NEWS OF THE WEST.

Stack of Gold Hunters to the Yukon Fields.

A CABLE TO JUNEAU, ALASKA.

Rushed to Death—Elopement—Killed by a Train—Missing Woman—Carpet-rag Sewing.

The steamer Topeka, which sailed on Sunday from Tacoma, Wash., took nearly 150 prospectors bound for the Yukon gold fields. It is estimated that only 200 men will start from Tacoma for the Yukon this spring. Several parties of miners are building small schooners to go north in. These expect to do some trading with the Indians.

H. B. Hull, a resident of Pendleton, Ore., was struck by a Short Fe train Friday afternoon and received injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later. Hull, who was absorbed in watching a passing Terminal train, did not hear the warning whistle and warning of the approach of the Short Fe train, which was rounding a curve. The engine threw him seven feet in the air. He struck a telegraph pole and fractured his skull.

C. E. Vanzoe, a locomotive engineer, died in the Receiving hospital in Portland Monday evening supposedly from an overdose of opium. About a week ago word was received at the roundhouse that a man was lying on the track at Clinton, between the switch depot and Cottonwood, and the patrol wagon was sent to bring him in. He was totally unconscious, and although four physicians were in attendance, nothing could be done for him.

Twenty-five men are now engaged in the search for Mrs. A. H. Cary, the wife of a Chicago lawyer, who disappeared unexpectedly Friday at Tacoma. Not a clue has been obtained so far. She drove to Friday from the residence of her father, in South Tacoma, but for how long the mother of the unknown part of this city, was at that time, has stopped out of sight. She was suffering from serious problems, and once before two months ago for her health. She often expressed sorrow that she caused the family so much trouble.

St. John, Kansas, News: The members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, seemed to quite a number of their friends, had a social dig evening in their church Tuesday of last week. They intend to repeat the social and platform. Among the conspicuous figures there was Elder J. W. Mosley with his little work book. The Elders, assisted by members and a few outsiders, gave an impromptu entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental music and recitations. All who were present report an enjoyable time.

As the result of an old grudge and too much liquor, Curtis Carlson, a sailor, lies in a critical condition at his home in San Pedro, with six knife wounds in various parts of his body, which were inflicted by Charles Williams, who is also a sailor. The affray occurred Saturday evening, a short distance from the boarding house where both men are living. Both men had been drinking freely, and when they met on the street hot words ensued. The quarrel ended by Williams stabbing a long-bladed pocket-knife and stabbing Carlson six times. A rib between the shoulder blades, which penetrated the lungs, will probably prove fatal.

The little town of Palermo, Cal., is much wrought up by the elopement last Thursday night of Mrs. Ada Snyder and Fred C. Sery. The latter was the foreman on E. C. Potter's fruit ranch. About three months ago he hired Mr. Snyder and his wife to work on the place, Snyder to do the outside work and Mrs. Snyder to cook and keep house. Snyder discovered the criminal intimacy, and the couple left, fearing his vengeance. Sery is a young man about 25 years of age, good looking, dark hair and eyes. He has been superintendent of the Sunday school, president of the Christian Endeavor society, and led the weekly prayer meeting.

A Juneau, Alaska, paper in its last issue receives here reports a letter from M. J. Fahey, of New Haven, Conn., who proposes to lay a telegraphic cable line to Juneau. Fahey's letter to the paper states his proposition thus: "The growth of population, the extension of mining and other industries, and the chance of trouble with Great Britain over boundary questions make it imperative that Alaska, and especially the metropolis, Juneau, should have telegraphic communication with the rest of the world. I propose, if the people of Alaska subscribe $125,000, to lay a cable to Juneau by July 4th next. This sum is about one-quarter or less of the cost."

How a Country Storekeeper Keeps Finances and Feeds.

Frank H. Dooley of West Salisbury, Vt., has a country store and keeps young folks pleasant and profit. He is able to devote only about four hours a day to his poultry, and as the only help he has is from his two boys, one 7 and the other 4 years old, he does not pretend to get all there is in it by his farm. The work is well alive, for 7 to 8 years for hens, just when they begin to molt, he sees all he wants in the family, and during the summer season his wife gets rid of quite a number.

Mr. Dooley began with 30 fowls in 1888 and built up in only part of the time. Now he has eight houses and 22 runs, all of which he built from the profits. The average number of hens he has kept is 300. His net profits to Nov. 1, 1895, were $1,515.11, out of which he paid $1,000 for land and buildings. He gives the following statement of last year's work:

Jan. 1, 1895. To 300 hens on hand, at
Cost of 30 hens purchased in 1888	$15.00
Cost of 270 hens raised since	135.00
Cost of 300 hens, average number for year	$150.00
Jan. 1, 1895. By 170 hens on hand, at
Value of 40 young hens	$11.00
Value of 130 old hens	130.00
Value of 3 roosters	6.00
Value of 3 roosters during year	30.00
Net cash during year	1,515.11
	$1,692.11

The market price of $450.04 for the year, the amount being made of 180 hens and chickens sold in the family.
