ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING.

Mrs. Saunders, of Uintah, Weber county, Perhaps Fatally Wounded by Her Nephew.

Mrs. Saunders, of Uintah, Weber County, was dangerously and perhaps fatally wounded last night, about 9 o'clock, by her nephew, William Green. The young man was handling a revolver, and in some unexplained manner discharged it, the ball entering Mrs. Saunders' head about one inch in front of the left ear.

Dr. Gordon, of Ogden, was summoned by telegraph and went out at once, making the trip in a remarkably short time. The ball could not be located and must have ranged down after passing nearly through the unfortunate lady's head.

The doctor has no hopes of her recovery, although she may linger several days.

MUST KEEP MOVING.

How a City Workman Celebrated the Birthday of a Fellow Laborer.

TROUBLE OF DEE, THE CONVICT.

George Johnson, a Grand Junction Tramp.—The Alleged Theft of a Pair of Pants Investigated.

The Police court opened shortly after 10 o'clock this forenoon. Clerk Owen excused himself to attend the Third District court and Assistant City Attorney Cook acted in the double role of prosecutor and clerk.

MUST KEEP MOVING.

J. Thomas, a fruit vendor, was arraigned for allowing his wagon to remain longer in one place than allowed by the ordinance. The law grants a peddler only three minutes in one place. The defendant admitted that he had violated the ordinance and said it was proper he would like to have a change of venue, as he believed the court was prejudiced against peddlers in general principles. The defendant admitted that such was not the case and extracted a promise on a promise that he would keep within the law hereafter.

FIGHTING REPORTERS.

William Lenard and Joseph Levy, a couple of bellicose newsboys who engaged in a personal physical encounter opposite the Times office last evening, pleaded guilty to fighting. They were arrested by Officer Ford, who stated to the court that the lads were in the habit of making life a burden to the Times editorial and reportorial staffs and the citizens in general. They were discharged after listening to a little advice from the court.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

John Kent said, "Yes, Judge Reiler, I was drunk last night and I came down to celebrate the birthday of one of the boys and got too much beer, that was all."

"You can go," said the court, and he did.

A BOLD, BAD MAN.

John Doe, a desperate ex-convict arrested by Patrolman Siegfus yesterday, was arraigned. He was booked for the following offenses: Obtaining meals under false pretenses, drunkenness, disturbing the peace resisting an officer and using abusive language. Doe plead guilty to being drunk and asked to be allowed to leave the town. But the Court said, "No, not yet, Mr. Doe." He was sent to jail for five days or being drunk and recommitted to jail to be tried on the other charges.

A VAGRANT CASE.

George Johnson, a pale and haggard individual with a disgusted look, pleaded not guilty to vagrancy. Officer Lund and Siegfus testified that the accused was the known associate of the born gamblers and cheaks and was seen on the streets at all hours of the day and night.

The defendant was put on the stand and said that he had worked at Park City during the last summer until six weeks ago. He had two brothers at Grand Junction, from whom he believed he would receive money in the post office. He admitted that he associated with bad people, but denied that there was anything wrong in his own character. Before he was arrested yesterday a stranger claimed acquaintanceship with him and gave him a letter in which a $500 reward was offered for the apprehension of an alleged Wyoming murderer. The stranger may or may not have been a crook.

After listening to the story of the defendant the court said, "I find this man guilty of vagrancy and sentence him to imprisonment for twenty days."

A COMPLICATED CASE.

T. R. Sawyer, a young man, plead not guilty to stealing a pair of trousers and a suit of underclothing from a room mate called Albert Johnson. The latter was the complaining witness and testified that the articles were stolen from his trunk. The case was complicated by the fact that the alleged Chinese tommy men which are sometimes investigated in the Police court, put in a time the justice, the prosecutor and other officers were puzzled. Both men recently came to the city from the Germania smelter, went to the Hot Springs, got drunk, returned to the smelters where they had painted some smoke stacks, after which they again came back to the city where the trouble between them occurred. The case was dismissed.

LIST OF DRUNKS.

Henry Page, a fever stricken patient from North Salt Lake, pleaded guilty to being drunk. The case was dismissed.

John Franklin and Thomas Nugent, a couple of Sullair laborers, confessed to being drunk. Officer Ford said that they were trying to support each other on Main street, last night, when they were arrested. He said it was a clear case "blind leading the blind." The accused said that if they did not get back to work today they would lose their jobs. The Court then told them to go.

John Condon was fined $5 for being "dead drunk." He was picked up by the police on Commercial street in an entirely helpless condition.

A PEACE DISTURBER

Taught a Lesson Which He Will Do Well to Remember.

John Haggren, formerly a restaurant keeper in this city, this morning went before Commissioner Greenman and answered to a complaint charging him with assaulting his wife, Elizabeth. It seems that the parties have not been living together for a year or more past, and that the wife had been letting rooms in the house which she and her family occupy, as a means of helping to pay the rent. Hearing went to the house, which under the influence of drink, at Sunbeck on Monday morning, so he says, "to see the children," and after going through the lodgers' bed rooms and causing quite a commotion by stripping off the bed clothes, bedtick indulging in other freaks, he assaulted his wife. For this he was now fined $10 and costs, in all $21.50.

