LOCAL BRIEFS.

Anyone who has lost a Stearns wheel will probably find the same at the city hall. It was found on Saturday, Rosie's Arcade at 1.45 this morning by Officer Smith.

Two human spasms together with a human horse have been painting police headquarters today. They are awaiting the return of their lord and master, "Indian Joe," who has been doing time for "heap too much firewater."

Denver News: Congressman John F. Shafroth returned to the city yesterday and spent several hours in consultation with former Senator Frank J. Cannon of Utah. Senator Teller is expected today or tomorrow.

Duke Statesman: Lane Gillson, the Spokane mining man, and William Ure of Salt Lake, representative of the London Gold Extraction company, are in the city. They are going to Junction Bar.

The number of cases of scarlet fever in the city at the present time is somewhat alarming. A few months ago it was heard of health attributes the prevalence of the disease to the dust that prevailed a few weeks ago and to the continued cold weather.

There will be a festival at the Hamilton school this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening. Popcorn, candy, ice cream, cake and coffee will be sold for the purpose of paying for the piano which was purchased by the school recently. A musical program will also be given.

There will be a special meeting of the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's association of Salt Lake City this evening at 7:30 p. m., May 22nd, at their hall, 69 east South Temple street. All Veteran Firemen residing in this city who belong to members of the Salt Lake City association or not, are cordially invited to attend.

Last evening the Boston wool buyer, Ludwig Eisemann, returned to the Knutsford from his trip to Wyoming and Idaho. During the last few days he has purchased nearly 300,000 pounds of wool at prices ranging from 16 to 20 cents. Mr. Eisemann says that prices are slightly higher here than in the East.

During the exercises of one of her classes yesterday Miss Anna Tiler, teacher of German in the Salt Lake High school, was seized with a fainting spell and had to be removed to her room. The spell lasted for some time, and it was quite difficult to restore her to consciousness. The lady was much better this afternoon.

Ambrose, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac A. Clayton was struck in the face by a base ball while crossing the Eighteenth ward square the other day; the little fellow was picked up unconscious, but soon recovered and is said to have suffered no serious injury, though his face remains greatly swollen.

The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Charles Spence, who passed away last Monday after undergoing an operation, took place yesterday afternoon at the residence, No. 225 Third South street. The Rev. Mr. Bailey had charge of the services. The funeral was attended by a number of people from Nebraska, who were acquainted with the Spence family in that State.

An exquisite entertainment was given in the Fifth ward meeting house last evening, the hall being an ofin of chrysanthemums and the presentation of the four-act drama, Jessie Brown, or the Siege of Lucknow, by the West Side Dramatic and Comedy Co. The play will be repeated this evening, when widows, orphans and poor people of the ward, will be admitted free of charge.

G. W. S. May, forest commissioner, has returned from Sevier River Forest in Denver, where he has been watching the sheep movements. He says the sheepmen will probably live up to the order from Washington forbidding grazing in the Uinah reservation. He left for Wyoming yesterday morning, and will arrive here early in June, probably before.

An old Salt Laker who has had some experience in such matters declares that it is as much trouble to get a license to marry in some localities than the government has to go about been engaged, bearing into the wonts of the different sects, either in Salt Lake or Ogden. In the event that he is now he believes that the Bower Bowles case would be delayed at least a month in Salt Lake City, and that his identity is known only to himself. This peculiar case says the Salt Lake Herald, the Government frequently follows such a course.

A very interesting lecture was that delivered by Prof. Marshall of the University at St. Louis, which last night. His subject was the "Cathedrals of England," illustrated by stereopticon views. Among the most striking of the views were those of Westminster and Westminster Abbey, showing their architectural features. There were something like seventy-five views shown last night, and it is safe to say that they will long be remembered by those who had the pleasure of attending the lecture.

Beginning at 11 o'clock mass, Sunday morning, Father Elder, H. B. Younman, a prominent Pacific missionary of New York, will hold a series of meetings to be continued for two weeks in this city. Father Younman will arrive in this city tomorrow. Arrangements have been made to have his services offered the public either in the Grand Theater or the Assembly hall. The distinguished missionary passed through this city about a year ago, and did very much good, conducted very successful meetings in Omaha.

Middle and North Parks Soon to Come in Direct Connection With Denver.

Salt Lake, Utah and Rock Springs, Wyoming, Will Soon be in Close Touch with Denver.

