Educational

The Delta Phi committee was busy yesterday sending out invitations for the last of the series of balls to be given next Tuesday evening, February 21. The boys expect it to be a fitting climax to the success of the order.

The Legislature will visit the University in a body before the session is over. The students always expect a visit from the legislators, and they will be pleased to show the solons with what difficulty 652 of them are crowded into the largest assembly room. The elder students remember with pleasure past visits of legislators and the short speeches made by some of them.

The freshman class has not yet completed its organization, but is bubbling over with energy. They have chosen the violet as the class flower.

Prof. Carey's class in Economics I has spent the last two recitations in discussing the question whether legal restraints on the concentration of capital are opposed to the welfare of modern society. The discussion will be continued next week.

Thursday evening the members of the Delta Phi fraternity congratulated themselves on the highly successful Lincoln memorial services at the Congregational church last Sunday, and then voted an assessment to pay the expenses of the occasion.

There are now 652 students registered at the University.

The greater part of the editorial page of this week's Chronicle is devoted to words of praise and sympathy in the killing of Dr. Harry Young and the wounding of Isaac Russell at Manila.

The news that Isaac Russell had received only a slight scalp wound was received with joy by all who knew him; though the thought of a scalp wound brought a shudder to each.

Dr. Talmage addressed the Normal class of '98 on Thursday. He gave one of his characteristic student lectures so valuable to the youth, Human Character and Free Will the Judging of Character was the subject of the address.

Mr. Bagley, minister of the Central Christian Science church, who was chaplain at the University this week, was much pleased in visiting the Normal training school. The modern methods of the school seem to arouse the interest and sympathy of all who visit it.

Rev. Mr. Bailey, pastor of the Westminster church, will conduct chapel services at the University next week.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Judge Bowman's address on Abraham Lincoln at the High school last Monday was listened to with exceptional interest by the pupils. With marked originality of treatment and eloquent outburst of praise, the Judge discussed Lincoln as a man and as a statesman. He compared him with the Judges of history, only to emphasize the nobility and the greatness of the great emancipator. He also compared the life and character of "Honest Abe" of the inspired president, in a way most pleasing and encouraging to the youth. Judge Bowman has found a place in the heart of every High school pupil.

A citizen of Salt Lake, who has the interests of public education at heart, has given $5 to the High school for the benefit of its library. The gentleman does not care to have his name mentioned.

There has been no end of pleasantry among the pupils this week over the laughable failure of the juniors to interfere with the banquet given the seniors a week ago at Knowlton's cave. The conspiracy of the juniors is interesting and suggestive of the tricks played in the large colleges. Young Young, president of the senior class, had no sooner left the gate of his house, on his way to the banquet, than he was picked from from the juniors surrounded him, and endeavored to carry him off to some dark cave specially prepared. But as Waldemar is one of the High school physical giants, there was a terrific struggle for half a block, in which several of the juniors were somewhat damaged. In the meantime Evelyn Thomas, who is a soldier, had hastily procured a formidable cudgel, and at the frightful weapon was flourished in the moonlight, the terrified junior crew quickly withdrew. In another part of the city four junior athletes rushed upon Jacob Coleman, toastmaster of the evening. He called the Sackman to his aid, and after a short struggle, the hardy but greatly excited caller succeeded in getting the jackie back into his carriage. He urged his horses at full speed toward the Knoxville. When the hackman was assured that they were not being pursued, he called down to Jacob, who was piled "all out of breath" from the last skirmish: "What shall we do, Jacob? Shall we go on to the cave, or go home?" By heaven, I will save you whether you be a Prudd prisoner, an escaping debtor, or a foul criminal!" The troublesome jackies went to the cave, and arrived at a time to hear from above the dining room, with the banquet, hearing the senior class songs. But to the chief seven juniors who had been seized, supporting something of the kind, did not sing the songs. During the whole week the seniors have been smilingly met at every turn the taunts and raillery of sophomores, sophomores and freshmen.

