JUDGE BASKIN IN, JUDGE ZANE OUT.

Former Became a Qualified Member of Supreme Court Today.

SOMETHING OF BOTH MEN.

Each Has Occupied a Prominent Place in Public Affairs—One From Ohio, the Other From Illinois.

Justice Robert N. Baskin, who succeeds to the State Supreme court bench, and who was, in November last elected over Judge Zane, by a majority of something over 1,000, was formally sworn in this afternoon, the oath being administered by Justice Miner. Chief Justice Bartch was sworn in this morning by Judge Zane.

Justice Baskin was born in Hillsboro, Ohio, on the 20th of December, 1837, and has therefore just passed his sixty-first birthday. He was educated at the Salem academy near Chillicothe, Ohio. At an early age he commenced the study of law with James H. Thompson, a celebrated attorney of Salem and after remaining two years in Mr. Thompson's office, he entered the law [illegible] of, who, through their own untiring efforts, have gained distinction in the history of nations. His parents were poor, the father being a farmer, who followed his occupation for years, eking out but a [illegible] living through the labors of himself and family on the farm.

Charles, the youngest of a family of eleven, spent the winter of his earlier years in the [illegible] and [illegible] house, and in summer he was found hoeing potatoes, [illegible] and doing all other work [illegible] to early life on the farm. At the age of seventeen he went to Philadelphia where he found employment in a grocery store, and after a year's service there he returned to the old home [illegible] for Illinois to settle down and start out on his own [illegible].

Locating in Sangamon county, a few miles out of Springfield, young Zane worked for a time on a farm and in the fall of 1852 he entered McKendree college in St. Clair county, about twenty miles east of St. Louis. After three years of hard study he [illegible] [illegible] school and [illegible] to his spare moments reading law, and in July, 1857, he made application for a position with the law firm of Lincoln & Herndon, made up of Abraham Lincoln and William H. Herndon, and [illegible] in Springfield and vicinity. He secured the place and in less than a year, passed a successful examination and was admitted to the bar.

Thus began Charles S. Zane's legal career, the young man taking advantage of every opportunity afforded him and forging ahead as swiftly as was consistent with a thorough understanding of everything he undertook to do. From this time on Mr. Zane mixed and mingled with some of the leading lawyers and politicians of that time and it was not long until he was recognized as a man of ability and achieved quite a reputation as a man well read in the law. He held several positions of trust in Illinois, among them city attorney of Springfield for two terms, and later circuit [illegible] of [illegible] a number of important cases, and in all his legal procedure has shown himself to be a thorough student of the law. When statehood was [illegible], the casting of ballots for State officers resulted in the election of Charles S. Zane, James A. Miner and George W. Bartch to the Supreme bench, and the "drawing of straws" gave Mr. Zane the position of chief justice, from which he now retires to make room for his successor Hon. R. N. Baskin.

JUSTICE R. N. BASKIN.

school of Harvard university, where he finished his course. He returned to his native place and formed a law partnership with Colonel Collins, who during the civil war was stationed at Fort Laramie. Justice Baskin came to Utah in 1865, and has been engaged in the practice of law ever since, with the exception of the few years he has served the people in a public capacity. He was twice elected Mayor of Salt Lake City, in 1892 and again in 1894. He was elected a member of the Territorial Legislature in 1880. On two occasions Justice Baskin was the Liberal candidate for Congress, once in 1872, when he ran against Captain William H. Hooper, and again in 1878, when he ran against Hon. George Q. Cannon. He was defeated both times. Justice Baskin has never been anything but a Jacksonian Democrat in politics.

THE RETIRING CHIEF JUSTICE.

Hon. Charles S. Zane, of the State Supreme court, was born March 2, 1831, in Maurice River township, Cumberland county, New Jersey. Like nearly [illegible] Judge of Sangamon and Macoupin counties.

Judge Zane continued his judicial career in Illinois for some years, deciding a number of very important cases and becoming more and more prominent as he sat on the bench [illegible]. Desiring to move westward, and having friends in the halls of Congress, among them Congressman Wm. M. Springer and Senator Cullom, a former law partner, Judge Zane began to interest himself in a judicial appointment, and in September, 1884, he succeeded John A. Hunter as chief justice of Utah, Mr. Zane taking up his residence in Salt Lake.

Serving his full term of four years as chief justice, Judge Zane was succeeded by Elliott Sandford, whose policy was not favorable to the administration, which caused his removal after a nine months' incumbency of the office. Accordingly, Judge Zane was reappointed to the place, and filled it with satisfaction to the administration until succeeded by Judge Samuel A. Merritt who qualified January 27, 1894.

While on the bench Judge Zane handed [illegible]

EX-CHIEF JUSTICE ZANE.

NEW LAW FIRM.

Two Able Attorneys "Pool Their Issues."

