ELDER JOHN MORGAN.

Funeral Service in the Assembly Hall This Afternoon.

THE DECEASED IS LAID TO REST.

Words of Comfort, Consolation and Instruction by Those Associated With Elder Morgan in Life.

The funeral service over the remains of the late Elder John Morgan, of the Presiding Council of Seventies, were held in the Salt Lake Assembly Hall this afternoon, commencing at 12 o'clock. The attendance was large. The room was beautifully decorated in white and with a profusion of flowers. Among the emblems on the elegant white casket in which the body was encased was a war-worn battle-flag, tattered and punctured with holes in the fierce engagements in which it was carried on the Union side in the Civil War. This flag was given into the possession of Elder Morgan for his bravery in carrying it to the front at the battle of Chattanooga, Alabama. At that time, previous to his coming to Utah, Elder Morgan was in the Union service, and his regiment was in the front of the column while a desperate charge was being made on the enemy's fortified position. The first regimental standard bearer fell; then a second was killed. A third was wounded, when young Morgan seized the banner and bore it at the head of the column to the thickest of the fight, till it was planted in triumph in the enemy's position. In connection with his war record it may be mentioned that on one of the stones marking the graves of the Union dead in the South is an inscription giving the names of several, among these being "Captain John Morgan." This came through his capture and escape from a soldier who was unmanageable, but who was mistaken for the young captain, who, however, passed through that fight without injury, but had lost his cap in the so-doing.

The remaining six members of the Council of Seventies acted as pall bearers. The family of the deceased occupied the front seats in the center. The Tabernacle choir did the singing, and the opening prayer was offered by Elder John Henry Smith.

Elder B. H. Roberts was the first speaker. He said it was his good fortune to be intimately acquainted with the man to whom the speaker had spoken for a very short but tribute of respect. The speaker first knew Elder Morgan when as a lad he received instruction in his school in this city, and in this especially had learned to love and admire him as a teacher. After leaving his school the speaker's acquaintance with the deceased became again intimate when he was to labor under his jurisdiction in the Southern States mission. The hundreds of Elders who were associated with Brother Morgan in that mission or some fourteen years during which time the deceased was president knew how much they became attached to him, how much they learned to rely upon his good judgment and how great the confidence they had in following his leadership. The speaker himself could well recall many circumstances while armed of meeting with him in public and in private and enjoying his counsels which were prompted by the inspiration of the Almighty. The memory of this is enshrined in the hearts of hundreds of the Elders of Israel who labored with him. In this labor Elder Morgan laid the foundation of streams of gratitude which will run towards him through time and eternity. But there were other directions in which the administrations of his good man were enjoyed and for which an eternal weight of glory and honor had been earned. Those who have been most intimately associated with him will know how much they have lost when they no longer hear his voice in their midst. There was another phase in the history of Elder John Morgan that the speaker referred to and of which little has been generally known. In his early life he was a soldier. He joined the Union army and fought through all the years of the great rebellion, serving with honor in the armies of his country. Upon the casket containing the body of the deceased could be seen the flag of the regiment in which he served, and which was given to him in recognition of his services.

Elder Roberts invoked the blessing of God upon the sorrowing family and friends of the deceased.

Elder J. Golden Kimball then spoke, referring to the excellent effects of the labors of the deceased in the Southern states while presiding over that mission. Elder Morgan, he said, had gained more many friends even among those who were not Latter-day Saints.

Elder C. D. Fjeldsted said that during his acquaintanceship with the deceased he had always found him devoted to the service of God—one who did his best to be a social instrument in His cause.

Elder George Goddard spoke of Elder Morgan's useful labors in the Sunday school cause. It was through his instrumentality that the good work in the Sunday schools had been started.

Elder John Henry Smith said he had been intimately acquainted with the deceased in various Church matters and spoke of his usefulness in this and other directions. Reference was made to the earnestness of Elder Morgan in his political career and I in sincerity to his convictions to this subject.