The banquet arrangements committee held a jubilation meeting last Tuesday in the office of Bird and Black. With smiles and satisfaction they congratulate one another on the success of their entire arrangements, and commend the great success of the banquet as the greatest failure of the dance committee. The committee was: Robert Thomas, Ruth Pickett, Lyle Winnard, Leigh Black and Jacob Coleman.

GENERAL NOTES.

Next Friday evening the James A. Garfield Literary society will give a jubilee between two of its members in the lecture room of the Congregational church. Clarence M. Prudden has challenged Robert M. Young, who is now "champion debater" of the Lincoln. The question will be: "Resolved, that all of Bryan's ideas are good." Some interested are cordially invited.

Dr. Paul, state superintendent of public instruction, will have his biennial report prepared and printed the first part of next week.

The graduate grade of the county teachers met at the city and county building this afternoon. Superintendent Van Cleve addressed the teachers on the subject of Devotional and Practical. Mr. Warren H. Lees treated the subject of Nature Study in Schools. This is the last of the grade meetings to be held until another program of meetings is arranged.

Last Monday afternoon the children in the public schools, from the beginners to those in the eight grade, received after the dismissal of their classmates and sent valentines to one another through a "valentine box." The pupils always expect this privilege as much as a holiday on Washington's birthday.

The public lecture at the University next Monday evening will be delivered by Professor Ogden, assistant Professor of Engineering. His subject will be, The Stephenson, the Ericsson, and the Civilization. The lecture will begin at 8 o'clock in the laboratory building, 132 W. First North. The public is invited.

There are now fifty-nine pupils in the eighth grade of the Lowell school. The number is so large that an assistant teacher will aid Miss Cheshan during the remainder of the year.

At the monthly meeting of the city teachers' club last Monday Miss Catherine Depew read a paper entitled "Social Aspects of the Curriculum Practically Considered." Miss Maud Smith of the High School and Mr. J. O. Cross of the Wasatch led in discussing the question treated by Miss Depew.

The study of Spanish, it is said, is very popular at Manila among the boys interested in education. Debating societies, literary societies, and Mutual Improvement Associations have been organized.

The International Kindergarten association, which met last Monday Miss Calthorne, Miss Dodge and Miss Smith on March 2, 3, and 4, has requested that the Utah Kindergarten association be represented by delegates.

Miss Holton, acting superintendent of city schools, visited the State Normal training school on Thursday. After hearing classes through all the departments of the school by Prof. Stewart, Miss Holton expressed the hope that normal training may soon be instituted in all the schools of the city.

The committee of the Mathematical society met this afternoon at the High school building for the purpose of making a report on the methods of teaching arithmetic in the public schools. The report when completed will provoke discussion and investigation.

Mr. Cummings of the Normal Training school will address the teachers of Sanpete county, February 25, on the subject of general science work.

While it was necessary for the Board of education to use the room in the Western school occupied by the kindergarten of the Normal Training school, the board has given the use of a smaller room in the same building for the kindergarten.

Dr. J. T. Kingsbury, president of the University, addressed the eighth teachers today, of the grade, on "The Kind of Education that Will Accomplish Most."

BRIGHAM YOUNG COLLEGE (LOGAN)

In the students' meeting last Monday, M. S. Marriott, Roy Bullen and Professor Gibson occupied the time.

Student Alvin Lewis conducted chapel exercises Thursday morning in a most interesting manner.

The Polysophical society has arranged for a series of popular lectures by leading speakers of the State Among those expected to speak are Pres. J. T. Kingsbury and Dr. J. E. Talmage of the University, Pres. J. M. Tanner of the Agricultural College, Representative Wm. H. King, and Charles W. Nibley.

President Kerr and Secretary Bullen visited the capital Thursday. The students have been looking for a quick solution of the senatorial question in consequence.

On the evening of Washington's Birthday the Polysophical society gives a grand ball.

Next Friday the class in history of education will debate the following: Resolved, that Environment makes the Man.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE (LOGAN)

President Tanner went to Salt Lake City on Thursday to look after some matters of legislation.

