part of the Stake. On Sunday they came in such great numbers that the bowery, although it was very large, would not contain them. The Saints of the Davis Stake appreciated the rich treat their received by the visit of the First Presidency and members of the Council of the Twelve.

The music and singing during conference was furnished by the Farmington choir, under the able leadership of Brother Joseph E. Robinson.

JOHN J. SMITH, Stake Clerk.

UTAH WEATHER AND CROPS.

Products of the Farm, Garden and Orchard Generally Plentiful and in Good Condition.

Weather-crop bulletin of the Utah weather service, for week ending Monday, Sept. 9th, 1895:

WEATHER.

The weather during the past seven days has been a continuation of the drought conditions which have prevailed throughout the Territory for the last four weeks. During the latter part of the week severe frosts occurred in the higher valleys, causing considerable damage to potatoes and other tender vegetation. High winds were more or less frequent and did great injury to orchards by blowing the fruit from the trees. There was no precipitation worthy of mention reported during the week.

CROPS.

The condition of the growing crops such as corn, potatoes, sugar beets, etc., is reported good, except in a few localities of the northern portion where the severe frosts at the end of the week caused some damage to potatoes and other tender plants.

Harvesting is progressing and the work will be finished in a week or ten days. This thing is well under way in all sections and grain is turning out much better than was expected. Farmers are now busy cutting and stacking the crop is reported to be heavy and fine. The second cutting of lucern is in progress, and the crop promises to be much heavier than the first cutting; the third crop is almost a failure to some districts and will hardly cause seed an amount of frost, rust and blight.

The outlook for an abundance of all kinds of fruit is very promising.

REPORTS BY COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS.

Plymouth—The week just ended has been a good one as regards crops. Grain all out; some second crop of lucern being cut; good prospects for any second crop of alfalfa seed.

Newton—The weather during the past week has been very fine. Harvesting about done. Crops good.

Sugar — Hot days but cool nights during the week. Grain will all be cut in a few days, and threshing will commence soon. A great deal of spring wheat is damaged some by rust, some of it of no use; but all else is doing fine. Good crop of potatoes (late but fine); potatoes selling at 60 cents per bushel.

Lake Shore—Corn beginning to ripen, squash doing well, as is the potato crop; very heavy alfalfa cutting; threshing commence busy week ahead.

Box Elder—Wind storm Monday night; hot days, and nights. Threshing nearly finished.

Beaver—Farmers busy hauling grain; threshing commenced; good harvest.

Hazer—Killing frost on 3rd. Grain all harvested and much of it in stack. Very dry a fortnight all week again.

Harrisville—Good week for threshing which will be all finished up in few days. Corn in fine condition; potatoes a ready market for all we have to spare.

Uniontville—Frost every night this week cutting down potato vines in some places, while in others it has only cut the tops. Nearly all the grain has been cut; some oats not yet ripe.

Kaysville—Farmers nearly all through threshing. All report large yield of good grain. Stacking lucern commenced. Very hot and dry.

Lewiston—First this morning (6th) slight frost in some vines, drying. Wheat is being threshed and gives good results.

Bear—Grain and lucern all harvested. Frost keeps off so far; crop good; corn and potatoes fairly good. Windy, cloudy weather.

Newton—Harvesting finished, and threshing in full blast; grain turning out well.

Venice—The weather has been warm and dry the whole week.

Glen—Threshing is still in progress; best stacking has begun; oats and potatoes are ripening; third crop of lucern grows very slow for want of water.

Joseph—This week has been fine but very cold evenings and mornings. Threshing commenced; second crop of lucern being cut; which is very light and rusty; wheat light on account of rust.

Monroe—Week dry and windy; mornings cold. Grain all out; threshing machines busy; may be a third crop of lucern if frost holds off a while. Honey will be now the subject of discussion, likely to be a scarcity now.

Payson—Digging and shipping sugar beets showing an abundant crop. General harvest about finished. Heavy winds do much damage to grain, especially late; weather extremely dry.

Salem—Grain all cut and being stacked. Some wind and light frost during the week.

Spring City—Warm days, cool nights during week. Most of the grain is stack and some threshed. Very good crop.

Deweyville—Threshing is nearly done; some lucern is being cut for seed; but it don't amount to much; ground very dry; no rain since spring.

Ponn—Cutting of grain has been in progress during the week; the weather has been clear but somewhat cooler with heavy frost most every night, and the potato vines have been cut to the ground. The second crop of lucern is about ready to cut.

Center—There is no change for better or worse, it is dry, with pleasant days and very cold nights.

Lehi—The hottest week of the summer, with cool nights; very dry.