The choir sang "O, my Father," and the benediction was pronounced by President Joseph F. Smith.

The interment took place at the city cemetery, a large number of carriages following the remains to their last resting-place.

Sheep Are Feel Better.

This afternoon Mr. I. G. Reese, of the firm of Reese & Stowell, returned from Piedmont, Wyoming. He was not by a reporter and spoken to regarding their sheep which are herded in Black Fork, near Hilliard, Wyoming. Mr. Reese says the flocks are doing exceedingly well, but as the Chicago market is at present very low, most of the herd owners have decided to hold their mutions until October. Wool has sold this year from 9½ to 11 and 9 cents, and has therefore made the sellers a little more jubilant.

The film above mentioned have some 2,000 head of wethers, averaging 125 pounds each in weight, which they intend to dispose of on the Chicago market early in October.

These gentlemen are not disposed to give away their mutions, but are satisfied in holding them a while yet.

Lighted by Electricity.

E. G. Holding has just completed fitting up the Twentieth ward meeting house with the electric light, and it will be used for the first time tomorrow evening. The ward authorities are very much pleased with the improvement.

May Go On Better Now.

Commissioner E. W. Tallock has returned from Manti, where he went on Wednesday to investigate certain complaints made against the registration officer at that place. Mr. Tallock says he found that the official has been simply negligent in notifying voters to call on him, and a friendly conversation set the whole thing right.

At Garfield Next Week.

The Garfield holidays for next week are as follows:

Tuesday—Populist party.
Wednesday — Twenty-first ward choir, Sunday school, Relief society and members of the ward generally.
Thursday—C. E. D. society of the Baptist church.
Friday—Annual excursion of the Western Stone & Dry Goods company.

The Pioneer List.

In the list of Pioneers on another page the date of death of Clarissa Decker Young should be Jan. 5, 1889, and following it in order should be the following:

Harriet Page Wheeler Young died in Salt Lake City, Dec. 22, 1871.

COURTS IN SESSION.

The Hearing to Show Cause in the Fitzgerald Divorce Case.

JUDGE BARTCH MAKES AN ORDER

The Kendall-McAllister Matter—Two Bloated Wives Seek Relief in Divorce—Probate, Etc.

Judge Bartch held court this morning, and after disposing of the adjourned cases took an adjournment until Monday next.

THE FITZGERALDS.

The divorce suit of Belle Fitzgerald vs Mike Fitzgerald came before Judge Bartch this morning on an order to show cause why the defendant should not pay temporary alimony pending the hearing of the case, attorney's fee and certain costs.

The parties were married on February 5th, 1889, and the grounds on which the complaint is based are cruelty and failure to provide. It is alleged by Mrs. Fitzgerald that her husband has been guilty of gross cruelty towards her. She cites three occasions on which he thus misconducted himself, stating that in October, 1892, he cut her clothing with a knife, slashed her and drove her out of the house in the middle of the night. On July 27th, 1894, he turned her out of doors at 2 o'clock in the morning and kept her there for a couple of hours; again, on Aug. 6th he choked her until she was black in the face. She is afraid, she says, that in some of his fits of rage—he being of a violent and ungovernable disposition—he will kill her. The neglect of wife and family is also set forth. There are three children—two boys and a girl—aged respectively six, four and two years.

Mrs. Fitzgerald is a delicate looking woman of petite figure about 30 years of age, her attorney being Frank Pierce. She and her little boys were present in court this morning, but the defendant was not, and his attorney (Fred. McCurrie) asked that the case go over until twelve or two o'clock, as his client had an engagement which he was obliged to fill this morning.

Attorney Pierce objected, remarking that the other setting the hearing for ten o'clock this morning was made in days ago. The plaintiff has three small children and nothing to live upon. She had not a dollar in the house. She even had to borrow her car fare to come here now, and informed him that she had no credit anywhere.