Professors Foster, Merrill, Linfield, Hodgin and Stewart are at Brigham City, in attendance in Farmers' Institute.

The Scorpio society held its regular meeting at the home of Professor Hedrick on Monday, and after literary exercises Mr. Hedrick furnished refreshments.

Professor Linfield took his class in animal husbandry to Hyde Park on Monday, to inspect stockyards. Mr. Hawkes showed the class the special stockyards and creameries in Hickman.

There has been lately quite a raid in the city west on the cattle in American history and biography.

C. J. Brossard, a freshman, was called home to Oxford, Idaho, on Thursday, owing to the illness of his father.

Senior Simmons and his sister were called home Friday, on account of the death of a relative.

C. J. Hansen, a member of the freshman class and a nephew of Mr. Hansen of the board of trustees, started for Denmark on a mission Friday.

The following is the program offered Saturday evening by Miss Hansen and her pupils, assisted by Prof. Thatcher and his Opera house orchestra:

The committee appointed by President Tanner for the purpose, received at the last faculty meeting the following resolutions of condolence on the demise of Dr. F. W. Brewer, the first member of the faculty of the Agricultural College of Utah called home by death.

Whereas, we have sustained a severe loss by the decease of our friend and associate, Dr. F. W. Brewer, and in view of the still heavier loss sustained by his family, we feel sincerely and dearly for him; therefore it is

Resolved, that it be not a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst, we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our regard and esteem.

Resolved, that we recognize in Dr. Brewer a true friend, a loyal citizen, a helpful, affable, suggestive, patient, just and scholarly.

Resolved, that we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased in their extreme bereavement, and, for consolation, commend them to the exemplary life of the departed, and also to Him who orders all things for the best.

Resolved, that this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and sorrow be forwarded to the relatives of our deceased friend, as a slight token of the regard of his late associates.

Audacious Charge of the U. S. Troops on Manila Entrenchments Impresses Filipinos.

Judge Advocate General Jewett, U. S. A., Predicts a Speedy Settlement of Crisis in Philippines.

New York, Feb. 19.—Judge Advocate General Jewett, U. S. A., who has just arrived here from Manila, when told by a World reporter about the fighting in the Philippines, said to-day:

"I am glad of it. The sooner the crisis is reached the better. Night is the first requisite for enduring peace. The Filipinos see at daybreak the trouble after the malcontents and guerrilla leaders are captured. We must be prepared to offer absolute absence of policy regarding the future is to be blamed for this trouble. Aguinaldo has had ample time to carry out his promised reforms. What has he done?

"He used to come to see me nearly every day just as he went to visit Gen. Merritt. He would say: 'What is your government going to do with us?' We could not tell him. He naturally focused on liars and cheats. He could not conceive of a powerful nation without a Kind policy. Then he took to attacking Spain before the world about American occupation.

"Had he any grounds?

"None but motives of revenge," was the reply.

"I went into Manila when it was captured and stayed there for a month. In a week, by proper police system we made Manila with all its sub-tropical population as safe as New York. Aguinaldo's infamous falsehoods about the maltreatment of native women were concocted in Hong Kong. What? We had 23,000 men there and not a single reasonable act was committed by one of them. That is remarkable, but true.

"What is the real situation?"

"Satisfaction among the Spaniards and some dismay in the insurgent ranks due to the delay in declaring our policy. Beyond question, we saw considerable in the insurgents. They proved the Spaniards by their show of strength when we landed. They kept the Spaniards in the city, expecting to make cold meat of them when we came ashore. Naturally, from their point of view, they were disappointed.

"At the same time Gen. Merritt kept the insurgents 'bunched' so that they could not attack the Spanish lines, and when he had to strike he delivered a crushing blow. The guns on the ships were thundering with the precision of a metronome. It was wonderful. Whole groups of the insurgents with guns in their hands, ran to the beach to see what was fired at. There will not be any serious guerrilla warfare in the Philippines. Aguinaldo's power is gone. He will be organized with American officers, and short work will be made of the insurrection.