Within a few weeks Denver will be connected by telephone with Cheyenne and shortly with all the towns in Middle and North parks. Workmen will begin at once on the short strip of line between Fort Collins and the Wyoming capital and will push the construction as rapidly as possible. Under the peculiar agreements with the Bell Telephone company, which holds the Colorado company, has only Colorado and New Mexico, the Denver and will be only as far as the State line, but a short time after that Denver and Cheyenne will connect with the Rocky Mountain Telephone company's system, which will also connect with Cheyenne and Laramie. The latter company owns the rights for Wyoming and Utah and has been busy for some time in extending its line, but has recently taken on new life and during the summer will further the work. The Colorado company is putting up a copper network, not only through Wyoming, but north again to the Black Hills, so as to enter the parks mentioned. From Laramie the present circuits will be extended to a number of the towns along the railroad as far as Rock Springs and also north and west to Casper and a dozen other thriving communities. It has been definitely decided that the Salt Lake line will not go by way of Laramie, but will be extended from Rock Springs to the State line and then connect with a Rocky Mountain line twelve miles north of the Monroe ranch. The lady was much better this afternoon.

CHICAGO'S BOARD OF EDUCATION.

An Illiterate Citizen Attends Its Session and "Sizes it up."

HOW DIFFERENT FROM OURS!

Deals With Microbes, Fungus, Statistics, and Other Fads and Discharges Teachers for "Cause."

"Chicago is the wonderfullest city in this country," said the Hon. John Corbin, "and she has a board of education what is a bodss. It's the Monte Carlo of the West—everything goes in and nothing stops it.

"I gets an invite to visit the board and the guy what tells me to come says he knows I'm a stranger in there which needs help the council, business blood, and knowing what education was good for I reckon a bid to earn a dollar I guess, for I'm always for education. Education our boss, says I, to himself, says I, ain't nothing but a four-flush and a full hand, educate our girls to going to bed early and riding a bicycle, and, says I, the republic is safe.

"I was a little timid about going into the board room, for I don't go be tolerant, and I don't reckon I'm a bad man, but I can decline anything what comes my way. But I gets on my pillbox and sets right in the middle of the finance building and takes a car and in a jiffy I'm there. The board was about to open when I get there, so I move up to some like seats and I'm in the opening of education go round. I takes a chair by a fat woman what looks hard at my chewing, and then she says, with a cinnamon smile:

"'Are you a pedagogue?'

"'Madam I didn't know what kind ye disease she might have, so to be kind (like and jolly her along until I could know) I says I was and changes my seat. I felt easier.

"Alphabetical Graham was sitting on a high stool spreading his salaries and making fixed. A nervous fellow what smokes cigarettes sits on a platform and has hardening of the heart, and comes in with a rose in his hair and a pencil character. Some old ladies takes seats behind him and makes a noise sure. A lot goes about and pays tickets in place for the gate. I never seen so many cripples in all my life, but when I ask what does the situation idle me that the business intelligence of the community is before me I just flutters and looks wise.

"The meeting begins. In five minutes I thinks I have learned a book account of Jim Watson and I reckon stands once for all why he don't sign the pledge. Because Billy Graham says I ever saw a man say he have to do any work, so a fellow what sits along side of him gets up and begins to read like mad.

"Two dozen shale jewels, four pounds of chalk, three blackboards, twenty dozen note books, ten reams of paper, five hundred slate pencils, one hundred made books, more pencils, more chalk, more ink.

"He does that for a solid hour and a half and I don't move. Everything goes just like a Mind psychological scheme brought out unseen. When the fellow what's reading all this truck gets tired he sits down and takes a drink of water and a little rum jumps up and he says:

"'Our high schools is going to ruin cause we don't get fresh for history.'

"Progs is ordered at once. Then he says:

"'The cause of higher education demands that we have the college of three high schools listed in oriental blue.'

"He gets the blue. A woman rises and she says:

"'The reasonable wheels coming through the fitters has microbes in it. We are destroying our young.'

"The reasonable wheel is to quit. A man gets his say and he allows:

"'There ain't no Harmony between the Chinese wall and the high school harmonic. It will cost, he says, a million.'

"It gets the million.

"I move, says another, 'that we close the schools on all feeds day.'

"Two Hundred say:

"'There's a girl what must get a school, I says so.'

"Two hundred jumps and she gets the school. Tom knows his biz.

"'I'm in favor, says a woman, of having all our pupils how to model statuettes.'

"So it's ordered and I sees the influence of my fady remarks blasted. I just walkies to my seat, but I can't move cause they all knows I'm there to stay. I'm hoping that they'll say something about the Chicago Board of the little children what needs a trade to live by, but everybody seems tired and they all says:

"'I'm for having no female teacher married, says a guy.

"'Why, he demands the man with the bunch.

"'Babies and husbands,' says the other.

"'Prove your charges,' says the boss.

"'What does a woman teacher what has a husband and a family of children? says the other guy. Who should have our kidgardens? Who, I ask? Girls that ought to be home with their sick mothers and don't have to rock the cradle and cache the bottle.