Attorney McCurrie stated, however, that the defendant had kept his wife supplied with meat and groceries, and had been supporting her right along. According to the other side there seemed to be some doubt about this.

Judge Bartch said there was no proper application before the court for a continuance, and therefore he declined to grant it.

The attorneys of the parties then conferred and Mr. Pierce announced they had agreed that the alimony might be fixed at $50 per month, dating from the 8th day of the suit, pending the final determination of the case. An order to this effect was entered—$10 to be paid in ten days, $10 in twenty and $10 in thirty; court costs to be paid in sixty days. No order as to attorney's fee was now made.

The defendant is the keeper of the "Bells of Shandon" saloon on Main street. His answer was filed yesterday, when the existence of it was given in these minutes.

THE CLELAND-NEDER LITIGATION.

Geo. M. Cleland vs Philip Neder. This is the case in which the parties to the suit, who were formerly partners as carriage manufacturer, disagreed and an accounting was asked for, a receiver having been appointed after a protracted hearing.

Motion was now made by the defendant for discharge of the receiver and the exoneration of bondsmen, to which the plaintiff consented. An order was entered accordingly, also dismissing the suit, Receiver's report approved.

DECREE MODIFIED.

W. S. McCornick vs M. Vivian et al. Upon stipulation the decree in this case was modified in accordance therewith.

HE IS WELCOME!

Herman Holsenau, a German, now of Juab county, was admitted to citizenship. His supporters were W. M. Nesbitt and H. Beckman.

THE PROVISION INJUNCTION.

The Peters, etc., Alma S. Kendall vs James G. McAllister. This case was reinstated, in accordance with the remittitur from the Territorial Supreme Court, for further proceedings. The hearing was set for next Tuesday.

THE SHERIFF WILL DO IT.

Salt Lake Building & Loan association vs John Greek. An order was made modifying the decree in this case, viz., the sheriff is sell the property instead of the trustee.

MOTION TO DISSOLVE ATTACHMENT.

E. Griffiths vs A. B. Glass. Motion to dissolve attachment; hearing continued.

CRUELTY AND NEGLECT.

Two suits for divorce were filed by Powers and Stroup in the Third district court this morning. The first was that of Lizzie Gruesbeck vs Geo. Gruesbeck, the grounds being cruelty and failure to provide.

The marriage took place at Fremont, Nebraska, on October 16th, 1887, and there are two children, aged five and three years. Various occasions are named during the years 1889-93 when the defendant struck and beat his wife to the then without any provocation, making it impossible for plaintiff to remain any longer with her husband, and she therefore left him in September, 1893. About that time he assaulted her in a similar way in the Gem House, and coming out he ran on that occasion. She was detained by the grand jury of the Third district court, but acquitted on the trial.

For two or three years past, plaintiff says, her husband has not provided her with anything for the support of herself and children, though he unloaded meat. He is in the employ of the city, in the street department. Mrs. Gruesbeck asks for a divorce, for the custody of the children, temporary alimony, attorney's fee and costs.

THE RAYNOR SUIT.

Susan Raynor is the plaintiff and James Raynor the defendant in the second case. The same grounds are alleged as in the foregoing suit.

The parties intermarried at Nottingham, England, in April, 1881. They have had no children of their own, but there is an adopted child, now aged seven years. Mrs. Raynor states that for the last year or two her lord and master has treated her with serious severity, striking and beating her violently, has called her vile names, remained away from home at nights and associated with other women. Since September 1st, 1893, he has failed to support her, but has maintained another woman during that time on numerous occasions. Defendant, she says, is the owner of a small farm and lot near Ninth South and Eighth West streets, valued at about $1,500 and he also has other real estate and considerable mining property. Plaintiff, however, has no means of support whatever. She asks for reasonable alimony, etc., likewise that pending the hearing of the suit Raynor be restrained from disposing of any of his property, and that she be permitted to reside in the house now occupied by her without her husband's interference.