"The audacious bravery of our men—volunteers chiefly, be it remembered, regulars only in the majority—impressed the Filipinos, it was amazing to the army officers who witnessed the charge. Our men crossed over the open ground, climbed the hills in the full blaze of rifle fire. They did this as if they had been soldiering all their lives. Nothing more than an order was necessary. Off they went. This utter disregard for fear too impressed Aguinaldo and Spaniards alike. I predict that Dewey will be as quiet and orderly as Philadelphia before the month is over. I am glad to hear what President McKinley said at Boston. That's the spirit for peace than any action of Congress."

California Newspaperman Dead.

San Francisco, Feb. 19.—Captain J. H. Burke, well known in local newspaper and army circles throughout the Pacific coast and New York State, is dead after suffering for months from cancer. He was a native of New York, aged 48 years. He was connected with the San Jose Mercury and the Call of this city.

He Lived 101 Years.

Berkeley, Cal., Feb. 19.—Malon Thomas is dead at the age of 101 years, after an illness of about three months. He was a native of Seven Falls, N. Y. His wife, with whom he had lived for more than half a century, died five years ago. Thomas then sold his home in Stockton county and, though then over 100 years of age, expressed a desire to marry again as he might establish another home.

NO EXCITEMENT IS MANIFEST.

Parisians Seem Indifferent Regarding Presidential Situation.

NAPOLEONIC TRADITIONS

Account for the Unanimity Basis of the Republicans to Elect a New President.

New York, Feb. 19.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Paris says:

Now that the first excitement and surprise caused by the sudden death of Felix Faure has passed away, there is, outwardly, no sign of excitement, not the slightest trace of agitation or of political excitement on the part of the public. The calmness and indifference displayed by the crowds at the news of the death of President Carnot is absent. The impression conveyed to Parisians at the loss of the president of the French republic strikes none than observers with amazement, and is interpreted by the Bonapartists and the monarchists as an indication that the people are tired of a republic and would welcome a change in the system. Such is the view most emphatically expressed this afternoon by Paul de Cassagnac who, in a conversation in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies, remarked to the Tribune correspondent:

"The assembly basis of the republic rests on the indifference and even scorn of the apprehensions caused by the platitudes of the people toward the Presidential succession. Nothing of this nature would have taking place at the Sorbonne theatre, in the patriotic centre, 'Sol de Bonte,' may soon be transferred to the streets of Paris. A plebiscite would prove that the French people are tired of the Chamber of Deputies and true to Napoleonic traditions."

UNREADY FOR A COUP D'ETAT.

When asked whether he considered the moment ripe for Prince Victor to act and place himself at the head of his followers, M. Cassagnac replied:

"That is more than I can say, at all events, until we know whom the republicans of choice for the 16th of June will."

This was interpreted by those who overheard the conversation as an admission that the Bonapartists are by no means prepared for a coup d'etat, which, owing to the recent death of the officers of the army of all grades affected by the patriotic league at aligned impossible. Indeed, the Bonapartists give intentions to those republicans who still hold the army, and who should be subordinate to the civil authorities.

When urged to express an opinion of the likely candidates for the presidency, M. Cassagnac replied:

"With the exception of Deschanel, the president of the Chamber of the republican candidates are extinct variances. Loubet has not a spark of energy or vital left. He was, in fact, born an old man. Then there is Freycinet. He is a man who missed his opportunity years ago. He now serves as a sort of milk and water compromise.

"In my opinion, the best man the republic could put to the front would be Cavaignac, always bearing in mind that neither Deschanel nor Loubet, nor any general, would care to personally an affront republic about which there such a strong fatality, for no president has been able to live quietly through the seven years of office prescribed by the constitution.

"I deeply sympathize with Mme. Faure and the family, but Felix Faure came to his country in far worse condition than he found it, and this is entirely his own fault. The imperial system of the regime had completely turned his head, and each religious and Roman Catholic embraces was the golden fleece and the accomplishment did not extinguish his ambition as a free mason."