"'Hadn't we ought to call all the board and the women what's married gets it in the neck? I can't stand it any longer, I can't. I have to go home and I meets an old girl with gray hair and a bonkaroo silk on and she's crying, and I says:

"'Hook. Who gave you the books?'

"'Says she:

"'Mr. Coughlin. I've been nothing fifteen years and holding to my husband and the children all the time. I've had to work so hard I haven't had time to get married. Because I'm married they're going to fire me. Heaven knows, says she, I'd had enough married but this I'd never have married him, but what shall I do, says she. It's going over Jim's head the start, and I've got to do something. I can teach, Mr. Coughlin, but I'm married. What shall I do?'

"What does an old crook comes out of the board room, and he says to the weeper:

"'Madam, in consideration of your part fulfilled services this board excuses your being married and you may keep on the job in the meeting. But, and he shakes his old head, 'don't do it again.'

"'I'm in, falls into the elevator. I says to my German friend what jerks the boiler:

"'In this education, what does they are doing? Where is the children and the cockles come to?'

"'Ha! he tells a Dionish smile:

"'John, some have children only because they wants to make themselves a job for life. I expect he supports them. You don't know it. Teachers are further what professors and the board's job is to see that they don't get cheap here that don't get time and pay.

"'I gets out under the stairs. I looks at the hall. I see the windows in front of the statesmen's room. I says to myself:

"'Jim, they're some than the cupboard.'—H. I. C. in Chicago Times-Herald.

SALT LAKE MILLIONAIRE.

Golden Hand of Samuel Newhouse Laid on Colorado Treasure Vaults.

The golden hand of Samuel Newhouse, the modern mining Midas, has been laid on the treasure vaults of the Leadville district, and wealth is bound to pour therefrom says the Denver News. The carbonate camp is the latest venture of Mr. Newhouse's shrewdness, and it promises to be a rich one, and rumor has it that he will maintain his reputation as a plunger in that district. At present he is busily interested in the Black Iron and Iron Mask mines of Battle mountain and a dozen other Leadville properties. He is also busily waiting for his contract to be closed.

Mr. Newhouse returned to Denver yesterday morning. He refused to be interviewed for the reason that he has so much business on hand at present that he does not want to jeopardize any detail by premature publicity. He was affable in a quiet way, and readily talked about the weather and the crops, but mines? Well, hardly.

"Are you going to Leadville?—do you think it will—?" was a random question fired at the young millionaire, but he was not to be caught napping. He shaken the questioner's hand with a most affable smile and disappointed the reporter with a most evasive question concerning the reports of Mr. Newhouse's little investments of a few half million, which are in the Bank of Commerce and Trust company, the Mercantile and the Zion's Savings bank. Mr. Newhouse made the remark that he expected spending a few dollars now and then like a very ordinary individual and that he preferred it should be quiet; in fact, the public should not care to take a part in the transaction by reason of publicity.

TO KEEP CREEK PURE.

Proposition of W. H. Hardy to Sell His Ranch in Parley's Canyon.

The Council committee on public grounds met last evening for the purpose of considering a proposition made by H. B. Hardy, president of the Second ward, on behalf of his brother, William H. Hardy, to sell the city the Hardy ranch in Mountain Dell, Parley's canyon. The Hardy brothers, L. C. Owens and William H. expect to settle in Alberta, Canada, soon, and for this reason the ranch can be bought for the price named. The committee will go up the canyon on Sunday for the purpose of inspecting the ranch. Should the Council decide to purchase the property at a fair figure, prospectives looking to the purchase of other places in the canyon will be pushed, according to the council.

Many of the councilmen are of the opinion that Parley's canyon should be purchased and the city obtain absolute control of the canyon.

BYRNE FILES ANSWER.

Says He Does Not Own Stock in the Moscow National Bank.

In the Federal court Edward Byrne has filed an answer in the suit brought against him in March last, by W. P. Dixon, receiver of the Moscow National bank of Moscow, Ida. The complainant sues for $15,000 and interest from June 14, 1898, on account of assessments on the shareholders of the defunct bank for value in the losses incurred by the failure, and which deficiencies have not paid. Byrne claims that he does not own any stock in the bank, but that he is the fraudulent representative of one C. M. Byrne in December, 1896, he agreed to exchange $15,000 of his mining property situated in Durango, Mexico, for 150 shares of that stock, and that he forwarded the papers to the company in February, the bank failed, and he at once notified the bank of his refusal to accept the stock, and gave the Durango state authorities not to record the deed of transfer. Defendant therefore avers that he never owned any portion of the bank stock and could not legally be assessed on it.