The defendant was then further charged with using threatening language to wife, and on this count he was bound over in the sum of $500 to keep the peace for six months.

The fine was paid, the bond given, and Haggren then went his way.

THE DIVORCE MILL.

A Youthful Restaurant Waiter Deserts His Wife and Child.

In chambers this morning Judge Anderson granted the divorce suit of Maud E. Morrison vs. Malcolm Morrison, which was brought on the ground of failure to provide. Judge Merritt represented the plaintiff. The defendant did not appear, neither was he represented.

Mrs. Morrison, who had a young babe in her arms, is about seventeen years of age, the defendant being twenty-one. The couple were married in this city about a year and a half ago, but the wife stated that the defendant lived with her about three months only. He never found any fault with her and gave her no reason for the desertion. His occupation was that of an hotel or restaurant waiter, and his wages, it was said, average from $40 to $50 per month, which he could easily spare. Defendant has never contributed anything towards her support from the time they were married, and she has been living all along with her mother.

The decree of divorce was granted as prayed, the wife was awarded the custody of the child, and $25 per month alimony was allowed.

OLD JORDAN VS. MERRIAM.

In the case of the Old Jordan vs. the Niagara Mining Company, Judge Anderson this morning, on motion of the plaintiff, allowed the filing of additional findings. Exceptions were taken by the defendant, and the cage were granted in which to file a bill of exceptions.

GRAND JURY.

The grand jury are in session again today.

GETTING READY TO LEAVE.

The retiring U. S. Marshal, Mr. E. H. Parsons, is gathering together his belongings, preparatory to turning over the office to his successor on the 1st of October, and generally "setting his house in order." There is much speculation among the deputy marshals as to who or who may not be wanted of their number after the date named.

ANOTHER LONG CASE.

The arguments in the current rich of Cushing et al. vs. Beck have taken up the entire time in Judge Zane's court this morning.

PROVIDE LIGHTS.

The Danger of Riding Bicycles at Night Without Lamps.

The custom of riding bicycles on our streets at night, and especially on the sidewalks, is certainly a dangerous one. The law should be observed by our bicycle riders, who should not allow themselves to run the risk of incurring its penalties. The other evening, just as a number of people were coming out of a church on Second South street about 9 o'clock, a couple of young men on their "silent steeds" were riding at a rapid rate, and shouting to the pedestrians to "keep to the right," without the command or request was can sufficiently outlined to be understood by those on the sidewalk, among whom were a number of ladies, and one of the riders came in contact with a gentleman and was thrown to the ground with considerable force. The four passengers walked on, and the rider, who was much shaken and stunned by the fall, limped to the fence for support, muttering some imprecations on the crime of his reckless steed. The bicycles carried no lights and could not be observed until within a few feet of the persons traveling to meet them. In other countries a heavy penalty is imposed for riding these machines at night without a light. The safety of foot passengers, especially ladies and children, demands a similar law in this city to prevent serious accidents happening. It would be well for our bicyclists to take note and govern themselves accordingly.

Amusements.

A marked event of great interest was the entertainment given last night at the Odd Fellows' Hall by Mr. William H. Sherwood, a pianist whose reputation is world wide. The programme was selected with care and the execution of the various numbers was that of a great master. The public felt the enobling influence of the divine art and expressed their feelings by enthusiastic applause. Mr. Sherwood was ably assisted by Mr. Piper, Mr. Weihe and Mr. Krouse.

"THE ESSIEN."

This play which will be seen at the Temple Theatre for three nights, commencing Monday, is a play in which the life on board a man-of-war, of which people in general know little, is displayed. It is a play some well recommended from Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and Washington.

WONDERLAND.

The greatest wonder at this place the present week is unquestionably Mr. Walter Hurst, the gentleman who without the aid of arms and legs, performs many marvellous feats. Professor Cahill's Electric is another drawing card. New "wonders" are promised for the week commencing on Monday.

Fire at Alpine.

L. J. Vance, of Alpine, went out in his cow shed last evening to burn a horse's coat which he feared would be a source of annoyance to the animal he whom he expected to be engaged at his place the morning, and in doing so accidentally set fire to a lot of straw which communicated with the stables and stacks, and before the flames could be extinguished about fifty tons of hay, seven or eight hundred bushels of grain, some pigs and chickens, and, according to all he the value of about $1000, were consumed. The fire occurred about one and a half miles from Alpine, and fully one half of the inhabitants of the town repaired to the scene as soon as the alarm was given and did all in their power to save the property, and succeeded in saving a stack of hay that was located a short distance from the others.

Hydrophobia and Snake Bites.

A correspondent writes to the News that beef gall is a sure cure for hydrophobia, snake and other poisonous bites. It is used by applying it to the wounded part with a cloth thoroughly saturated with the liquid. This should be repeated at frequent intervals until the poison is all withdrawn or has been killed. Some good purifying medicine taken internally will prove beneficial.

The gall is kept on hand for any length of time if it is placed in a wide glass vessel mixed with a little whisky.
