from that revelation containing the testimony of Joseph Smith and Sidney Rigdon that they saw the Lord Jesus Christ, and that His Gospel would be proclaimed to all people, both the living and the dead. Elder Grant said that he rejoiced in a Gospel that was broad enough to embrace all mankind, and in knowing that it was true that Christ after His crucifixion had gone to the spirits in prison who were disobedient in the days of Noah, and preached the same Gospel to them that he had preached to men in the flesh. It is the luty of every Latter-day Saint, said the speaker, to live above reproach, so that people who do not have faith in the Gospel can honestly testify to the good character and integrity and dev of the Saints. Elder Grant read from a letter received by him from a prominent capitalist in England, who testified that the Latter-day Saints lived near-er to their religion than any people he had ever seen. Every Laiter-day Saint should by their lives of honesty. virtue and devotion, impress the people of the world with the fact that they are absolutely sincere. The choir sang the hymn, "All Hall the Glarious Day," and the benediction was pronounced by Apostle Rudger Clawyor