WOULD MEAN CIVIL WAR.

George B. Clemenceau, when asked by the Tribune correspondent what effect the death of Felix Faure would have on the revision of the Dreyfus trial, said he made it a rule never to state his ideas in the form of an interview, but in the course of conversation, it was evident that he felt convinced that if M. Dupuy or any one known to be equally opposed to revision were elected, it would be, in Clemenceau's words, mean civil war throughout France.

M. Clemenceau felt convinced that the Bonapartists had firmly resolved to attempt a coup d'etat and had secured a large sum of money to back them up, but that the sudden death of President Faure's death had taken them by surprise and completely and completely disconcerted their plans.

Clemenceau's outlook for the immediate future of the republic was most dependent and Cassandra-like.

After a long talk with Mme. Faure, he said, he felt convinced that if she was prime minister at the outset of President Faure's predecessor, and, perhaps, come nearer to American ideas of true and staunch, yet conservative democracy with the wonderful Frenchman. M. Hanotaux felt absolutely confident that the republic had no serious danger to fear from the Bonapartists, much less from royalists, whom M. Hanotaux asserted practically dead as a political factor in the life of France today.

M. Hanotaux, who received the Tribune's correspondent in his spacious and magnificently appointed apartments in the Rue Tournon, near the Latin Quarter, overlooking the Senate, said:

"You may tell your readers in Transatlantic that there is no need to despair of the French republic. In spite of the noisy and exceptional agitation which has arisen, France is at heart thoroughly republican and will remain so.

"French people know more than we in accord with American ways of settling home affairs, but, depend upon it, the Germans and Spaniards will be in accordance with principles of our revolution, which, in advance, are those of the American republic."

Among the prominent Frenchmen who may be counted on to support the Dreyfus movement and trusted friends is M. Jules Cambon, whose views in regard to the present situation are represent to closely resemble those of M. Hanotaux. M. Cambon is visibly and deeply affected by M. Faure's death. The news of which was communicated to him at midnight by a special messenger from the Elysee. M. Cambon had already sent his trunks on board the Trans-Atlantic liner Normandie, intending to leave Paris to-morrow for a post at Washington. He has now decided to delay his departure until next week.

VIEWS OF THE STORMY PETRELS.

Be picture of the situation in Paris is complete without the views of each stormy petrels as Lucien Millevoye, the aggressive nationalist, and Henri Rochefort, the prince of satirists.

M. Millevoye makes an open bid for a military dictatorship and with Rochefort and Cassagnac is supporting Cavaignac, the former minister of war, for the presidency. Both Millevoye and Rochefort denounced the republic, with the most energetic epithets and declare that it is revisited, such as Meline or Brisson, is elected, in the Rochefort's words, "Le bel office will be fired off without anybody pulling the triggers."

M. Cavaignac, however, has no influential supporters besides those glorious political trumpeters.

It is significant that whenever the name of Paul Deschanel, the retiring and popular president of the chamber, is spoken of for president, it is coupled with the qualifying phrase that he is not old enough for such high office, but no one has yet formulated any more serious objection to his candidacy and some of the most experienced parliamentary hands declare that although Loubet may be put forward at first, his latter ballots Deschanel's chances are more than brilliant.

The Tribune's correspondent was present during the session of the chamber of deputies this afternoon and could not fail to notice that Deschanel made a decided impression on the assembly by the firm, dignified and above all, the authoritative manner in which he presided and pronounced an eulogy of the late president.

A well known ambassador of a great military power shortly afterward remarked: "Perhaps, after all, Deschanel is the strong man needed to meet the situation."

"The Duc d'Orleans' manifesto, published in the Figaro, is regarded as absolutely flat. Except for a small regalist coterie, nobody pays any attention to it.

THE GRIP EPIDEMIC.

Opinions of New York Physicians as to Cause and Cure.

[New York Exchange.]

"There is probably no family in the city of which some member is not laid up, or at least attacked by the grip."