Vernal—Week was fine for harvest and haying. Threshing going on everywhere; second crop of lucern better than first; corn and potatoes looking well and promise large yields; fruit good; melons and tomatoes in market.

Huntsville—Grain hauling is the order of the day. Threshing commences; weather dry, clear and frosty nights.

Grover—Under the influence of welcome moisture our grain is maturing fast, and we look for an average crop, though early reports were very conflicting. A strange feature of our lucern crop is that the second crop will be the best both in quality and quantity, the first time it has thus happened. Range feed good and plentiful. The song of the reapers is heard on all sides.

General Superintendent Fillmore of the Southern Pacific, with his staff of officials, left for the west yesterday after making an inspection of his company's business here. Rumor has that as a result of this official visit large reduction in the force employed in the yard and departments will be made at the end of the present month.

SILVER SPANGLED HAMBURGS.

A Study of Their Peculiarities, Merits and Defects.

Although the Hamburg is not a very popular fowl among breeders generally, says a writer in The Farmers' Review, it seems to be to many excellent traits that it is a pity of more frequent mention and it must have more attention not only by breeders of fancy poultry, but by the farm yard poultryman or egg producer, whether farmer, fancier, specialist or what. Nearly every one admires the silver spangled Hamburgs, and although they speak in the highest terms of their beauty and attractiveness, the rare certain about at the same time to inform them on account of their small size. We are well aware that the Hamburg, as a rule, is a small fowl, and that it does not lay very large eggs, but it does not follow that because most Hamburgs are small and that their eggs are small that it is necessary that it should be so.

For the Hamburg breeds before him will thoroughly as to the qualifications and disqualifications, color, feather marking, symmetry, etc., of the Silver Spangled Hamburg. If he does not have a few choice specimens, selected and mated up from those the spring chicks. When they are in full feather, let him examine them closely and he will find that many of them have developed knowing to large in back and breast, having too spangles on so well defined as the fine feather. Again all such, retaining only those which have produced feather marking the second year. Place these in a yard by themselves, and from this number Order all cockerels and pullets, also to be small eggs, retaining as breeders only those which are liegel in size and layers of the largest eggs.

After having thus selected these hens as breeders, put with them a large cock or cockerel of excellent feather marking, symmetry, etc., hatch the chicks during the month of April, and by carefully following the plan of breeding for a few years a large, hard strain of one of our most valuable varieties of fowls will be developed, possessing also, besides other good qualities, high scoring features so eagerly sought for by the enthusiastic fancier. The Hamburg is a very sensitive fowl and responds more quickly to good care and treatment than almost any other breed. They are light feeders, consequently economical, but to give the best results requires frequent and regular change of food. They are hardy and can be handled from the roost at night with as much confidence as the lazy Cochins. They are very appreciative and come nearer to expressing their appreciation for special care bestowed than any other fowl, by way of hearty and wholesome-like singing and the bountiful supply of eggs in summer and winter.

Blood Will Tell.

Put a Langshan, a Houdan, a Hamburg, or any other kind of a thoroughbred male with a flock of common fowls, says an exchange, and many of the progeny will be to appearance merely common, while all will be indelibly marked by the male. And this blood will show for years in the flock. Put a common male with a flock of pure bred hens, and the reverse will be the result. The progeny will take after the pure bred hens, whose blood is the strongest. At the same time, the chicks will be all colors, because the common male does not reproduce himself. Select a fine common male and hens to correspond, as near alike in color as possible, breed them together, and the progeny will be all colors to Dominique. But with a pen of pure bred fowls the results are different. The progeny are as near alike as two peas. The male reproduces himself exactly, and the females do the same. This shows the strength of good blood, shows that blood will tell. It also shows a flock of common hens may be graded up and improved by the introduction of a fine male, while a flock of pure bred females would be ruined by breeding them to a mongrel male.

It Did Not Pay.

Johnson—So, you've quit the poultry business, Robson. Have you? What's the matter? Tired of it so soon?

Robson—Well, it's this way, Johnson. In the winter season, when eggs were high, I got delighted hens set four times on each set in warm weather and had no eggs. But in spring and summer, when eggs were way down and no sale for 'em, every hen on the place tried her darndest to see how many eggs she could lay. It fairly made me sick to hear of 40 cent eggs in the winter and none of my hens laying. Yes, I've quit. There's no profit in hens. I'm going into the horse business.

I Am Glad

To tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I had the grip and its ill effects entirely rid all over me. One bottle cured the eczema, and another has helped my stomach trouble greatly. I have taken 3 bottles and am 70 years old. Wish you the best success." H. A. MELVIN, Salem, Oregon.
