KILLED BY A FALLING TREE.

Use of Suicides—Crushed in a Mine—Accidental Drowning—Clinical Finished a Bicyclist.

Last week's storm caused much loss among young lambs in the Wyoming sheep section.

William Moore has secured the contract from the Canadian government for carrying three letter mails into Fort Cudahy and Forty-mile Creek, Alaska.

A Chinese woodchopper named Young Sing, employed on J. D. Jones' place at Rosewood Gulch, Cal., was accidentally killed by a tree falling on him Wednesday morning.

The inquest over the body of John Hugh Yarnell, found dead at Two Bar ranch, Wyoming, has returned a verdict of death by shooting, but whether accidental or otherwise it was not possible to tell.

Samuel T. Emery, a switchman, while coupling cars in the railroad yards in Sacramento, Cal., Wednesday, slipped and fell to his ground. The train passed over Emery and he was mortally alloyed.

Amos H. Andrews committed suicide at Boise, Idaho, Wednesday evening, owing to despondency from long sickness. He suffered from consumption and catarrh. He leaves a wife and child in Pueblo.

Boise, Idaho, Statesman: James Freeburn came over from DeLamar and has gone to Salt Lake. He says there are no new developments in the mine. The town is apparently quiet, and there is no disorder.

Several large sturks and 2,000 salmon, weighing from fifteen to forty pounds, were caught Wednesday in Monterey bay, Cal. The salmon seine is considered one of the most remarkable catches for many years.

The coroner's jury in the case of James K. Logan, of Rock Springs, Wyoming, found a verdict of death by shooting, but was unable to determine whether it was suicide or accident. It is generally believed he was handling a pistol and that it was accidentally discharged.

Edward Drury, a miner, was blown up accidentally in a mine near Fremont, Arizona, Monday evening and will die. He was working alone and was not discovered for twenty-four hours. His injuries are so serious that he cannot tell how it happened. He has relatives living in Chicago.

At the school meeting held at Green River, Wyo., Friday night the proposition to raise $1,000 by special levy in order to allow Green River to have a nine months' school term, was carried by a vote of 49 to 20. One thousand dollars will be raised by bond to make improvements to the school building.

While riding a bicycle in Los Angeles, Cal., Wednesday, Roy C. Woodcock, an employe of the Pacific Cycle company, suddenly fell from the wheel and expired a few minutes afterward. Woodcock had an unconquerable appetite for liquor and had threatened to commit suicide if he should prove unable to overcome his craving for intoxicants. His physician prescribed chloral, and Wednesday morning he took the entire contents of a bottle containing the drug and started on down town on his wheel. When he reached Figueroa and Thirty-second streets the drug overcome him and he dropped dead in the street.

Laramie Boomerang: Master in Chancery Cornish of the Union Pacific system returned this morning from his eastern trip. He decided two cases that he took under advisement after the recent session of the master's court held in this city. The first is an order to allow the receivers of the road permission to sell the narrow gauge equipment of the Oregon Short Line. The decision of Judge Cornish will doubtless result in an order from the United States court allowing the old equipment to be sold. The other case was a request from the road for an order allowing it to purchase $200,000 worth of new steel rails to be used in renewing the track along the Oregon Short Line between Granger, Wyo., and Huntington, Oregon.

Rock City Times: Captain Frank Landers, chief of the Lava canon bureau, has just completed the compilation of the statistics relative to agricultural taken last year. It covers a vast amount of matter never ventured before by any census of the state of Utah. It shows the average size of Utah farms is 153 acres. There are 22,500 with less than 40 acres, 32,500 with between 100 and 140, and a total of 204,305 farms in the state. Mortgages exist on 48,352, with a total indebtedness of $18,845,731. There are 32,870,000 improved acres and 8,427,000 unimproved. The cash value of farm was 130,000,000 bushels. The total value of hay the same year was $4,625,000, while the crop raised that year was valued at $9,000,000. The expenses incurred amount $1,112,000, interest $11,000, and rent $3,000,000. The total number of days in use stock pasured is 10,000.