"While grip is the same old enemy, it seems to be very different this season from other years. On the streets and street cars and in the churches one meets with pale faces, shivering, sneezing, with running eyes, coughing and with a woe-begone expression on their faces. Like all epidemics of this kind, few are exempt. It attacks the rich and poor alike and physicians are being worked night and day.

To obtain reliable information on this most important subject a reporter recently called upon some well-known physicians to learn from them what he could do in relation to it.

"All agreed on the opinion that the malady was contagious and that it is most once it was of an extremely dangerous nature."

"One medical man, who is said to have treated no less than one hundred grip patients in a single week, said to the reporter:

"Serious results will always follow an attack of the grip if it is not properly treated. Often it runs into pneumonia and always it leaves unpleasant or dangerous complications. It seems to be different this year from ever before. My experience has shown that the worst grip comes when the body is clogged up and when the secretions fail to have the right exit."

"Have you ever seen a sewer or a drain clogged. Well, that is precisely the condition of the body that invites grip. The poisons which should be escape and as they back up and foul everything, just as a clogged sewer floods the street, is this not natural? It is certainly true."

"When a person is attacked by grip," the doctor continued, "he should not try to drive it out by medicine of kind, aching limbs and extreme weariness under the impression that he has simply an ordinary cold, but should stay indoors, avoid excess of eating and drinking and above all take timely remedy."

The reporter being anxious to discover what the public considered a timely remedy and was taking most, visited the leading drug stores and interviewed the proprietors. The general opinion was well expressed by the manager of the Seventh Avenue pharmacy, who said: "Grip? Yes, it is raging. But it seems to come in a different way from any former years. People come into our store all clogged up. Not necessarily in the head, but all over, the body. They have headaches in the eyes, but then they have backache too and pains all through the system. You know the body is like a city. All the waste matter and secretions must be carried away. When the sewers do not work there is trouble. People are beginning to understand that they must keep the sewers, especially the kidneys, in good condition, or they cannot hope to escape or regain health. What is the remedy? Well, we have a store full of so-called remedies, but we have only popular with the consumer—Warner's Safe Cure. We look upon it as the safest and the best remedy that anyone can take when suffering from the many, many serious ailments so common at this season of the year."

This information is certainly of the highest importance in view of the increasing number of people who are suffering from colds, chills, grip and the ills of the season. Very often the serious results which follow these attacks might have been avoided if the proper remedy had been taken in time. Health is a serious matter and especially at this season of the year, when so many things are lighting battery against it.

Everybody will be interested in the murder mystery which will appear exclusively in the Salt Lake Herald of tomorrow.

Burlington Route

A well-known New Yorker

pays his tribute to the Burlington's dining-car service:

"The dining-car service of the Burlington Route is about the best there is. On every table in the dining-car is a fresh bunch of American beauty roses, one of which the waiter affixes to your coat when you have finished your meal. The cloth is changed with each guest, the butter little and cool. The menu, though not long, is wonderfully well-selected and admirably served."

On East on the Chicago Special which leaves Denver at 1:00 p. m., or on the Vestibuled Flyer which leaves at 8:30 p. m., and you can see for yourself how good, how clean, how reasonable in price, our dining-car service is.

in self-defense. It is their most vigorous and effective method of fighting the flies. Nails that are projecting their heads in their shoes. Blacksmiths often use them only in defiance of the danger that is liable to follow.

Shearing Process

by which the fibres of metal are separated and can often be seen projecting, the other goes into the sacker. Such nails are the result of the Cold-Rolled and Shearing Process.

Putnam Nails

are exclusively Hot-Forged and Hammer-Pointed, precisely like the old-fashioned hand-made nail. This method avoids all particles of iron closely together in the nail head. Not only that, but it makes Tight, Sharp and Brad nail.

Absolutely Safe.

Examine the nails in your sister's clothes basket. If they are Putnam Nails, the whole length, they are the Hot-Forged Kind. Ask for the Putnam. Dealers in Hardware and Shoes.