Frank J. Cundis, at one time proprietor of the European cafe, was to have had a hearing in Commissioner McNaily's court this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace, but the case was over until Monday afternoon, at the request of the complaining witness, E. D. Roller, a former partner of Cundis.

AGAIN CONTINUED.

The Parsons investigation has been continued indefinitely.

THE SERVICE IS GOOD.

An important decision has been made in the case of J. C. Lewis vs the receivers of the Union Pacific railroad by Commissioner McNaily. The suit is brought to recover $100 damages for alleged trespass. The summons was served on Attorney F. L. Williams as agent of the company, but defendants contended that such service was not good. Attorney Kreiger, for the plaintiff, argued that under the United States statutes which authorize suits against receivers without leave of the court, the receivers may be served in the same manner as corporations, viz.: By leaving service on their agents. His honor holds that the service was good.

DON'T PAY HIS BOARD BILL.

M. Waverman, he who put up at the Walker House and incurred a substantial board bill, after which he went away to Ogden without first settling up, is having a hearing before Commissioner Pratt this afternoon.

PROBATE COURT.

Only one case came before Judge Blair in the Probate court this morning, but the hearing on that occupied some time. It was in the matter of the estate of Christopher Merkley, deceased, and the hearing was had on two petitions for letters of administration. After argument the court took the case under advisement.

AT SALTAIR ON MONDAY.

Elaborate Preparations for the Veteran Celebration.

Entertainment Speeches, Music, Songs, Etc.—Fires at the First Fire.—The Old Artillery.

The committee on the Veteran's day celebration at Saltair on Monday next are rustling in their preparations for the event, to have it most redolent of pioneer reminiscences of any occasion yet offered since Utah became a flourishing young commonwealth.

One of the interesting articles of display will be a section of the first tree planted in Utah. The plant was set from a limb yesterday, and was presented to the Deseret Museum by George Anderson. The tree is still standing, and is flourishing on the east side of the tier drive house on State street. It was planted by Mrs. Harriet F. Young, wife of L. Dwight Young, one of the Pioneers.

Another relic that will recall the military at once to the early settlers will be the "City Rose," as it was well known by the Utah soldiers. This is a small three-pounder, and the largest cannon in the old militia equipment. It was brought across the plains at an early day, and many times in Utah's celebrations has it resounded as the "morning gun." Its title on account of the other cannons in the service were as "cooking pots" designated to it.

The members of the City Band are requested to report to Justus Meagley, who will have charge of the music.

Martin Lucas, who is 77 years old, will execute a fancy dance, and to the Hayle will cut a "pigeon's wing" look difficult feat for a decent one-fourth Mr. Lucas's age; but the veteran dancer is unable on his feet.

A part of the program is "The Handicap Song," to be sung by John J. Smith, the words of which are as follows:

HAND CAP SONG.

We have who meet on Pioneer's anniversary,
Perhaps sometimes, with some sorrow,
To meet before our maker soon,
For we are growing old.
For our days are fleeting away
Before we grow old and we must pay,
Each what we have done.

Chorus—
For some were young and some were old,
But we go marching on the hill,
And soon we shall be far we go
Unto we meet the valley.

We have met some of us much time
We know we are as dust as ashes,
And some are no more and we need
Who are now gray and bent with age
The time that comes of liberty
We never made so good to see,
When we meet it will make a man
To cross the plains with our hand carts.

Chorus.

But long before the valley's passed
We are on our way to the plains
With about seven and twenty to meet,
With food supplies our hopes to cheer,
And with the march and the song
How cheerily we'd march along,
And thank the Lord we made a start
To cross the plains with our hand carts.

Chorus.

When we get there among the rock,
Prepared we and we'll be blessed,
And in the meadows we shall be
While judgment comes the earth from sin.
For then we know it will be so,
God's servants told it long ago;
They say it is high time to start
To meet the plains with our hand carts.

