D. K. Roberts, a well-known miner of Fresno, Cal., who has been exploring and prospecting in Death Valley for the past year, apparently has met the fate which befell hundreds of venturesome spirits who have met death in that region. Since the date of his departure, over twelve months ago, no word of him has been received. Several of his relatives who reside in San Francisco have recently arrived and are taking steps to organize a search party, to be dispatched into the desert valley in the hope of finding some trace of the missing man.

Evanston, Wyo., News-Register: A good story is told on a prominent business man on Main street who is not only a deep thinker, but also absent-minded. A short time ago his wife, who had promised him down town in the morning, was visited back to the house, where she found him wandering about in a state of great perplexity, tied in trousers, shirt and slippers. He was endeavoring to find his vest but could not for the life of him remember where he had put it. After a short but deliberate search, the good wife informed him of a previous examination of her absent-minded spouse, and discovered that he had put his vest on and then his shirt over it, and then proceeded to look for his vest.

A tragedy occurred at San Andreas, Cal., Saturday, in which George Washburn, an old resident of the town was shot and instantly killed by a neighbor, a Mexican named Benito Lopez. The weapon used was a 45 caliber Colt's revolver. Washburn and Lopez lived on a little back street opposite each other. In Lopez's yard there is a spring, the water from which runs in to the street, forming a small hole and there comes into Washburn's well, made in the latter's adobe house, a small stream. Washburn was out in the street when he noticed the water which Lopez appeared in his yard, just inside of the house. Words passed between them, and Washburn struck Lopez with the hoe he had taken him. The Mexican then went in his house promptly to get his pistol and returned a moment later. His victim meanwhile had hoeded his pistol and fired twice, both shots taking effect in his adversary's body. The latter dropped dead in his tracks without uttering a word.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

A Few Plain Reasons Why Such Remarkable Success Has Attended the Great Offer Made by the Master Specialists of Zion's Medical Institute to all Humanity Who Need the Care and Attention of a Medical Adviser.

The marvelous success of this famous institution has caused widespread wonder and amazement in one of classes. To the enfortunate classes of our fellow-sufferers it has proved a boon and a blessing, and to the thousands who have received the benefit of the skill and experience of our specialists it has been a source of gratitude that has caused them to shout the praises of the institution from the housetops of gratitude that have reached every nook and corner of the world. Hundreds have written us letters of gratitude that have reached every nook and corner of the world, giving their testimony and testimonial to all who are sick and suffering.

This is the effect, and the cause is as we have said. Men who know what they are about, men who are recognized as the leaders in their profession, men who have proved by the test of years that they are the greatest specialists of the age, men who have made themselves famous by curing people who have been given up to die by other doctors, men who have proved themselves to be honest and honorable men, men who have made themselves famous by curing the people of the country over in curing the people of the neighborhood—men who have shown where the secrets of their success lies, men who have shown where the secrets of their success lies, men who have shown where the secrets of their success lies,