A very important law combination has been formed with the beginning of the new year, a partnership commenced, Hons. F. S. Richards and C. S. Varian being the principals. This makes a very strong and capable law firm. Mr. Richards is known in every part of the State as a sound and conservative lawyer and Mr. Varian's talents are everywhere recognized. The former figured in some of the most important suits in Utah courts and has appeared with honors before the Supreme Court of the United States. The latter is the president of the Salt Lake Bar association and is in the very front rank of attorneys in this State. The partnership is most propitious.

Mr. Bert Varian, who was associated with his father in the profession, will locate at Weiser, Idaho. Mr. Dewey Richards will remain in the office with the new firm of Richards and Varian.

TIME TABLE CHANGES.

Oregon Short Line and R. G. W. Announce a New Schedule.

Commencing tomorrow the Oregon Short Line will inaugurate several important changes in its time-table. Trains for Portland, Butte and all points north and west of Pocatello will leave this city at [illegible] a. m. instead of [illegible] p. m. as heretofore, while trains for Montpelier, Soda Springs and all points east of Pocatello will leave at [illegible] p. m. The Cache Valley train will take its departure at [illegible] a. m. instead of [illegible] a. m., nearly an hour and three-quarters later than usual.

In addition to the morning train, another train for Pocatello and intermediate points will leave Salt Lake at [illegible] p. m., and the eastbound will leave at [illegible] p. m. instead of [illegible]. Trains for the south will [illegible] at [illegible] a. m., instead of [illegible] as heretofore, while the train from Tooele will arrive at [illegible] p. m. instead of at [illegible].

The Rio Grande Western has made several changes in its time-table, all of which have been fully set forth in former issues of the "News." These went into effect today.

FOR CLOSER RELATIONS.

Move for the Benefit of Two Big Eastern Roads.

New York, Jan. 2.—The Times says: Negotiations have been pending for some time for closer relations between the New York, New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Albany railroads and within the past few days these negotiations have assumed a phase which, certain railroad men say, may result in the control of the Boston & Albany passing into the hands of the other New England corporation. The trains of the New Haven & Hartford and the Boston & Albany come into New York over the same tracks, but the first named corporation has a great advantage over the other line in the matter of terminal facilities.

For the past two or three years the New Haven & Hartford management has been extending its property holdings north of New York City and improving its trackage and terminal facilities. For a while there was considerable friction in the matter of policy between the New York Central and the New Haven & Hartford, but that is believed to have been removed, and much more cordial relations now exist between these two important interests. It is now regarded as the fixed policy of the New Haven & Hartford management to assume control, as far as possible, of the New England railroad traffic at this point.

Advices from New Haven say that the directors of the consolidated road made overtures to the Boston & Albany people some months ago. Should a corporate union of the two systems be contemplated, the Connecticut legislature will be petitioned to amend the charter of the New Haven & Hartford company. Such an amendment, it is believed, could be readily secured.

TO REFORM HIM.

A Bad Boy is Sent to the State Industrial School.

Ernest Jarvis, a little chap whose age was given as ten years, but who really appeared to be much younger, was committed to the State industrial school by Judge Norrell today, to remain there until he shall have attained twenty-one.

The youthful defendant was convicted before Justice of the Peace Nielson a few weeks ago of the crime of housebreaking, but promising to do better. In the testimony of the lad's father as given at today's hearing, it appears that Ernest failed to keep his promise, for in addition to stealing everything he could lay his hands on, his father said he was the source of much annoyance to his sick mother and his brothers and sisters and no one was able to do a thing with him.

Judge Norrell inquired of Mr. Jarvis if it was his wish to have the boy committed, at the same time remarking that he was opposed to sending boys to the industrial school, unless it was shown that there was no hope of otherwise reforming them. The father replied by stating that he had done all that he could with the boy and he now wished to have him sent to a place where he could receive proper instruction.

The court asked the incorrigible why he didn't behave himself? and the reply was, "I don't know."

After further interrogating the defendant and administering a few words of fatherly advice, with respect to his future conduct, Judge Norrell ordered his committal.

The house that young Jarvis broke into is occupied by Mrs. Charles E. White, designated as 442 west Second North street. He got away with a purse and $1.40 in money.

AMUSEMENTS.

New Year's day and night told unmistakably that no amusement loving population is clustered within the confines of Salt Lake City. The Theater and Grand were filled, the Y. M. C. A. was crowded to overflowing and Christensen's hall was jammed almost to a standstill point, while numerous private receptions and gatherings were given all over the city.

At the Grand Mr. Mulvey's face beamed with satisfaction as the throngs poured into his house at the two presentations of "On the Suwanee River," nor less did he beam as the crowds poured out again and rendered a unanimous verdict of enjoyment over the bill of fare presented. The matinee house was three-fourths filled and at night the "standing room" sign was hung on the outer wall at an early hour. The play is one that will fill the house again tonight and tomorrow night, when the engagement ends. It is a story of Southern life in which the pastoral and the ultra-sensational are intermingled, while coon songs, darkey quartette singing and specialty work interlards the whole gallery. Polly Stockwell, who is well remembered in Salt Lake, was received with decided favor, while Stella Mayhew quite captured the audience. The singing also brought down the house and called for many encores.