Chorus—
For some were young and some were old, etc.

Saltair.

Mr. Meakin has the following excursions booked for beautiful Saltair the coming week:

Monday, Aug. 20th, Utah Pioneers.
Tuesday, Aug. 21st, Tabernacle Choir.
Wednesday, Aug. 22nd, Foresters of America and Prof. Younger's Dancing Class.

Saturday, Aug. 25th, Saturday Night Club.

DIRECTORS MEET.

Assistant Superintendents Appointed for the Territorial Fair.

The board of directors of the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing society met at the society rooms at 4 o'clock this afternoon, President Winder in the chair. The directors present were Messrs. Hamberger, Empey, Halch, Cragun, Peters, Willey, Melville, Harris and Simon.

The secretary reported that he had received from the Territorial auditor all the warrants due the society from the Territory.

The board voted thanks to Manager Murray for use of a telephone until fair time.

The following assistant superintendents were named and confirmed:

Department D, sheep and swine, John H. Rolfe Jr.

Department H, agricultural machinery, Wm. Naylor.

Department J, minerals, L. E. Bamberger.

Department L, women's work, Mrs. Marianne A. Clifton.

Department M, educational, Dr. John H. Paul.

The other superintendents were authorized to appoint the assistant superintendent and report to the secretary at an early day.

On motion of Director Cragun it was decided to engage Mr. W. W. Brown, of Ogden, as judge of the poultry department.

Letters and petitions were presented from Salt Lake and other points asking the society to arrange a "speed" program, but the supervisor of the horse department, acquainted with the judges, were authorized to arrange for speeding horses on exhibition.

Letters from Jos. W. Scott and E. F. Colburn, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, were presented, asking the society to join with the Chamber of Commerce in advertising the Fair in Colorado points. Mr. Hunter is to be the distribution of all literature referred to the printing committee.

CASH FOR HORSE RACE ARTICLES.

M. H. Walker makes the following offer: "I will give a special premium of twenty-five dollars ($25) for the best display of articles of home manufacture, to be named by your board or committee having supervision of this department to be competed for at the Territorial Fair of 1894."

EXCURSION HORSES.

Horatio Phelps of Mr. George will show at the Fair of Utah's washing machine invented by Mesdames Rayfoss of the same place. Their machine has merits acknowledged by the American Inventive Progress as being the best representative invention of its class.

Thomas Matthews has made application for space for seven acres standard bred on mile for the October Fair.

The Kaysville Creamery will make a fine display of butter and cheese.

The Utah Slaughtering Co. will show their home cured meats, lard, etc.

Y. M. C. A.

The following notice was handed in for late or classification with religious notices:

"Y. M. C. A., Holmes building, 111 Main street. Gospel meeting for men only Sunday at 4 p. m. Address by Rev. J. H. Gillilan. A service of song and praise among promptly at 3 p. m. Free seats, warm hearts and a cordial welcome to all men."

The Mining Assessment Law.

The land office has received a copy of the mining law approved July 18, suspending the operation of the law requiring $100 to assessment work on mines located subsequent to May 10, 1872, provided that the claimants record in the office where the notice of location is filed, before Dec. 31, 1894, a notice that they intend to hold such claims and work them in good faith. Ninth District is excepted from the provisions of the act.

TERRITORIAL PARAGRAPHS.

Manti Messenger: Manti and Ephraim county will have an abundant fruit harvest this season. This may be attributed to the general interest taken in the spraying law last spring, and to the fact that frequent spring rains prevented the usual disease from affecting the fruits.

Mount Pleasant Pyramid: We are now having the warmest weather of the season, for the warm for comfort in the day time. Showers seem to have taken a sudden leave on thermometers, and no counteracting elements exist to relieve the heat, except the cool, pleasant evenings. There is no disposal on these in Mount Pleasant. The thermometer has reached 100 degrees this month.