Information has been received of the drowning of Winston Dusenberry in the Farmington river, Conn., the second member of Friday afternoon last. The first intimation of the affair was furnished by Perry Hamilton, who was thrown into the river at the same place Friday evening by the turning of his saddle. The next day, while looking for his blankets, etc., he found the mules and cart of Dusenberry lodged in some brush. Search was begun for Dusenberry's body, which was recovered with grappling irons near the same place Sunday afternoon in a deep pool. How the accident happened cannot be ascertained, as the unfortunate man was alone when drowned. The horse was not deep and it is supposed that he was thrown from his seat upon. Deceased leaves a widow and five children.

A dispatch from Los Angeles says: General S. B. Harper, general passenger agent of the Denver and Rio Grande, and W. J. Stimson, California agent, are in that city in the interests of a plan to build a road to San Diego. They have presented all Wednesday morning with F. A. Temple, general agent of the Rock Island. The Denver and Rio Grande is Colorado's chief transporting line, and runs from Denver to Grand Junction, Colo., where it connects with the Rio Grande Western Railway to Salt Lake. These lines form the Rio Grande system with Utah west. The Denver system will make some thirty miles nearer to Denver, on the same line to Dallas, where considerable cement, but the engineers have surveys to 80 miles, in the south-western corner of Utah. The road is surveyed that far. A corps of engineers has been sent to find the most feasible route to Needles, on the Atlantic and Pacific, a transcontinental road. In addition a survey has been made from Barstow, Cal., on the main line of the Denver and Rio Grande, through the Navajo reservation to Ashfork, A. T. From Ashfork the Santa Fe, Prescott and Phoenix runs to Phoenix, where a line is already surveyed to San Diego. The Rock Island, a friendly road, has lately surveyed a road from Liberty, Kansas, to Phoenix. The Rio Grande and Rock Island are largely interested in the San Diego road and hundreds of thousands of money are involved. Colonel Hooper says he is in California for his health, but admitted it was essential for him to leave Denver for a time at the last. He said the road was seeking his advice, and admitted that the surveys as above outlined had virtually established the feasibility of the project.

"Big Battalions" at Sea.

It was the First Napoleon who made the epigram to the effect that Providence is on the side of the biggest battalions, and, although unfortunately experience was largely crystallized in the remark, he had himself many instances to prove that there were not a few exceptions to the rule. It may well be questioned whether the statement will not be found to be far more nearly literally true of naval than of military operations. The big battalions,—the fully-equipped battleships, the best steam power, the best and most numerous all arrangements,—these, we need then more, men and ammunition, are likely to be the decisive factors in the success of nations hereafter when they engage in naval warfare. The nation which has spent most in new and military navy, supposing it to be the greatest number of ships fitted with all modern appliances for warfare—for that point, the concealed armor, the most available steam power—may be said to have assured success. Most further, a little more to look, will no doubt have the opportunity of making an estimate fully, even the optimists and pessimists to agreement with which fidelity or wrongly, we as a people are apt to smile ourselves against others, will only in the rare case have a chance of showing its mettle. It will be the ship, the gun, and a very good one of the steaming power of the vessel, not with it.—Iron Monmouth's.

Keeping Chickens.

A thousand chickens may be reared as easily as one, and up to high. There is no use for the hen except to hatch the chicks. After the chicks are hatched they are fed and cared for by the hen. Any number of chicks can be reared by one hen. Any one who has been any money will tell a third audience. Little more than a week of moderate weather will bring any hen to a very short time.

LITERARY NOTE.

Senator John H. Mitchell of Oregon will contribute to the June number of The Forum a powerful and convincing article advocating the "Election of Senators by Popular Vote." He thinks that the political sagacity and intelligence of the people can be fairly expressed and materialized only when they exercise this right directly and not vicariously. In the same number Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen, the distinguished Norwegian scholar, concludes his review of "Modern Norwegian Literature," in an article even more brilliant and interesting than his previous one.