The twelfth and thirteenth, and—as far as Salt Lake is concerned, the last rendition of "The Chimes of Normandy" were given at the Theater yesterday afternoon and evening. The matinee was crowded up to the second gallery and the night attendance completely filled the lower part of the house and the first circle. The work has been done so many times here that it needs no review at present and no special mention except the fact that Miss Levy, who succeeded Miss Fisher in the role of Germaine, made a most excellent impression, her principal song being encored at both performances. The other members of the cast acted fully up to the old standard, and the chorus did admirable work; indeed there is very little of an amateur suggestion remaining about either chorus or principals, excepting in isolated places. The next performance of the Chimes will be in Lehi, tomorrow evening, where the Sugar company employes have entirely bought out the house in advance, the seats being sold to the general public. The fifteenth presentation will be in the new Park City Opera house on the 11th, and the Rio Grande will run a special out during the afternoon, returning after the opera.

During last night's rendition of "The Chimes of Normandy," C. R. Savage, representing the Old Folks' committee, went behind the stage and made a request of the company that it present the opera some afternoon during the present month for the benefit of the old folks, widows and orphans. As Hon. Heber J. Grant had given the free use of the Theater and the orchestra had volunteered, it is needless to state the entire opera company was found equally willing, the vote in favor of the project being unanimous.

A pleasant feature of yesterday's performances at the Theater was the presence of the clever violinist, W. C. Clive, in the orchestra with Prof. Weihe. Mr. Clive, who is one of our best known musicians, has lately returned from a mission to Colorado. He was formerly first violinist at the Theater under Prof. Carstens. He was engaged specially yesterday by the opera company, though he is not a regular member of the orchestra.

Resident Welshmen will read with interest the dispatch in today's "News" regarding the Eisteddfod which is being held at Milwaukee. It will create special interest in Utah from the fact that Evan Stephens, leader of the Tabernacle choir, officiated as the adjudicator, and doubtless the awards mentioned in the telegram were made by him. Mr. Stephens's selection to award the prizes in an Eisteddfod of such prominence is a decided tribute to the musical standing of Salt Lake City.

SUIT TO FORECLOSE.

David Little, as president and trustee of the Park City miners' union, filed a suit against O. E. Lawrence and Marie Lawrence, his wife, in the Third district court today, to recover $500 on a certain promissory note secured by mortgage. The usual decree of foreclosure is prayed for.

BIG INSURANCE SHOWING.

The Home's Company's Record for the Year '98 a Fine One.

Its Steady Growth Since Commencement—Its Loss Ratio Gratifyingly Light and Its Premiums Heavy.

The year 1898 has been a kind one to many Utah institutions, and to none more than the Home Fire Insurance Co., the only local insurance company now existing in the entire Rocky Mountain region. When the Home began operations in 1886 there was something like thirty local insurance companies operating from Denver westward, but bad management, unfortunate investments and the panic years have cut the number down to three, the other two being located in California. It is a matter in which everyone interested in home institutions must feel a pride, that the Home of Utah has just concluded the banner year in all its history. At the office of Grant & Co. its general agents, it was stated last evening that while Utah's ratio of fire losses to premiums written in 1898 would be higher than for years past, owing to the Park City and Mount Pleasant conflagrations, the Home's ratio was lighter than for some years previous, owing to the conservative plan of accepting risks. For the past twelve months the premiums would amount to nearly $75,000. How steadily the company has grown is well illustrated by the following figures:

1887	$ 3,[illegible]
1888	11,[illegible]
1889	15,[illegible]
1890	13,[illegible]
1891	22,[illegible]
1892	25,[illegible]
1893	29,[illegible]
1894	41,[illegible]
1895	37,[illegible]
1896	47,[illegible]
1897	52,[illegible]
1898	71,[illegible]

The returns from the company's investments have also kept well abreast of those of the year previous. Invested as its assets are in the best class of dividend paying concerns in Salt Lake, Ogden, Provo and Logan. The Home enjoys a steady income aside from its premiums, and it naturally enjoys the preference at the hands of the insuring public in those places, having over 100 local agents throughout Utah and Idaho. It also secures the best class of risks in the rural communities, and having reinsurance contracts with the strongest American companies, it is enabled to take care of lines any size needed by its patrons.

Grant & Co stated last evening that while the financial report for the year was not yet made up, it could be stated that after paying the regular dividends, a substantial amount would be carried to undivided profits and that during the year the company has strengthened its assets by acquiring an interest in our two successful sugar factories.
